Milk output up 11%; trend termed 'scary'

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

WASHINGTON — U.S. milk production in September was up 11 percent over year-earlier levels, recording a seventh consecutive monthly increase, USDA officials said.

The worsening situation is further clouded by the fact that the production pattern has changed markedly this year, dropping off much more slowly in the summer and fall than in previous years.

That change, noted Penn State extension service economist Jack Kirkland, is "scary."

Production in September was 11.960 billion pounds, up from the 10.777 billion recorded in September 1984.

Cow numbers continued their steady increase, jumping 51,000 from month-earlier levels, to 11.154 million. Last year, the herd totaled only 10.825 million.

Production per cow remained on the rise as well, jumping 7 percent, to 1,072 pounds, an increase of 76 pounds over last year's figures.

Beginning with a 1.1 percent rise in March, the monthly increases have accelerated steadily, widening the gap between this year's totals and those of 1984. March was the last month in the 15-month diversion program.

In Pennsylvania and New York, milk production climbed seven percent, while Maryland recorded a 15-percent increase in September.

Much larger increases were noted in the other states that are among the nation's top milk producers, according to USDA figures. Minnesota led the majors with a 17 percent increase over 1984 totals, while Wisconsin reported a 13-percent hike and California, a 10-precent increase.

Among the other states, Florida's dairymen increased their production by 14 percent, while Michigan and Ohio both recorded nine-percent increases.

One USDA official speculated that some producers have been holding onto cows that would normally be culled, awaiting the outcome of the Farm Bill debate (see story, this page) in Washington.

He added that, with the value of 100 pounds of concentrated rations running 85 cents below last year's levels, "there's no reason why they shouldn't hang on."

September figures were about 800 million pounds below the record-high production in May. However, in the three previous years, output had dropped an average of 1.4 billion pounds from May to September.

"Over the years, there's been a distinct monthly pattern in milk production," Kirkland noted. "This year, we've broken that seasonal pattern, and that's scary."

Any gains in consumption brought about by advertising or promotional patterns, he noted, are being dwarfed by the production increases. And thus producers can expect prices to drop even lower in coming months.

When asked about Kirkland's observations on the changing production pattern, Inter-State Milk Producers' economist James Fraher noted that "we have seen some funny things in there."

"We had a couple of months where there was a break in the pattern," added Fraher. "And it doesn't take much, if it's uncorrected, to get a real increase in production."

Increases in cow numbers, and in production per cow, drove the nation's milk production up 11 percent over year-earlier figures in September.

Senate to begin Farm Bill talks

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Senate is scheduled to begin consideration of the Farm Bill next week, Congressional officials said.

Concluding its work on the federal deficit package this week, the Senate is expected to devote its full attention to 1985 agricultural policy legislation over the next two weeks.

The upper chamber will begin with legislation drafted by its Agriculture Committee. The Reagan Administration is finding the Senate bill much easier to live with than a House-backed version passed last week.

The dairy title in the Senate bill includes none of the provisions that the Administration finds so objectionable in the House bill.

Specifically, it does not authorize a diversion program, relying instead on pricing mechanisms to control milk surpluses.

Administration officials in the past have said the Senate proposal is very close to what the Administration wanted in a dairy title, and will be much more acceptable than the proposed House legislation. The Administration has said it will not accept a dairy diversion program in the final legislation.

The Senate Committee's dairy title would:

- Set the support price at $11.60 a hundredweight when the bill goes into effect.
- Authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to reduce support prices 50 cents a year, beginning Jan. 1, 1987, if purchases are expected to exceed five billion pounds of milk a year.
- Require a $1.00 a hundredweight price reduction, if purchases are expected to exceed 10 billion pounds.
- Give the Secretary authority to increase support payments 50 cents a hundredweight, if surplus purchases drop to two billion pounds or less.
- Order the Secretary to complete a study of Class I differentials, giving special attention to changes in cost of transportation.

The House's dairy title, very similar to the National Milk Producers Federation dairy unity proposal, gives the Secretary authority to institute a diversion program if government purchases exceed five billion pounds equivalent and would require a diversion plan if purchases reached seven billion pounds.

As with the 15-month diversion program that expired April 1, producers would be paid $10 a hundredweight to reduce their marketings, and would sign a two-year contract. The Secretary would also have the authority to accept bids at other payment rates under a 100-percent buyout plan.

Each year, the Secretary would be required to compute a preliminary support price, based on changes in cost of production compared to a base year. USDA would then be permitted to reduce that support figure 2.6 percent for every one billion pounds of milk surplus purchases over four billion. The maximum annual reduction would be 7.8 percent.

For the current marketing year, the formula would produce a support level of about $11.74 a hundredweight.

The House's dairy title also establishes new differentials in 33 marketing orders, in an attempt to provide adequate supplies in the Southeast.

The Reagan Administration has objected to the House's proposal, citing its reliance on cost-of-production, rather than on marketing indicators. USDA's original draft of the Farm Bill called for sharp reductions in dairy price supports over the next few years, and attempted to make all pricing systems sensitive to marketplace realities.

The major differences in the legislation, especially on dairy provisions, would indicate that the Congress will have a lot of work to do in conference, after the Senate approves its bill.

The legislators are working on a 45-day extension of the 1981 farm legislation, which expired Oct. 1. The extension gives Congress until Nov. 14 to replace the legislation or pass another extension.

State receives 2nd federal grant for Chesapeake Bay cleanup

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER — Pennsylvania's Chesapeake Bay cleanup effort received a $2.175 million boost on Wednesday, when the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's James Seif presented a check to state Department of Environmental Resources secretary Nicholas DeBenedictis for the 1985-86 project year.

State DER Secretary Nicholas DeBenedictis (right) received a check for $2.175 million from EPA's James Seif on Wednesday for continuation of the Chesapeake Bay cleanup effort.

This will double, in one year, the size of the Chesapeake Bay Program," said DeBenedictis, pointing out that last year's (1984-85) federal allocation amounted to $1 million.

The presentation took place in conjunction with a meeting sponsored by the Chesapeake Bay Citizens Advisory Committee at Lancaster County's Central Park. The group is a broad-based consortium of 20 lay persons from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia who act in an advisory capacity to the Chesapeake Bay Executive Council.

Federal contributions to the initiative must be matched dollar-for-dollar by the state, making Pennsylvania's total contribution for 1985-86 more than $4 million.

The funds are distributed to the

To Be Careful Around Manure Pits

This is the time of year that many liquid manure pits will be cleaned out and spread on the land; the crops have been harvested and the ground is open enough to absorb much of the liquid; this is necessary rather than to apply it on frozen ground. A pass over the field with a disc will reduce the possibility of odors a great deal.

When these pits are emptied there is a danger of poisonous gases being present. If the mixture is agitated before being moved, then good ventilation must be provided above the pit. Also, never go into a pit without a gas mask or some type of respirator. Keep in mind that these gases can be explosive as well as poisonous to man and animal. Special care is needed in and around manure pits.

To Evaluate Farm Records

The 1985 cropping season is about over and soon it will be time to summarize your farm accounts and be reporting to the IRS. In addition to the need of good farm records for tax reporting purposes, I'd like to suggest these farm records be used for future farm planning in making major farm decisions

When time permits and as the outside work winds down this fall, it is a good idea to spend some time in your office and do some "pencil pushing" regarding the most profitable parts of your farming business. Your records of success or failure of the various enterprises are the best guide to future expansion or termination.

To Inspect Heating Systems

With colder weather upon us, we'll be using different types of heating units. In order to prevent the potential for fires and other problems, we suggest that all chimneys and flues be checked for cracks and places where sparks can escape.

In this part of the country, tobacco sheds have stoves to provide comfort for the winter job of stripping tobacco. Many of these have been in operation for years and may need some attention. The mortar around pipes and between bricks may have fallen out; in some cases a repointing job with mortar will make the system much safer.

Don't take chances with a faulty system; it could start a major barn fire or the fumes could cause suffocation.

To Control Mice and Rats

Birds may migrate south for the winter, but mice and rats migrate from the outdoors to the indoors. And they may choose your home.

When nights become chilly, mice and rats move into garages, storerooms and barns. And if there is food in the area, they're likely to set up housekeeping there until colder weather drives them into your house.

Mice can crawl through holes or cracks as small as a dime. They can enter where pipes go through the wall. And some are so bold, they'll run through an open door while you're entering the house.

If you find signs of mice activity, there are two good ways to get rid of them. If there are just a few mice, a trap is a good remedy. Bait the trap with bacon, peanut butter or cheese and set it near a wall so that the trigger is pointed towards the wall. If a large number of mice are present, then baits are more effective. The bait should by put in bait stations so children or pets cannot get to it.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W ALTHOUSE

LIFE THAT IS "LIFE INDEED"
October 20, 1985

Background Scripture
1 Timothy 6 1 21
Devotional Reading
1 Timothy 4 11 16

I am torn between the Gospel of Christ and the gospel of the world. The gospel of the world tells me that my salvation is in things. Success--which many mistake for salvation--is dependent upon money and power. My happiness is tied directly to what I can acquire for myself. But Christianity tells me that "things" do not last, that the essence of life is to be found in the immaterial, the intangible, the realm of the spirit.

There is an area of my mind that says the world is correct; things are all that matter. But there is a deeper part of me that just as loudly and even more persuasively proclaims that the essence of life is not things but spirit.

NOTHING IN, NOTHING OUT

1 Timothy puts it in inescapable logic: "For we brought nothing into the world and we cannot take anything out of the world" (6:3). If this earthly life is all there is, then by all means, let us eat, drink and be merry and get our fill of things. Except that with things, there never seems to be a "getting our fill." No matter how much we get, we seem unable to ever get enough. Thus, even in this life, things do not have the power to satisfy us.

But, as followers of Jesus Christ, we do not believe this earthly existance is all there is. Although we may be uncertain as to the exact nature of what lies beyond death, we believe that that is our ultimate [illegible] Earth is but our tempora[illegible] in that existance beyond dea[illegible] of this world will be left behind.

TO BE CONTENT

There's a popular saying: "I've been poor and I've been rich--and 'rich' is better." But "rich", even though "better," is not necessarily satisfying. The secret, says 1 Timothy, is this: "if we have food and clothing, with these we shall be content" (6:8). To learn to be content with the necessities of life is one of life's greatest achievements. For it is contentment, not things, that satisfies us.

With our minds, we know this Yet, we find it difficult to order our lives by this principle. Our society is afflicted with the short-range view of life. Still, there is a long range reality, an ultimate destiny, from which we cannot escape. "As for the rich of the world...They are to do good...thus laying up for themselves good foundations for the future, so that they may take hold of the life that is life indeed" (6:17-19).

The life you live, is it "life indeed"--real life--or something else?

AND OTHER OPINIONS

Editor, Lancaster Farming:

Jerry Webb's article in Lancaster Farming Oct. 12, 1985 needed some important information that was not included in his farmland- food- people study. The following added statistics will give a better perspective of the situation:

- According to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, one million acres of prime farmland are lost each year to an irreversible process called development. This is equivalent to a strip of land one-half mile wide stretching from New York to California.
- Another strip of land (two million acres per year) consisting of marginal farmland and land that has steeper slopes, rocks, poor drainage, needs irrigation, etc. is lost to urbanization every year.
- Every day the U.S. population increases by 5,000 people. To feed them, approximately 10,000 acres of new farmland should be added to the U.S. every day.
- For every new development in agriculture that increases food production per acre, there is something negative to counter that efficiency. Development on prime farmland and soil erosion are the two main destructive forces. Others are high salinity on irrigated land, aquafer dry-up in the high plains area, irrigation becoming too expensive, plant and animal diseases that don't respond to treatment, drought conditions, floods, commercial fertilizers becoming too expensive, acid rain and air pollution. The list appears endless.
- The new land brought into farming is basically marginal land which is susceptible to many problems and doesn't come close to replacing the prime farmland acreage lost to development.

PFA urges review of tax notices

HARRISBURG – "The Philadelphia Office of the Internal Revenue Service is generating an excessive number of unwarranted notices of tax deficiencies which are totally invalid," according to a statement made here today by Donald Hummel, Director of Training of the PFA Farm Management Services, which prepared more than 8,000 tax returns this year.

"Most of these (IRS) notices are the result of programming errors or keypunch errors," Hummel said at a hearing in the Capitol Annex Building. The public meeting was called by U.S. Senators, H. John Heinz and Arlen Specter, to examine the operation of the Philadelphia IRS office.

"We have 40 financial advisors around the state who have investigated more than 500 such notices and none of the notices from IRS were correct," Hummel said.

"We have advised our farmer clients not to automatically pay any bill generated by IRS," Hummel said. "Every notice should be checked first by a tax professional.

"Because of the horrendous processing problems at Philadelphia, taxpayers are being dunned for taxes they've already paid; liens are being placed on their property; bank accounts are being attached; other property is being seized; returns have been lost; refunds have been delayed and on the other hand refunds have been made where none are due.

"About eight years ago we had similar problems of unwarranted notices from the Philadelphia office of IRS," Hummel recalled. "At that time the district director established a phone number and a contact person for us. This helped get to the bottom of the problem. That phone number and person is no longer there." He encouraged a similar contact system should be established by IRS to resolve the problems relating to the most recent rash of complaints.

Hummel said the most common errors being experienced by farmers are: underpayment of estimated tax, carry forward of investment credit, carry forward of net operating loss, credit for co-op investment credit, Social Security underpayment and payroll deposits.

New York DHIA supervisors recognized

ITHACA, NY — Pat Brennan East Concord, N Y., was named "Outstanding Rookie Supervisor" of 1985 during the recent New York and New Jersey DHI annual supervisor workshops. Brennan was selected from a field of 30 new supervisors hired by New York DHI in the past year.

Other top award winners included Joe Rogacki, a long-time DHI supervisor from Warsaw, N.Y., who was welcomed to the 5500 Cow Club for serving that number of cows in his circuit. Rogacki is the first New York supervisor ever to receive this honor.

Rogacki also received a sales achievement award for the greatest total sales of all DHI circuits. Six others received sales achievement awards, including Marcel Remillard of Aurora, N.Y., for highest sales of Fearing ID supplies. Jeanmarie Alfano of Johnsville, N.Y., was recognized for most forage analysis sales, and Don Sharick of Corfu, N.Y., for most herds using Advanced Information Manager (AIM).

Greg Zoller of Seneca Falls, N.Y., received an award for the most herds on the Dual-Complete feeding recommendations program. Rookie Tom Morgan of Mt. Morris, N.Y., was honored for the greatest percentage of herds receiving the optional Sample Day Milk Weights Report. Tony and Elaine Makuch of West Winfield, N.Y., received the award for the most herds on the Somatic Cell Count option.

Supervisors in Region 23, led by Region Manager Earl Wright of Scio, N.Y., won the Regional Sales Contest, barely edging out Terry Bellinger and his supervisors in Region 31. Region 23, which includes Chautauqua, Cattaraugus, Allegany, Steuben, and Chemung Counties, increased their sales over last year by 8.8 percent to win the award.

The area workshops were conducted by New York DHI staff in Geneseo, Watertown, Kingston, and Oneonta. Providing quality service to help increase the farmers' net profit was the theme stressed by the DHI staff.

New mobile laboratory to aid farmers with manure

BY SUZANNE KEENE

KLEINFELTERSVILLE — Lebanon County farmers got a sneak preview this week of a new mobile nutrient laboratory that will be available to them and other farmers in the Chesapeake Bay watershed this spring.

Developed jointly by Penn State University and the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources with funds from the Chesapeake Bay program, the mobile laboratory will help farmers determine how much manure and commercial fertilizer they should be applying to their fields.

The farmers got a look at the lab during an Extension-sponsored manure management field day held at Harold and Donald Bollinger's dairy and poultry farm in Kleinfeltersville.

The mobile nutrient laboratory, which will travel to farms in the Chesapeake Bay watershed this spring, is fully equipped for soil testing and manure analysis, explained Russell Wagner, a nutrient management specialist with the Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation

Soil testing and manure analysis are not new to farmers, they have been using them for years, but never before has the laboratory come to the farmer.

"What we're doing is making it mobile and putting it all under one roof," Wagner said.

With the mobile unit, a farmer will be able to to get the results of his soil sample and manure analysis the same day he takes them.

The mobile laboratory is also equipped with an Apple II computer that will process the data from the soil and manure tests into a recommendation for manure application. Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation employees, who will man the mobile unit, will plug information provided by the tests in the computer and have answers for the farmers in just a few hours.

Armed with this information, farmers can apply manure and commercial fertilizer to their fields in the correct amounts.

Similar tests done through the laboratory at Penn State University have helped Harold and Donald Bollinger, who hosted the field day at their Willow Maple Farm. Through tests, the Bollingers learned that they could cut back on commercial fertilizer, a move which saved them $35 an acre on 75 acres of corn

"He saved over $2,000 because he knew what he had in his manure," Wagner explained.

Applying manure in the proper amount has other benefits as well. Test plots on the Bollinger's farm have indicated that when too much manure is applied, yields are decreased.

"There is a point where putting too much on hurts the farmer's yield," Wagner explained.

So if the additional manure is actually hurting crop yields, the farmer is wasting precious time applying it.

The Bollingers added that an excess of manure in the soil raises the level of nitrates in the water, a condition which lowers milk production and hurts herd health.

Currently, the Bollingers are filtering nitrates and sulfates from the water for their cows. Since installing the filtering system, Donald Bollinger said, they have noticed a marked improvement in milk production and herd health.

The Bollingers have 44 cows milking and 30 head of young stock. They also have 70,000 broilers.

Wagner and the other nutrient specialists who will man the mobile unit, hope other farmers will see similar benefits from soil and manure testing and make it a regular part of their routine.

"What we want to do is to take it (the mobile laboratory) out to somebody who isn't doing this to show them how much they can save," Wagner said. "It's an educational tool."

The mobile laboratory is free to farmers in the six-county area encompassed by the Chesapeake Bay watershed — Adams, Chester, Dauphin, Lancaster, Lebanon and York.

Because the unit must service such a large area, Wagner said the county Extension and Conservation Districts will take care of the scheduling.

"We can't service everyone," he said, but they will try to reach as many people as possible.

The 40 farmers attending the manure management field day on Tuesday also got a look at the Bollinger's lagoon manure system, which they installed four years ago. The Bollinger's system includes a storage pit under the dairy barn and an earthen bank storage pond with a concrete floor

The storage pit under the dairy barn is pumped into the lagoon once a month, while the lagoon itself is pumped out twice a year When applying the manure, the Bollingers inject it directly into the soil.

With this system, Donald says, they save time and money through lower fuel and fertilizer costs. And by injecting the manure, he said, they have less runoff and almost no odor.

The Bollingers financed the manure system on a cost/share basis with the ASCS.

Russell Wagner, a nutrient management specialist with the Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation, demonstrates the use of the Apple II computer in the mobile nutrient lab. Wagner and other nutrient specialists, will be manning the lab when it makes its rounds to area farms in the spring.

Harvey Wenger hopes to clean up manure's reputation

BY JACK HUBLEY

NEW HOLLAND — Most farmers are aware of the virtues of dried poultry waste as fertilizer and livestock feed. But few realize that some of the very first DPW produced in the United States was eaten by a Michigan State college professor.

The year was 1965 when Harvey Wenger, a former New Holland resident, first hit upon the idea of recycling poultry manure. Working for a local poultry equipment distributor, Wenger met a salesman who had just returned from Japan with a sample of dried poultry manure

Wenger was so impressed with the product that he took it to Michigan State professor Dr. Howard Zindel for analysis. When he asked Zindel if he could identify the product, Zindel took a sample from the coffee can, then tasted it.

I laughed and told him, you've just tasted dried chicken manure,' ' recalls Wenger.

The intriguing thing about poultry, according to Wenger, is the way in which the birds process food Poultry feed enters the bird at 16 or 17 percent protein and comes out at 20 percent 14 hours later You feed three tons of feed and get one ton of dried product, says Wenger, noting that, unlike chemical fertilizers, DPW actually feeds the microscopic life in soil when used as fertilizer

But soil flora aren't the only organisms that can take advantage of DPW's nutrients, says Penn State Extension poultry specialist Forest Muir Because DPW is high in nitrogen it can be an important source of protein in livestock feed. Muir explains that organisms found in the rumen of cattle have the ability to convert this nitrogen to protein

Impressed with the potential of DPW as a fertilizer and feed, Wenger enlisted the aid of a Michigan-based furnace company in designing his first unit. At present, Wenger Dryers are being built by a local equipment manufacturer located in New Holland.

The hangup that a lot of people have is that they associate chicken manure with a rotten, stinking mess," says Wenger, pointing out that when dried right from the hen, DPW actually smells similar to feed.

Adapted for caged layers, the dryers are built to handle the output from a standard 50,000-bird house. An auger moves the manure automatically to the dryer where it piles up in a hopper and is fed into the dryer. Dried at 600 degrees F, and pulverized by a hammer mill, the manure emerges at 10 to 12-percent moisture

The cost of drying a ton of manure runs about $25 to $30, or up to about $40 for very wet manure.

What makes Wenger Meal" different from other dried manures? Wenger feels that his product is unique for a number of reasons First, the product is dried fresh, within 48 hours of leaving the hen It's also free of pesticide residues

But what really sets his product apart, Wenger says, is its fine, granular texture You can drain 30 tons out of a two-inch hole," says Wenger, noting that his DPW will also flow easily through a lawn spreader Its texture makes the product adaptable for many uses, including spreading over vegetable crops, on hay crops before successive cuttings or on pasture land while cattle are feeding

One customer who is impressed with the performance of his Wenger Dryer is Bill Gerhart of Gilbertsville. Gerhart, who maintains 70 acres of cropland, uses some of the manure from his 46,000 layers in wet form, and dries about a ton of manure a day

You can use it in your corn planter box just like fertilizer," Gilbert says, noting that the product flows just like powder. We don't buy a pound of fertilizer here anymore."

Gerhart sells his surplus to local farmers and says he has no problem marketing his excess production These fellas swear by it," he says.

But despite the product's virtues, the market for DPW has increased little in the past decade, says John Noll, vice president of A H. Hoffman, Inc , Landisville Hoffman buys the dried product and mixes it with turkey manure to produce a product the company calls Hoffman's Super Manure The manure is then retailed as fertilizer in packages ranging from five to 40 pounds

Noll points out that cow manure will outsell poultry manure any day of the week, because of it s rich, dark color From an analysis standpoint, though, the firm s Super Manure is far superior to cow manure, says Noll One other advantage of the dried poultry manure is that the drying process kills weed seeds, says Noll

But the main reason for DPW s slow acceptance has been the cost of fueling the dryers, says Forest Muir. One source of fuel that needs to be explored is broiler manure, he says. With its high wood shavings content, incinerated broiler waste could prove to be a low-cost alternative to fossil fuels

Wenger himself remains a staunch proponent of DPW as both fertilizer and feed And though he s not optimistic about increasing consumption among college professors, he is confident that more markets for his Wenger Meal lie just around the corner

Harvey Wenger demonstrates the fine texture of his Wenger Meal. The finely ground dried poultry manure is produced in dryers like the one in the background.

Congress considers moving-average loan rates

NEWARK, DE – To keep commodity loan rates more in line with market trends, Congress is considering several proposals for moving-average loan rates as it deliberates over contents of the 1985 farm bill.

What's the rationale behind moving-average loan rates, and how well can they be expected to work?

In the past, commodity loan rates – which are announced prior to each crop year – have been tied to various criteria such as parity, cost of production and (since 1981) minimum levels legislated by Congress. None of these criteria has proven satisfactory for long, according to University of Delaware extension farm policy specialist Gerald F. Vaughn.

"Loan rates set by legislation are relatively inflexible, so they don't move with market ups and downs," the economist says. "When they become a price floor above market-clearing levels, such loan rates contribute to huge and burdensome commodity surpluses."

Farm policymakers are now looking for a more flexible approach. One that's gaining attention would base loan rates on a moving-average of recent market prices.

"Expected prices would be the best guide for farmers in making production and marketing decisions," Vaughn says. "But because it's impossible to accurately predict the next crop year's prices, a moving-average based on price trends over the past few years would be a good substitute for farm policy purposes."

According to Vaughn, commodity prices over the past three to five years, or the past five years excluding high and low years, ought to provide an adequate average for this calculation. Under this method, as each new crop year comes and goes its prices would become part of the calculation and a previous year would be dropped. This means the average would move up or down in line with market trends.

"To guard against a precipitous drop in the moving-average loan rate if market prices suddenly plummeted and stayed depressed for a prolonged period, a minimum loan rate level could be set, though this shouldn't be above market-clearing levels," the economist says.

"The loan rate could be set at a specified percentage of the market price moving-average, such as 75 or 85," he continues. "A higher percentage could take the loan rate to above market-clearing levels during a year of sharply falling market prices, which would lead to costly government acquisition and storage of commodity surpluses. A lower percentage probably would offer farmers too little price protection."

Compared to past loan rate levels, which were higher and less flexible, Vaughn says the moving-average approach would have certain advantages. It would be more market-oriented and less a hindrance to U.S. exporting, as well as less likely to be capitalized into the value of land and other fixed farm assets.

"Moving-average loan rates still might get out of line with market trends if extreme price changes occurred within a short time," the farm policy specialist says. "The main concern with a moving-average approach, however, is that we have had little experience with the concept."

The Agriculture and Food Act of 1981 provided for setting loan rates for soybeans and upland cotton based on past movements in market prices, but minimum loan rates were legislated for both crops. Since 1982 for soybeans and 1983 for upland cotton, these minimums have been higher than the loan rate levels the moving-average calculation would have set. So it's difficult to evaluate the effectiveness of moving-average loan rates for these crops.

"Designing the moving-average loan rate as an effective policy tool for a wide range of commodities probably would also requrie tying target prices for deficiency payments to market prices. Otherwise, if target prices remained fixed at 1985 levels while moving-average loan rates shifted to lower levels, the widening gap between loan rates and target prices would likely lead to larger government outlays for deficiency payments," the economist predicts.

Even with moving-average loan rates, Vaughn says production control programs would probably be necessary to avoid falling prices from increased production. If this were to happen, the loan rate could at times again become the price floor, holding prices above market-clearing levels.

A recent USDA study tested the possible effects of moving-average loan rates by simulating their use for major crops over the 1986-1990 crop years. The study showed that such loan rates provided temporary price protection without interfering with price signals from the marketplace. However, it also shoed that unless accompanied by production control programs, the moving-average loan rates tended to provide a lower level of price protection.

"Moving-average loan rates could help provide a safety net for farmers while making possible market-clearing prices in both domestic and world markets," concludes Vaughn. "This assumes that other elements of the 1985 farm bill would share these objectives and not work at cross-purposes against moving-average loan rates."

House sends 1985 Farm Bill to Senate for action

WASHINGTON – The House has passed an omnibus five year farm bill in an effort to protect farm income during an economic crunch which–in some parts of the rural economy–is the most severe since the Great Depression, Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Tex., of the House Agriculture Committee announced.

The Food Security Act of 1985, H.R. 2100, was approved Oct. 8 by a 282 to 141 roll call vote. It will go next to the Senate where an omnibus bill approved by that body's Agriculture Committee is awaiting floor action.

"The key word is survival. The House action includes what amounts to a five-year ban on reductions in target prices for major commodities. This says to the nation that we recognize the depth of the crisis in agriculture. It says we do not intend to abandon the American farmer. It says we want to do everything we can, within the bounds of fiscal responsibility, to help efficient farmers survive today's troubles and work their way back to a situation in which they can earn a fair living in a fair market," de la Garza said.

"Obviously, the bill does not please everybody. No farm bill ever does that, and there are still some important steps ahead before we get a final Congressional product. I had hoped the bill would include a provision approved by the House Agriculture Committee allowing wheat and feed grain farmers to vote in a referendum on whether to switch to a program including voluntary surplus control and higher supports. But the package approved Tuesday represents the best consensus we could get in the House. I realize that the administration has opposed some features of this bill in the past, but I hope that the President will now recognize–in view of the depth of the crisis in agriculture–that what we have produced deserves support," de la Garza added.

In addition to income protection and surplus control programs for major crops, the bill includes sections on exports, conservation, food assistance for needy Americans, and other programs including agricultural credit and research.

"For commodities like grains, cotton and rice the bill preserves the basic income protection which farmers need in these dangerous times while also taking steps toward making the market prices of American products more competitive on world markets.

"The bottom line is that the House bill preserves a farmer safety net, but it also moves toward reducing the federal deficit by holding spending for agriculture within the bounds set by the overall Congressional Budget Resolution," de la Garza said.

The House bill provides that for five crop years beginning in 1986, market prices of major crops including wheat, corn, cotton and rice would be made more competitive by linking commodity price support loan rates more closely to market conditions, and by several export expansion programs. At the same time, however, the actual income return to farmers who cooperate with strengthened voluntary acreage surplus-control programs will be protected. This will be done by retaining a system of target prices and providing that these targets cannot be cut from current levels for the 1986 and 1987 crop years and probably for the following three years as well. The bill would allow 5 percent target price reductions for 1988, 1989 and 1990 crops–but these cuts could not take effect unless farmers' costs first declined by the same amount.

Additionally, the legislation includes:

– A market-oriented dairy program with provisions for a farmer-financed surplus reduction program, and programs for other commodities including soybeans, peanuts, sugar and wool.

– Conservation programs including a long-term Conservation Reserve to shift fragile cropland into less intensive use; a sodbuster program to discourage conversion of fragile land into crop use; and a swampbuster plan to discourage draining of wetlands for crop use.

– Trade expansion programs including the use of surplus crops as export bonus payments to meet unfair foreign competition in commercial markets and provisions which extend and expand the Food for Peace and related programs.

– Agricultural credit and rural development provisions including new regulations for handling farmland acquired by the Agriculture Department in loan foreclosures.

– Extension of domestic food assistance programs, including extension of the Food Stamp program with some modest restoration of past benefit cuts for the needy.

– Extension of agricultural research authority with some new research priority guidelines, and a provision requiring a study of the need for continued use of leaded fuel in farm machinery before the EPA could impose any further cut in lead levels for farm fuel.

Major provisions of the bill include:

COMMODITY STABILIZATION PROGRAMS

-- FOR WHEAT, FEED GRAINS, COTTON AND RICE, the target price and commodity support loan programs which the bill provides for those commodities would adopt for 1986 through 1990 crops a market-oriented system for setting price support loans at levels that would make American crops competitive in international markets, coupled with continued target price protection. Basic initial loan rates for grains, cotton and rice would be set each year on the basis of formulas using average market prices of recent years (with any declines limited to 5 percent a year). After calculating the basic initial rates, the Secretary could then further reduce the rate for any year by up to 20 percent if market prices in the previous season had failed to top 105 percent of the previous year's basic loan rate, or the further cut was needed to compete on world markets. These potential final loan rate reductions would be discretionary for wheat and feed grains but mandatory for cotton and rice. (Also, for wheat and feed grains only, the Secretary would have discretionary authority to operate a "marketing loan" system instead of using standard "non-recourse" price support loans for any year. Under the marketing loan plan, the Secretary would keep wheat and feed grain loan rates at the basic formula level and would require repayment of the loans, but he would allow repayment at market-price levels instead of the loan level.) For cotton and rice, the bill provides that if world markets sink below final U.S. loan levels, the government would make a special additional market payment to bring conservation districts in a six-county area of the lower Susquehanna basin. About half the money is available to farmers for instituting Best Management Practices aimed at preventing erosion and water pollution. Such practices include the construction of manure storage facilities, no-till systems, terraces and buffer strips along waterways.

Seif pointed out that Pennsylvania's role in the cleanup effort is crucial, since the Susquenhanna River delivers one half of the Bay's freshwater supply.

DeBenedictis said that since farmers began submitting applications in June response to the program has been heartening. "I've been honestly surprised at the reaction of the farming community," DeBenedictis commented. "They're the biggest supporters of the program."

DeBenedictis said that the increase in funding will mean more educational, technical and financial assistance to farmers, particularly in Lancaster and York Counties. Lancaster County alone received 40 percent of the initial (1984-85) $1 million allocated for BMP's.

Lancaster Conservation District administrator Robert Gregory noted that 34 farms have signed up for this first allocation. "I have several that have already begun work," he said. Gregory noted that the funding limit for each farm is $30,000.

According to an EPA statement, the latest allocation would be channeled into four areas:

1. $1.2 million, together with a matching state allocation, will be used for instituting BMP's.

2. $239,300 will fund monitoring efforts by the Susquehanna River Basin Commission, as well as the planning necessary to target key areas for soil erosion and nutrient control.

3. $435,000 will support agricultural education and demonstration programs.

4. $304,500 will be used to expand USDA's field staff in an effort to assist more farmers in planning and implementing BMP's.

Wednesday's session at the County Park capped a two-day Citizens Advisory Committee meeting that began with a business meeting and educational seminars at Lancaster's Treadway Resort on Tuesday.

Wednesday morning's agenda included tours of two Lancaster County farms where, according to committee director Frances Flanigan, members gained insight into the difficulty and costs involved in controlling runoff.

"We're dealing with long-term problems," said Flanigan, indicating that her group will not allow the Bay's problems to become a "here today, gone tomorrow" political issue rice export prices and all cotton prices to competitive levels.

Target price income protection would operate alongside whichever loan system was used; and any reduction below the basic initial loan rates would be offset by increased target price deficiency payments.

Target prices for grains, cotton and rice, which protect farmers' income with direct payments when market prices are below the target rate, would be frozen at current levels through 1987 to prevent any reductions in returns to farmers. For 1988, 1989 and 1990, the bill includes formulas which would permit declines of no more than 5 percent a year in target prices, but no cut could actually be put into effect unless the Secretary of Agriculture first certified that farm costs for the crop involved had declined by 5 percent from the previous year.

When commodity surpluses are above designated levels, producers who want price supports would be required to comply with acreage control programs including a 30 percent reduction for 1986 wheat, a 20 percent cut for 1986 feed grains, and cuts of up to 25 percent for cotton and rice (although producers who have to plant 1986 wheat and feed grain crops before official program announcements are made would get diversion payments for 10 percent of the cutback). For 1987 through 1990 crops, if wheat and feed grain supplies are above designated levels, the Secretary would have to require at least a 20 percent acreage cut for wheat and a 10 percent cut for feed grains. If these reductions are not enough to cope with the surplus problem, the Secretary would have authority to require additional diversion--with or without payments for the extra wheat and feed grain acres but with payments in kind required for cotton and rice diversions of more than 25 percent. To make those programs work more effectively, the bill includes a permanent new system for establishing acreage bases and yields, and further permits multi-year acreage-idling agreements to quality farmers for support programs. Also, the bill includes discretionary authority for export certificates to help promote sales of grains.

-- FOR DAIRY PRODUCTS AND LIVESTOCK. The bill links future government supports to changes in market demand and dairy farm production costs. The bill moves toward reducing surpluses and government costs by providing a farmer-funded surplus reduction program for use when heavy overproduction is predicted. Farmers under this program could scale back their production or, alternatively, take entire herds out of production. The cost of the diversion program, plus the cost of government purchases of surplus milk above 5 billion pounds annually, would be financed by farmer assessments. (To protect livestock producers in case of heavy dairy cow sales into the meat market because of a milk diversion program, the bill provides for additional government purchases of 250 million pounds of red meat annually for domestic donation and includes new authority for farmer-funded beef and pork promotion. In a related area, the bill requires that imported meats, livestock and poultry comply with American standards and residue regulations.)

--FOR SOYBEANS, the bill extends the existing market-oriented price support system. This sets each year's support at 75 percent of the average of market prices for three of the past five years, with a floor of $5.02 a bushel. The bill continues provisions of existing law permitting the Secretary to go below the initial rate (by up to 10 percent and not below $4.50) in any year following a season in which market prices failed to rise past 105 percent of the loan level. In addition, a provision applying only to the 1986 crop allows the Secretary to reduce the final support to no more than 5 percent below the formula-produced level if he determines that the initial rate was too high to be competitive on world markets. No target price or acreage control mechanisms are provided.

– PAYMENT LIMITS in the bill include continuation of the present $50,000 annual per producer ceiling for program payments. Exempt from the ceiling would be: (1)- target price payments required to offset discretionary support loan cuts below the basic formula levels for any year; (2)- any cuts below the old 55-cent loan floor for cotton, and (3)- any land diversion patments under an in-kind program for cotton and rice. The bill also includes a $250,000 per producer limit on non-recourse support loans for wheat, feed grains, soybeans, tobacco and peanuts. A separate $250,000 limit is provided for non-recourse loans on honey. (In both non-recourse loan limitations, producers could obtain loans in excess of the ceilings but the amounts above the ceiling would be on a recourse basis which does not permit forfeiture or commodities to the government.)

-TRADE-

The bill authorizes a payment-in-kind bonus export promotion program designed to make American commodities fully competitive in world markets where they have been undersold by other exporters in recent years. In the export credit area, the bill requires the Secretary of Agriculture to make available not less than $5 billion in short-term export credit guarantees in fiscal 1986 and authorizes him additionally to use $325 million in Commodity Credit Corp. funds for direct export credits in connection

Women in Agriculture Day

Pa.'s first lady, ag secretary, salute state's farm women

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG – Pennsylvania's first lady Ginny Thornburgh and Agriculture Secretary Richard Grubb were among the honored guests on hand Tuesday to salute the state's agriculture women and extend welcomes during the second annual Women in Agriculture Day.

More than forty farm and agribusiness women attended the day of educational sessions, management workshops and "networking" among women's agriculture groups held at the downtown Holiday Inn.

Ginny Thornburgh–who brought a special guest, her mother Virginia Judson–said that farm women have always been partners in agriculture, now the state's largest industry. An estimated 1.2 million individuals from the state's population of 12 million are employed in agriculture and related businesses, annually generating more than $30 billion dollars of economic activity.

She applauded farm women's traditional love of God, country and the land, and agriculture's upholding of the concepts of thrift and high value of working.

"Women have a right to be consulted, respected, trusted," the state's first lady said. "They have opportunities to be problem solvers and role models, not hand wringers. They have the chance to make a difference on earth."

Secretary of Agriculture Grubb predicted that within two or three years, farming will be a popular occupation again.

Noting that women have come a long way toward recognition in their contribution to agriculture, he offered an anecdote about his first job interview after graduating from college with his ag economics degree. The interviewer was a woman, which at the time "disconcerted" him a bit.

He speculated that she probably had a difficult position to fill in what was then basically a man's business, and added that recognition for ag women has come "slow and late."

According to Secretary Grubb, over 80,000 women now own or manage farms in the United States, while more than one-sixth of all farm workers are women.

Christine Crist, director of the Pennsylvania Commission on Women, offered a brief glimpse of the accomplishments of the commission since its inception in 1964 by then governor William Scranton. She highlighted legislation passed since that time dealing with women's issues, and educational strides being made in areas ranging from day care to women in the political arena.

Special guest for the luncheon program was Carolyn Leavens, president of American Agri-Women. Leavens and her husband, Paul, are part of a four-generation California farm with more than 800 acres planted in orchard crops.

Planning is good business for farmers, says management consultant

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG – Running a business without a plan is like asking for a crop without planting any seeds.

Still, far too many farm families operate their agriculture businesses with little or no planning – they're just too busy farming to plan.

That's the philosophy of Baron Kessler, planning specialist and management consultant, whose Baron Kessler Associates business is headquartered in Brownstown.

A seminar by Kessler on managing family farm businesses was featured during the afternoon session of the Women in Agriculture day, held Tuesday at the downtown Holiday Inn.

Dubbed "Keeping the Farm in the Family; Keeping the Family on the Farm," the workshop dealt with studying options and developing new perspectives on classic farm problems. While the problems might range from bringing children into the business, to estate planning, to handling the stress of long days and financial crunches, Kessler's recommendations can be applied toward seeking acceptable solutions.

"Women should in no way be intimidated by men's management," Kessler told an attentive audience of 40 ag women, most intent on scratching notes for future reference.

Farm families tend toward too much sentimentalism in the business, he said, and neglect to look beyond the traditional methods of passing on property, dividing responsibilities and handling the inevitable conflicts that arise through a family working together in a business.

He focused on a series of key ideas to consider when dealing with difficult farm-family decisions. The family should write a complete list of all possible solutions – even those bordering on the extreme or bizarre – and then work backward to more workable ideas.

Kessler stressed repeatedly that seeking outside management assistance for farm decision making is in no way a sign of weakness or inability. Rather, it is a sign of a businesslike approach to problem solving.

Kessler's recommendations begin with examining goals, setting them high, but attainable and realistic. Goals should also be personal, so that individuals can actually relate to the wanted end result. Of great importance, according to Kessler, is that they be put down in writing. Writing down goals makes them real.

Rewards need to be considered. Visualize the reward, he says. That helps spur on the work effort that will be necessary to meet the goal – and the ensuing reward. Or, as Kessler buttonholes the concept: "That which gets rewarded, gets done."

Obstacles must be considered as well, using the approach of 'What can I do?" to overcome or remove problems standing in the way of meeting the goal.

A timetable is necessary, some realistic date or period when the goal should be met. Again, writing down the timetable is desirable. But, he says, be realistic. Everything doesn't happen at once, and expecting that it will simply puts too much pressure on those involved to get things done

Finally, Kessler says an individual must ask how the effort is worthwhile.

If you want the control, you have to take the responsibility. Turn your problems into goals. .but be sure to get the goals right."

Farm Bill summarized

Following is a summary of the major provisions of the House of Representative's Farm Bill, provided by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

WHEAT–Loan rate set at 75-85 percent of five-year market average with 5 percent limit on annual adjustments (range represents Ag. Secretary's discretion). Target price frozen at $4.38 for 1986 and 87. Target prices for 1988-90 set at between 110 and 125 percent of 5 year market average. Thirty percent acreage reduction required in 1986 for eligibility for gov't programs. Paid diversion for 10 percent if 1986 crop is planted before program enactment (combined voluntary and paid diversion represented 30 percent in 1985).

FEED GRAINS–Loan rate set at 75-85 percent of five-year average with 5 percent limit on annual adjustments. Target price for corn set at $3.03 for 1986-87. After two years, set at 110-125 percent of five year market average. Twenty percent acreage reduction in 1986 for program eligibility (Ten percent in 1985).

DAIRY--A diversion and producer assessment program, with an initial price support of $11.74 per one hundred pounds (cwt.). Producer assessments (up to $1.10 per cwt. or more) will finance a $10 per cwt. payment to producers who cut production a specified amount, a whole herd buyout and government purchases in excess of 5 billion pounds (current rate is 13 billion pounds annually).

SOYBEAN, PEANUT, SUGAR, WOOL AND MOHAIR–Current programs extended without change. Soybean minimum loan rate of $5.02. Sugar support level kept at 18 cents/lb. Peanut program consists of national poundage quota and two-tier price support.

CONSERVATION RESERVE–After enactment of the 1985 farm bill any farmer who plows highly erodible land is not eligible for farm program benefits. Establishes a 10 year, 25 million acre reserve with payments to farmers for retiring the conservation acres. Requires an improved conservation plan. If a farmer plowed highly erodible land since 1981, he must begin a locally approved conservation plan by 1990 with full compliance by 1995.

EXPORT–Includes export bonus plan and expands export blended credit guarantees. Keeps cargo perference (50 percent of products must move on American vessels) requirements for blended credit, Food-for-Peace shipments. Applicability to export bonus shipments undetermined.

LEADED GAS–Lead content in gas for agricultural use cannot decline below 0.5 grams per gallon until a USDA/EPA study is complete on the effects of unleaded gas in farm machinery (current law would reduce level to .1 grams per gallon by January, 1986).

BEEF AND PORK CHECKOFFS--Approved mandatory checkoffs with no refund provision and delayed producer referendum.

CCC loans set at 8%

WASHINGTON – Commodity loans disbursed in October by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation will carry an 8 percent interest rate, according to CCC Executive Vice President Everett Rank.

The new rate, down from 8-1/8 percent, reflects the interest rate charged CCC by the U.S. Treasury in October, Rank said.

Diversion: some good news, some bad

COLLEGE PARK, MD – A 15-month effort by Congress and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to reduce dairy surpluses in this country was both a short-run success and a long-term failure, according to two University of Maryland agricultural economists.

The dairy diversion program, established by Congress in 1983 under the Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act, proved successful during its 15 months because the total farm marketings of U.S. milk fell in that period.

And, taxpayers got a break during the 15 months the program was in effect because the cost of the program was paid by dairy farmers and the federal government actually reduced the amount of surplus dairy products it purchased for storage.

However, the program did not provide a permanent reduction of milk production, say Robert J. Beiter and John W Wysong, specialists in the university's Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics.

"In fact, total milk production skyrocketed after the end of the diversion period on March 31 of this year," says Beiter.

"The cost to the taxpayers for surplus milk purchases by USDA's Commodity Credit Cooperative in 1985 is approaching $1.5 billion and climbing," he adds.

One reason why milk production rose after the program ended this year: many producers who participated in the program found ways to get around making a permanent commitment to reduced production.

A significant number of dairy producers used practices such as reduced feeding, delayed breeding, and feeding milk to livestock to create a temporary reduction of milk production and marketings, according to Wysong.

"This enabled dairy producers to increase immediately following the diversion period," says Wysong.

In addition, farmers replaced more cows–which is an indication of gearing up for production–at the end of the program than they had in any previous year since 1965, he adds.

Beiter and Wysong say a number of factors may have contributed to the program's long-term failure.

Fifteen months may be too short of time to expect a permanent downward adjustment in milk production, they say.

The low cost of feed grains may be too attractive to expect farmers to reduce feeding this year and next.

Milk support prices, although lower than in 1983-84, may still be too high to bring about reduced production, they add. Feed prices declined in recent years as production surpluses of corn and soybeans returned.

"Reducing the support price, as painful as that might be, would permit to some degree the survival of the most efficient producers, or it might separate out the producers with the greatest equity capital base and those with access to capital and credit resources," Beiter says.

A longer diversion program, the two agricultural economists say, might help reduce national dairy surpluses by diverting dairy production resources to other types of farm enterprises.

A healthier domestic and foreign market for other agricultural commodities might provide incentive to dairy farmers to move to other lines of productive endeavor, according to Beiter and Wysong

Maritime interests win first round

WASHINGTON – Maritime interests won the opening round in the cargo preference dispute with a victory in the House of Representatives, but farm representatives claim the issue is not yet decided.

By a 245-179 vote, the House of Representatives defeated an amendment to the Farm Bill which would have limited cargo preference to food-aid shipments. Farm interests led by the American Farm Bureau Federation called for the exemption of farm products sold under the commercial export program such as blended credit. The cargo preference law requires that 50 percent of government-generated trade be shipped on American flag vessels.

Farm representatives claim the cargo preference efforts will backfire. "The programs will be too expensive," charged Paul Drazek, international trade specialist for the American Farm Bureau Federation. These added requirements will make the farm export programs unworkable. The upshot is that farm exports will not expand and therefore, no benefits will accrue to the maritime industry. We are not taking an anti-maritime position. We simply want to reestablish a healthy commercial export market for U.S. agriculture. This cannot be accomplished if cargo preference is forced on commercial export programs," said Drazek.

The U.S. maritime industry charges that the cargo preference is necessary because other countries subsidize their merchant marine. "We have never said that the U.S. merchant marine should not be subsidized in order to compete or for national security purposes. But, adding the cost of those subsidies to the price of U.S. farm exports is not the solution. We seriously doubt that other countries subsidize their maritime industries in a similar fashion."

Cost studies show cargo preference raises the cost of farm exports by as much as $70 per ton. Until a court ruling this past spring, farm products sold under the blended credit program operated outside the cargo preference requirement. "The immediate effect of the court decision was the end of the blended credit program because the added costs of cargo preference totally nullified the benefits of the program. As a result, farmers have lost a great deal and the maritime industry has gained nothing from the ruling," Drazek said.

"Cargo preference of one form or another has been in place for 30 years and in all that time it has done little to sustain this country's shipping industry," Drazek added.

12 Lancaster Co. FFA lambs selected for Farm Show

BY JACK HUBLEY

NEW HOLLAND – If the results of last year's Farm Show are any indication, then show judge Gail Post may have placed some of the state's top market lambs at Lancaster County's FFA Market Lamb Show on Wednesday.

Dane Fine of Dave Fine Packing, Pittsburgh, paid $2.75 for Margaret Herr's champion sale lamb at Lancaster County's FFA Market Lamb Roundup. Exhibiting for Herr was Kristin Chupp.

This was the second year that Post, a former Penn State livestock judging team member, placed Lancaster County's prospective Farm Show entries. In last year's show, her top three Lancaster FFA lambs all went on to take first-place honors in their respective classes at Farm Show. What's more, her choice for grand champion county honors did likewise at Farm Show.

Proving that the right stuff runs in the family, Post selected a half-brother to last year's Farm Show winner for champion laurels in Wednesday night's county show. The show's top lamb was owned by Margaret Herr, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Herr, Narvon. A Hampshire-Suffolk cross, the 107-pound wether was bred by B&B Livestock, Danville, Ohio.

Showing the reserve champion was Kristin Chupp, 14, daughter of Larry and Barbara Weaver of New Holland.

In a separate show consisting of lambs slated for Thursday's sale, Margaret Herr again came out on top, this time with both champion and reserve honors. Both the top sale lambs, as well as Kristin Chupp's reserve champion, were bred by B&B Livestock.

In sale action at the New Holland Sales Stables, Herr's champion and reserve both went to Dave Fine Meat Packing of Pittsburgh, for the sale's top bids of $2.75 and $2, respectively. The sale's 2,460 pounds of lamb sold for an average of 91 cents a pound, not including champions.

Fine, along with New Holland Sales Stables, proved to be the sale's most active buyers, with Fine taking home six lambs and New Holland offering top bids on seven. Other buyers included Jack Godak of New Jersey, Walter M. Dunlap, Great Valley Packing, Amos Hurst and Breaker Lane Farm.

Wednesday's placings for the 12 FFA project lambs bound for the upcoming Farm Show are as follows:

1. Margaret Herr, Narvon
2. Kristin Chupp, New Holland
3. Becky Weber, Narvon
4. Tammy Martin, New Holland
5. Dave Firestone, Lititz
6. Paul Quanbeck, New Holland
7. Kevin Bollinger, Lititz
8. Gary Crills, Ephrata
9. Heidi Fisher, East Earl

Farm management

She stressed the value of "networking" among the farm groups, since many are relatively small in numbers and resources.

"Agriculture must work for power to do things together," Leavens emphasized, rephrasing the Agri-Women motto, "We can do it, together."

One promotional "gimmick" devised by her state's California Women for Agriculture group has been highly successful in stirring media interest and consumer awareness of the price that farmers receive for their produce.

Members set up a huge educational exhibit in the San Francisco waterfront area, with displays covering the gamut of the state's agriculture production. As part of the effort, they also sold farm-fresh produce at the price the grower receives at the farm. Response by the city residents was understandably overwhelming, with over 100 tons of fresh foods changing hands at bargain prices in just the few days that the exhibit ran.

Other topics covered during the seminar included decision management and concurrent sessions on estate tax planning, lobbying, and nutrition and stress.

A summation of the long-range purpose of the annual gathering of agriculture women was offered by Kathy Gill, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives, who coordinated activities through the event.

"We need to get together to know one another," said Gill. "Those who work in agriculture need this networking with farm women."

Groups involved in planning the Women in Agriculture day included the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Penn's Agri-Women, Pennsylvania Farmers' Association's women's committee, Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives, Farmer's Union, Society of Farm Women and the Grange.

Wismer to speak at PFU meeting

HERSHEY – State Grange Master Charles E. Wismer, Jr., will be the featured speaker at the Pennsylvania Farmers Union's 14th Annual Convention banquet, November 6 at the Hotel Hershey.

"We have worked very closely with the State Grange on a number of important issues lately," said PFU Executive Director Chester L. Reed. Reed cited legal representation of farmers who had shipped milk to Schep's Cheese and recent confirmation proceedings for Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Grubb as examples of the two farm organizations working together to benefit family farmers.

"It is only fitting to have a leader from another farm organization address our delegates. Farmers must work together to survive our current financial crisis," Reed said.

Non-delegates wishing to attend the banquet may reserve tickets at $20 each by calling toll-free 1-800-932-4629.

Expert says famine can be halted in Africa

ITHACA, NY – Famine in Africa can be eliminated through a coordinated scientific, political, and economic effort, according to the man who is credited as the 'father of the Green Revolution."

Nobel Laureate Norman E. Borlaug, an Andrew Dickson White Professor-at-Large at Cornell University, says the African famine is far from hopeless, because similar food shortages in Mexico, Pakistan, and India were solved when those countries adopted sound farming methods and instituted economic reforms that allowed the farmers to succeed.

Borlaug says that Ethiopia and other countries someday could be growing enough food to feed their people if they follow the examples of countries such as Mexico.

Borlaug, 71, won the Nobel Prize for Peace in 1970 for his work on improving agricultural output in Mexico, India, and Pakistan. His successes in India and Pakistan were called the "Green Revolution" by the popular press.

Borlaug believes that his "Green Revolution" can succeed in starving African nations, if these countries are willing to mount a concerted effort.

The world renowned scientist made the point in a public lecture on ' Agricultural Research and the African Food Crisis" during his recent visit to Cornell.

When I got to Mexico in 1944, I witnessed a situation not unlike what is facing Africa today," Borlaug told his audience.

Borlaug first traveled to Mexico as a plant scientist working for the cooperative Mexican agricultural program, which was a joint effort of the Mexican government and the Rockefeller Foundation. His job was to develop Mexico's wheat production to its full potential and to train Mexican farmers and scientists.

Eventually, Borlaug developed high-yield, disease-resistant varieties for Mexican farmers. When the Mexican agricultural program began, Mexico's wheat production averaged only 11 bushels per acre; today, it it 70 bushels, Borlaug pointed out.

Although the technology of disease-resistant crops brought successes in Mexico's fields, that country's agricultural development would have been impossible without accompanied economic reforms. Those reforms, such as credits to farmers who needed to buy seed and fertilizer, were as important as the technology itself, Borlaug said.

You can have all the technology in the world, but nothing will happen unless it is tied in with an economic policy that would back the technology," Borlaug emphasized.

In many developing nations, Borlaug said, the economic climate is working against farmers. For example, farmers in many developing nations are expected to increase their crop yields, yet they are being paid about half the going world market rate for their grains.

That situation exists because governments in those countries suppress agricultural prices to appease the minority of their people who live in urban areas, Borlaug said.

'If these countries do not begin boosting their agricultural production, famines will worsen, as the populations exceed the food production capacity," he predicted.

Currently affiliated with the International Maize and Wheat Improvement Center in Mexico, Borlaug is a consultant for the Rockefeller Foundation, in addition to his Cornell professorship.

Cut nitrate runoff - apply nutrients properly

LANCASTER - A growing number of communities have been experiencing excessive levels of nitrates in their wells and other drinking water sources. Much of this is attributed to run off of excessive amounts of applied fertilizer from the planting season.

In response to this problem, Dave Maxfield, Technical Services Director for Hi-Score Plant Food Company, Lancaster, PA, manufacturer of Hi-Score liquid fertilizer, says that "fertilizer residues in water supplies are unnecessary".

He says too many farmers believe that they must broadcast high levels of nitrogen on their soil in order to grow high-yielding corn. Many times the farmer does this only because he always has in the past, or because nitrogen prices are low right now, without looking at two very important points.

- The overall balance of all plant nutrients in the soil, such as lime, potash, or trace elements. Soil testing should always be the first step to growing corn.
- Proper placement and form of fertilizer plant nutrients used at planting time.

When these two points are given proper attention, the farmer will find that he can grow high-yielding corn with less total fertilizer applied, particularly nitrogen. In addition, applying nitrogen in excess of requirements can create deficiencies of other nutrients in the corn stalk which can actually depress yields.

Excess nitrogen fertilization can also decrease yields by producing a watery, weakened stalk, susceptable to lodging, disease, and fungus infections. When the time comes to producing ears at tasseling time, the plants do not have enough vigor and energy to combat insects and disease and still fill out the ears to their full genetic potential.

According to a special report by The Fertilizer Institute in June, 1984. Fertilizer recovery by crops is far from complete. Typically, 50-70 percent of the applied nitrogen, 7 to 15 percent of applied phosphate, and 30-50 percent of applied potash are recovered by the crop". The report continues. Nitrogen is lost mainly through runoff and leaching. Phosphate (and potash), however, attaches to soil particles and is carried away when erosion occurs".

With the need to reduce planting costs because of low farm commodity prices, Maxfield has seen high yielding fields throughout the east, midwest, and south this summer where farmers following the Hi-Score program are using far less than conventional levels of fertilizer to grow corn economically, by using a highly available, balanced, liquid row fertilizer placed in the seed row and also beneath the seed.

The emphasis is on

- Correct placement of plant food,
- Development of a deeper root system that can draw nutrients from a larger soil surface volume, and
- Promoting conditions to increase bacterial activity in the soil so that nitrogen, phosphate, and potash already in the soil and plant residues can be made available to the growing plants, thereby reducing the need for additional applied fertilizer.

Greater nitrogen efficiency is obtained by knifing in 40-60 lbs. nitrogen at planting time, plus sidedressing with 40-50 lbs. nitrogen knifed in when the corn is 15-18" height, than by broadcasting 120-180 lbs. nitrogen on top of the ground at planting time. This reduces weed pressure, consequently reducing the cost for herbicides, reduces nitrogen run off into rivers and streams, and reduces nitrogen losses to the atmosphere.

To illustrate and to put nitrogen into perspective, Maxfield says that a soil with 3% organic matter only in the upper 7 inches contains about 3,000 lbs. nitrogen/Acre. Normally only 2-4% of this nitrogen becomes available during a growing season, so we have 60-120 lbs. nitrogen available for the crop. If we can create conditions so that just 5-6% of this nitrogen can become available by stimulating and promoting bacterial activity, then it is conceivable to expect a release of 150-180 lbs. nitrogen, thereby greatly reducing the required amount of additional applied nitrogen. The same principles apply to potash and phosphate fertilization.

This summer Maxfield has seen 140 bushels corn grown with 45 lbs. additional applied nitrogen, and with 160 lbs. additional applied nitrogen, planted side by side with no significant difference in yield on sandy loam soil. He has seen 160 bushels corn on ground on which no additional potash has been applied for the past seven years. These practices cannot help but save the farmer money compared to conventional practices, and also help to conserve and keep our drinking water clean.

Corn growers upset with export plan

ST LOUIS The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) is extremely disappointed and frustrated over the guidelines and regulations that the U.S Department of Agriculture has framed in attempting to implement and operate the Export Enhancement Program," says George Anselm, NCGA vice president for government relations from Taylorville, Illinois.

"The Export Enhancement Program–commonly called the Export PIK Program–has two billion dollars of Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) owned commodities to use over the next three years This could increase U.S agricultural exports by meeting foreign competitiveness and countering unfair international trade practices," says Anselm But restrictive criteria for the program may prevent it from dealing adequately with the enormous and growing inventory of agricultural commodities

According to USDA, the criteria for the program are.

- sale must result in additionality to the world
- sale must be positive to the U.S. economy
- sale must be commercial
- overall program must be budget neutral
- sale must coincide with overall international trade policy of the U S and supportive of the strategy in anticipation of the upcoming multilateral round of international trade negotiations
- sale may be part of a commercial credit package to a particular country
- and the same must have U S. Government interagency clearance

"We are even stronger in our conviction that the "restrictive criteria" for the Export Enhancement Program may not only doom any possibility of success with the program; rather, the program itself may well jeopardize various U.S. grain export opportunities to other markets.

"Wheat is the only bonus commodity which has been included in the program. Plus there appears only one criteria USDA officials are using to target foreign customers for the program–which is simply to offset the highly subsidized export price of wheat from the European Economic Community (EEC) to several North African wheat import markets. Only Egypt has purchased U.S. wheat under this program and the EEC has simply increased its export subsidies to be more competitive than U.S. wheat under the Export Enhancement Program.

The Soviet Union, under the bilateral U.S.-USSR long term grain agreement, is obligated to purchase a minimum of 147 million bushels of wheat and 157 million bushels of corn each year. The terms of the agreement specify U.S. wheat and corn will be offered to the Soviet Union at prevailing and competitive international price levels. The export price at which U.S. wheat is offered under the restrictive USDA Export Enhancement Program has not been extended to the Soviet Union This may have been a factor in the Soviet Union buying almost 630 million bushels of corn and refusing to purchase the additional 40 million bushels of wheat during the October 1, 1984 to September 30, 1985 period, since corn has not been offered in the USDA Export Enhancement Program.

NCGA has, and continues to support and advocate the goal of more broad-based, ongoing and sustainable export enhancement initiatives," says Anselm. "We have serious reservations about the restrictive and narrow criteria established by USDA officials in development and attempting to implement the USDA Export Enhancement Program. In addition, we will continue to have NCGA Chairman Varel Bailey serve on the USDA advisory committee for this program to work toward achieving our goal for such export enhancement initiatives

Export PIK plan criticized

WASHINGTON – U.S. Rep. Berkley Bedell, D-Iowa, said that the aim of the export bonus program should be to increase grain sales, and he criticized the Agriculture Department for not using the program to sell more grain to the Soviet Union, or to improve our competitive position against Brazil and Argentina.

"The question is are we going to compete," said Bedell, who is chairman of the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Department Operations, Research and Foreign Agriculture that was holding its second day of hearings to investigate the Export Enhancement Program, also known as Export PIK (Payment-In-Kind).

"Witnesses have told my subcommittee that we are antagonizing our bigger customers because we won't give them the same special prices we are offering some customers. The Department has also decided that we're not going to use the program to compete with Argentina and Brazil, two of our biggest competitors "

Testifying before the subcommittee today was Under Secretary Daniel Amstutz of the Agriculture Department and Deputy Assistant Secretary Denis Lamb of the State Department.

"I was very dissatisfied with Mr. Amstutz's answers to the subcommittee's questions," Bedell said. "There are serious problems with the program. As it's designed now, it's simply not working. USDA's targeted approach is doing us more harm than good."

Dairylea honors 10 dairymen

SYRACUSE – Ten dairy farms received top milk quality recognition awards at the Dairylea annual meeting to be held here this week. The cooperative's quality recognition program runs annually from September through August.

The ten highest-scoring dairy farms each received a plaque plus a United States Savings Bond at the marketing co-op's 66th annual meeting according to Willis Day, vice-president for membership, Dairylea.

First place is: Raymond Fix, Corfu, N.Y.

Second: Edwin F.O. Masin, Erin, N.Y.

Third: Richard Hill, Whitney Point, N.Y.

Fourth: Harold C. Snyder, Alfred Station, N.Y.

Fifth: Robert G. & Elsie D. Harrison of Skaneateles, N.Y.

Sixth: Arthur E. Merle, Jr., Merle Farms, Attica, N.Y.

Seventh: Stephen & Herbert Gregory, Hedges Farms, New Berlin, N.Y.

Eighth: Robert J. & Shirley S. Hawley, South Wales, N.Y.

Ninth: Walter & Betty Wiseman, Mayville, N.Y.

Tenth: Marion J. and Darryl Adamson, Geneseo, N.Y.

Seven additional farms qualified for the year-long program recognizing highest quality milk production. Plaques for high scores will be presented at local meetings to the following:

- Dean A. & Ruth E. Delavan, Cincinnatus, N.Y.
- William & Bernard H. Schram, Lyons, N.Y.
- Kenneth G. Bryan, Fabius, N.Y.
- Vincent A. Canfield, Equinunk, Pa.
- Charles Flock & Sons, Colts Neck, N.J.
- Frank Hartwig, Olean, N.Y.
- William J. & Robert J. Redmond, Port Byron, N.Y.

Brad Ryan, director of field quality control for Dairylea Cooperative, said that more than 200 other farms qualified for the recognition program during one or more quarters of the year.

Ryan explained that the unique program's quality criteria include: bulk tank capacity, temperature control, milk flavor, odor and appearance, and cleanliness. Three different laboratory tests also must receive high scores.

Dairylea had $358 million in net sales during its recent fiscal year ending March 31, 1985. The cooperative has farmer members in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Western New England.

Dairy Promotion Program advisory board sets meeting date

HARRISBURG – Seven new members of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program advisory board will attend the first meeting of the 1985-86 funding year Oct. 31 to Nov. 1 in State College, according to State Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb.

"The new members were nominated by dairy farmers to represent their 15,000 fellow dairymen as the board considers the use of promotional funds to increase sales of milk and dairy products. Local groups and organizations throughout the state will also receive funding from the program in the coming year," said Grubb.

The 20-member board oversees the collection and distribution of funds from the $2 million PDPP initiated in 1983 and funded entirely by Pennsylvania dairy producers.

The National Dairy Promotion Program, along with local programs, received overwhelming support to continue its promotional efforts in the passage of the recent national dairy referendum. The continuation of the PDPP was contingent upon approval of the national program.

New members and their terms include: Janice Burkholder of Chambersburg, Franklin County, three-year term; Wilmer B Campbell of Halifax, Dauphin County, one-year term; Paul Corbin of Reynoldsville, Jefferson County, one-year term; Albert L. Hack of Berwick, Columbia County, one-year term; Dr. John Plummer of Chalfont, Bucks County, three-year term; David E Roth of Loysville, Perry County, two-year term; and Christian E. Wolff Jr. of Millville, Columbia County, three-year term.

Other representatives on the board include Carl Brown of Pine Grove, Donald Cook of Drums, Donald Duncan of Robesonia, James Harteis of Ebensburg, R LaVerne McCarty of Forksville, Ernest O. Miller of Hamburg, Beverly Minor of Washington, Marylyn Shaffer of Lake Ariel, Richard Shellenberger of Manheim, Bryon Sollenberger of Curryville, David Stetler of Mifflintown, Elder Vogel of Rochester, and Thad Woodward of Canton.

According to program guidelines, board members serve varying terms of office to ensure diversified representation among the state's dairy organizations, cooperatives and individual dairymen. Nominations will be accepted again in September 1986. Term lengths were determined by random selection. Board members are limited to serving two consecutive three-year terms.

Order 2 price set at $12.37

NEW YORK – Dairy farmers who supplied milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during September 1985 will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $12.37 per hundredweight (26.6 cents per quart). Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson also stated that the price was $12.27 in August 1985 and $13.74 in September 1984. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive fund returned a total of $4,043,013.29, or $.434 per hundredweight, to the dairy farmers' uniform price for September. This fund was generated by reducing the uniform price paid to producers during the high-production spring months.

A total of 16,486 dairy farmers supplied the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area with 930,795,739 pounds of milk during September 1985. This was an increase of 5.9 percent (about 52 million pounds) from last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $116,790,186.39. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers (handlers) used 386,518,213 pounds of milk for Class I, 41.5 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test, and skim milks. For September 1985, handlers paid $13.35 per hundredweight (28.7 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $14.42 a year ago.

The balance (544,277,526 pounds or 58.5 percent) was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream, and yogurt. Handlers paid $11.18 per hundredweight for this milk.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For September 1985, there was a price differential of 16.2 cents for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received within the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

Order 4 price set at $12.55

ALEXANDRIA, VA – Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine today announced a September 1985 base milk price of $12.55 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $11.10. The weighted average September price was $12.49 and the butterfat differential for the month was 16.2 cents. The base milk price was up one cent from August but was $1.30 below last September. The weighted average price was up three cents from August and was $1.39 below last September.

Mr. Shine said that the September volume of producer milk pooled under the order, 510.7 million pounds, was up over 44 million pounds or 9.5 percent from last September. The average daily delivery per producer of 2,540 pounds in September was up 251 pounds or 11 percent from a year earlier. A total of 6,702 producers supplied Order 4 pool handlers during the month, 88 fewer than last September Class I producer milk totaled 241 3 million pounds and accounted for 47 25 percent of total producer milk receipts in September. The September 1984 Class I utilitization was 50.05 percent The volume of Class I producer milk was up 3 4 percent from a year ago. The volume of Class II milk was up 36.5 million pounds or almost 16 percent from a year earlier. Base milk accounted for 88.94 percent of total September producer milk deliveries, down significantly from 94.68 percent last September The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.55 percent in September, down slightly from a year ago.

Order 4 pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 199 8 million pounds during September, an increase of 0.6 percent from a year earlier, after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition

Mini-billboards get the word out big.

ADA/DC offers mini-billboards to county promotion groups

WILLIAMSPORT – In its latest promotion effort, the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council is offering mini-billboards to Pennsylvania county promotion groups. The billboards advertise milk and are ideal for use on barns.

The signs are 6 feet by 10 feet and made of metal. ADADC has offered the signs to county dairy promotion groups located throughout Pennsylvania. Groups which make use of the signs must provide a site which is strategically located on a major highway. The billboards are offered free of charge.

"Milk's Got More" is the theme used on the signs. This ties in with the advertising theme of television ads being purchased by both ADADC and the National Dairy Board. Also, it enables ADADC to bring consumers one unified ad message.

So far the billboards have been placed in about 20 locations in Pennsylvania. A limited number are still available. Interested groups can propose a location for the signs by calling the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council at (717) 323-2552.

ADA DC District 16 will meet to review advertising program

WILLIAMSPORT Local dairymen will review their portion of the nationwide dairy advertising program at the District 16 meeting of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council on Oct. 29 at the Whitneyville Methodist Church at 7:30 p.m.

ADADC is the local milk promotion agency for dairy farmers in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey. Their 1985 advertising budget of $10.7 million was used to fund promotion programs for milk, cheese and butter.

During the meeting a film reviewing the history of milk advertising will be shown. Also included in the meeting will be an explanation of how ADADC's local programs coincide with those of the National Dairy Board to bring consumers a unified ad program.

A review of Dairy Council's nutrition education efforts will also be provided. A roast beef dinner costing $6 will proceed the meeting.

Daniel Baker from Covington is director of District 16, which encompasses Potter, Tioga, Bradford, Sullivan and McKean counties. All dairy producers are invited.

For further information and tickets contact Charles Kier at 717-323-2552, or call ADADC's tollfree hotline at 800-HOT-MILK

PFA hits House's dairy title

CAMP HILL – The head of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) has criticized the dairy provisions of the farm bill recently approved by the U.S. House of Representatives.

Keith Eckel, president of the statewide, general farm organization which represents over 23,300 farm families said PFA opposes farm bill provisions for a diversion and producer assessment program. Eckel said, "The dairy diversion was tried before and did not work. At the 1985 annual meeting of our national affiliate, the American Farm Bureau Federation, voting delegates adopted policy opposing any government assessment of dairy producers. We will be working to amend the House dairy language in the conference committee; we expect to be called after Senate farm bill action is completed."

Eckel said PFA favors a dairy program which links dairy support levels to the amount of government surplus purchases. "Under the House version," Eckel said, "dairymen will be forced to bear a large unknown financial burden to pay for diversion payments, a whole herd buyout, and any government surplus purchases over 5 billion lbs."

The farm bill dairy program scheduled to be considered in the Senate later this month is more in line with American Farm Bureau and PFA policy, Eckel said.

Dairy Marketing

How Much Is A Cow Worth?

I can't help but be a little bemused, or should I say amused, after reading the report in the Holstein World on the Hanover Hill "dispersal." That surely must have been one whale of a sale! Three-hundred head of Holsteins of all ages sold for an average of over $23,000. The top cow brought $1,450,000. Five head brought over $200,000, and fifteen other cows sold for $100,000 or more.

Now these were not the run-of-the-mill critters that you and I chase out of the barn every morning. They are the "glamor girls," the ones that we all dream about, like someday waking up and walking into our barn and finding them all standing in a row, gently murmuring their love and admiration for the guy that is so smart and handsome and successful.

If only I could have been there to experience the thrill of seeing so much money change hands. Just reading about it made my very thin head of hair tingle with nostalgia, when memories of the poor excuses for hamburger that I used to milk clouded the recall screen that is getting as thin as my hair. It isn't just the money that intrigues us, it is the wonderment of just how much of it will ever come back to the guys that spent it.

I guess the ones that can set up the next sale and gather enough other suckers under their tent with money to burn will be the ones that profit. Watch for the future issues, and scan the pretty pictures for the next glamor girl of the cow stable.

Now don't get me wrong. I can appreciate a big, strong, lovely, shiny, sleek, walking milk factory too. It is pure joy to walk down the center aisle of the barn, any barn, and oggle the square rumps and prettily hung mammaries on a long row of straight-legged beauties. Especially if they have just been scrubbed and groomed, and are standing on a sweet-smelling bed of fresh shavings, daintily munching on sweet clover blossoms.

But somehow it always seems that the coaxing chant of the auctioneer pins a richer price tag than I can afford on the cow I really want. So I go home with the depressed complex of a bad dream hanging overhead. Someday, I'll bring home one of those prima donnas if it takes every last cent in the old sock!

Now what really turns me on is when I hear that one of my neighbors just sold his best cow for something fantastic like $10,000. It even sometimes happens that one will bring as much as $25,000 or more. That kind of thing helps to remind us that it could happen to anyone. Even a blind hog sometimes finds an acorn! Maybe I'll get lucky and breed a princess that a well-heeled prince will buy for big bucks. Anyone can dream.

The truth is, not very many of us will ever sell a cow for a million dollars. Thank goodness we won't pay that much either. Maybe a few of those glamorous dollies are actually worth what they bring in the auction ring. But I'll bet my bottom bucks that the only way to get a decent return on their investment is to advertize, ballyhoo, and slither with snake oil. And hope another lover of pretty cows, with lots of money will succumb to the enchantment of the auctioneer's song.

Meanwhile, you and I can take full advantage of the finest assembly of genetic bloodlines in the world. And it need not cost us an arm and a leg either. Some of those young bulls begging for us to give them a chance to court our pretty young heifers are carrying the same genes that the million-dollar dollies are. Breed 'em smart, grow 'em well, and who knows? Maybe you will top the sale too someday.

Especially if a tornado is hovering around or an earthquake spikes the sensual reaction to spirited bidding, like it did at Hanover Hill.

Market grant awarded to Iowa

WASHINGTON – Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced that a $73,468 federal grant has been awarded to the Iowa Department of Agriculture to help that state develop wholesale and retail markets for its farm products.

Block said the grant, requested by Iowa's Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Lounsberry, will be used to fund surveys of Iowa fruit and vegetable producers to determine their interest in developing centralized post-harvest handling and marketing facilities in the state. The surveys will determine producer interest in temporary storage facilities; cooperative marketing services; packaging services; direct marketing facilities; and computerized marketing information services.

In addition to the surveys, Block said the grant will be used to develop permanent, full-time metropolitan farmers' markets. In a 1985 survey, 100 percent of the respondents who currently do not have such markets asked for assistance in developing them.

The grant was awarded under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Federal-State Marketing Improvement Program, which provides federal matching funds to qualifying states for research and experiments in marketing, transportation and distribution of agriculture products.

"By encouraging direct marketing of agriculture products by farmers, cooperatives and commodity associations, USDA marketing grants can help states increase marketing outlets and farm income," said Block.

Penn State hosts teleconference

UNIVERSITY PARK – The Pennsylvania State University Extension Service is sponsoring a satellite television conference in cooperation with Oklahoma State University through the newly organized National University Teleconference Network (NUTN). The conference will be held in the radio and television studio, 117 Ag Administration building, on the University Park campus.

The conference will be divided into two sessions, one focusing on Bovine Respiratory Disease, the other on Handling and Management Techniques for Stocker Calves. Both will be held from 8 to 10 p.m., the BRD conference on October 24 and the Handling/Management conference on October 30.

Veterinarians, county agents, and producers are encouraged to attend one or both sessions. These topics are of particular interest because of the recently introduced Keystone Label Feeder Calf Health Certification program. A short discussion of this new program will follow each session.

Light refreshments will be available, and there is no charge for attendance. Because of limited space, please notify Penn State's Veterinary Science Department at (814) 863-2160 if you plan to attend. Continuing education credit is available to veterinarians.

Farm Bill passed by House

with "blended credit" export programs. The bill also broadens the purposes for which an existing intermediate (three-to-10-year) export credit program can be used and directs the Secretary to make direct and guaranteed intermediate loans of at least $500 million a year, 25 percent of which would be direct loans. A previously-authorized export credit revolving fund is reauthorized under the bill with new provisions under which the fund would be financed by allowing it to collect repayments from direct export credit loans made by the USDA in earlier years. Also, the Agriculture Department would be directed to operate a one-year pilot test of barter programs.

To expand overseas food aid and trade promotion programs, the legislation extends the Food for Peace program and provides a $200 million annual increase in the authorization for commodity shipments under the donation phase of that program. Further, the bill expands aid operations under a related program which provides surplus commodities for needy people abroad. A brief section on cargo preference regulations states that nothing in the farm bill shall be construed to grant cargo preference exemptions to USDA export programs which had not been exempted prior to Sept. 13, 1985 by the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978. Trade-related studies required by the bill include one to determine the impact on U.S. agriculture of imports of Brazilian ethanol, and another on specific unfair trade practices by other countries which affect American exports.

CONSERVATION

The conservation section includes new programs to protect fragile soils and wetlands for future generations and move a substantial amount of erodible land into less intensive use.

– For highly erodible land which has not been cultivated since 1980, the bill provides a "sodbuster" program to discourage plowing up fragile soils. If a farmer planted a crop on fragile land in violation of the terms of the bill, he would lose price supports and other farm benefits for all of his crops. Highly erodible land which was used for crops between 1981 and 1985 would be exempt from the sodbuster penalties, but this "grandfather clause" exemption would disappear for any affected producer who fails to begin applying a conservation plan by 1990 or two years after completion of a soil survey of his land, whichever is later. Producers would have until 1995 to complete application of the conservation plan. A companion "swampbuster" provision would deny farm benefits to producers who convert wetlands to crop use in the future.

– For highly erodible soils which are already in crop use, the bill provides a long-term Conservation Reserve program under which farmers would contract to return up to 25 million of such acres to less-intensive uses such as grass or trees. The Secretary of Agriculture would be required to offer farmers a chance to sign contracts under which up to 20 million acres would be shifted to less-intensive uses for periods of not less than 10 years, and contracts for up to five million acres would be offered for periods of up to 10 years. In return for compliance with the contracts, growers would get cash or "in kind" land rental payments (established on a bid basis) plus payments covering a part of the cost of needed land treatment measures. No more than 25 percent of the land in any county could be enrolled in the Reserve. There would be a $50,000 limit on annual payments to farmers under Reserve contracts.

Also, the bill includes an extension of the Resources Conservation Act, requiring the Agriculture Department to produce assessments of soil and water resources in 1995 and again in 2005 to help policymakers develop long-term plans for protecting those vital national resources. A further section permits governors of states which have state laws to protect farmland from urban development to file suits in cases where the federal government has not followed procedures of a federal farmland protection law. (The federal law requires, among other points, that government agencies must consider alternatives before taking actions which result in shifting farmland to nonfarm use.)

CREDIT AND RURAL DEVELOPMENT

The bill reauthorizes and in some cases revises federal farm credit and rural development programs and also includes discretionary authority for a program of planting-season advance commodity loans to farmers beginning in 1986. Authorization ceilings include annual caps for the 1986 through 1988 fiscal years of $3.15 billion for Farmers Home Administration farm operating loans including $2.5 billion in insured direct loans and the remainder in guaranteed loans. For farm ownership loans, the bill authorizes $700 million annually including $650 million in direct insured loans in fiscal 1986 with all loans in the next two years to be made through federal guarantees for private lenders. For emergency disaster loans there would be ceilings of $1.3 billion in fiscal 1986, $700 million in 1987 and $600 million in 1988. For rural development programs, the bill authorizes $340 million annually for three years in insured water and waste disposal loans and $250 million annually in guaranteed industrial development loans plus $115 million in insured community facility loans. The bill also provides a new method of determining eligibility for water and sewer loans and grants based on community income and health and sanitary needs. The legislation also includes a provision designed to give buyers of farm products "clear title" to their purchases while still allowing lenders to protect their liens on farm products.

Also the Agriculture Department would be ordered to observe a number of new restrictions on the way it handles farmland acquired by the government in future foreclosures of FmHA loans. Among other provisions, USDA would be forbidden to sell such land if the sales would depress local farmland values, and any sales made would have to be–as far as practicable–in family-size units. Where the Secretary leases or operates foreclosed land, he would have to make leases on a competitive bid basis, giving priority in leases to former owners of the land, family farmers and beginning farmers. A further provision authorizes the Secretary to accept easements on marginal land from financially-distressed FmHA borrowers and to devote the land to public recreational use. Similar use could be made of land which FmHA acquires in loan foreclosures. The bill requires a study of procedures used by FmHA for farmer appeals when loan applications are rejected, and a further provision creates a new, speedier appeals sytem using informal meetings. Other amendments require FmHA to process loan applications within 45 days, to provide funds on approved loans within five days, and to continue the agency's small farmer training and technical assistance program. The bill also requires the President to submit recommendations to Congress by November 1, 1985, for the continued sound operation of the Farm Credit System.

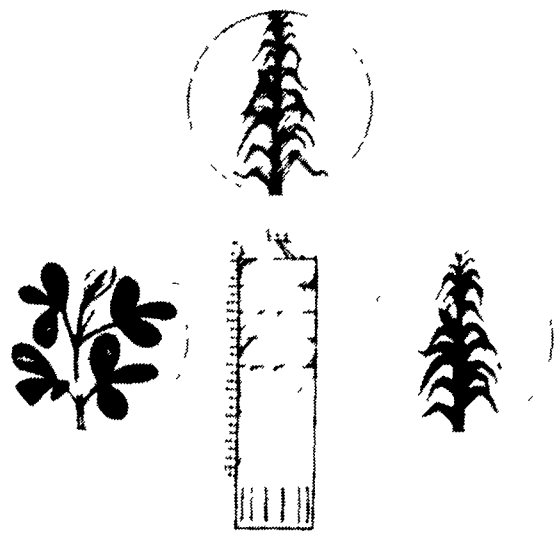
...OR TO ERECT A HARVESTORE® SYSTEM FOR NEXT SPRING'S HAYLAGE AND FILL IT WITH THIS FALL'S CORN SILAGE!

Silage processed through a Harvestore® System is consistently good. It maintains a sweet smell throughout the feeding process. You can usually see the difference; you can smell the difference; and your cattle can taste the difference.

While the Harvestore® System helps reduce traditional silage loss; its greatest advantage is 365 day-a-year feeding capability.



Bottom unloading permits filling and feeding any time. Fill in early fall with corn silage, refill after grain harvest with lower moisture silage or stover, refill in spring with haylage. Most Harvestore® System owners average at least one-and-one-half fillings per year. This year-round storage and feeding capacity can mean greater returns on land, crop and livestock investments.

The results you may achieve with your Harvestore System depend primarily upon your management skills and may vary from successful results achieved by others. Any application to a particular farming operation requires the advice of qualified experts and is subject to limitations of good management, weather and other conditions present at the individual location.

The Farm Credit System.

Years of show ring experience earn Beattie May Ball respect of her peers.

-BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

BUNKER HILL, W.V. – Beattie May Ball was seven years old when she stepped into a cattle show ring for the first time. At the other end of the halter was an equally inexperienced showring participant, the youngster's purebred Guernsey calf.

The year was 1919.

That showring appearance was to be the first in a lifetime of cattle showing experiences for this plucky farm woman.

One of three daughters of Allen C. May, Beattie has since become a familiar face on the Middle Atlantic cattle show and sale circuit. While judges, cattle trends and known names in the business have come and gone, the respect that her knowledge of fitting and showing commands continues among purebred breeders.

The May family operated a relatively large dairy operation, maintaining a milking herd of about 40 head. A highlight of each year for Beattie and her sisters Dolly and Catherine was the showring competition at the York Fair.

"We would drive the cattle from the farm to the fairgrounds," she recalls, a process that took many hours to cover the several-mile distance. 'The animals had to be clipped and washed at home, because there was no place then to do that at the fair."

Clipping, too, was a more tedious job than today, since the clipper mechanism had to be operated by hand-turning.

"When the Fair got electricity, we got electric clippers," Beattie recounts.

"Well, we didn't know any better," she jokes, comparing those early years of showing to today's truck and trailer hauling, high-pressure washers and vacuum blow dryers.

While showing was even harder work than it is today, a show string of 18 or 20 head was not uncommon. One reason for large herd exhibits was a class known as the County Class, for animals bred by county breeders. But animals exhibited in that class could not be shown in any other area, making it necessary to bring additional entries to compete in other categories.

Then, the fair ran from Monday through Saturday, with the cattle remaining the full six-day period.

"On Sunday, we always had lots of help at home to get ready. The spring wagon would be loaded with supplies; but the fair supplied all the hay and straw, so that didn't have to be hauled there," she relates.

Part of exhibiting cattle includes bookwork, such as checking health and registry certificates. Beattie and Mike Welsh get the showstring papers in order for the family's Brown Swiss entries.

Forking manure is one phase of cattle showing that has remained virtually unchanged over Beattie's tenure on the show circuit.

Equal employment for women is certainly not a new concept to Beattie. Since the May family had only daughters, the trio of sisters learned at early ages to pitch in doing whatever chores demanded attention.

"I did what the boys would have done on a farm," is Beattie's description of her farm responsibilities as a youngster.

Still, there were probably not too many young ladies who received their own team of horses as an eighth-birthday present. Beattie remembers well the set of bay geldings, Duke and Doc, that her father gave her at that tender age.

"I was so proud of them," she fondly remembers. "I used to do a lot of harrowing with that team."

In spite of the lack of today's labor-saving devices, life was not entirely all work and no play for the May sisters.

"We took a lot of hayrides for groups, and once that word got around, it was hard to get stopped. Hayrides helped earn a little extra money and they were fun."

One particular booking that still is fresh in Beattie's memory was by a group that scheduled a hayride for forty people. They neglected to mention that each would then be bringing an additional friend. While the event went off as planned, it was one hayride with a lot of "togetherness" as double the expected number squeezed into the wagons.

"Father used to take us along to cow sales. We went to banquets and to the parties that the Guernsey breeders had. And we danced a lot; we used to go to the Valencia," she adds, referring to the famed York night spot noted for hosting the then-popular big bands.

Showing horses at the fair, though, was one of Beattie's favorite pastimes. At times, that created a problem for Beattie and Catherine, who also enjoyed horse exhibiting, because the horses and cattle would be scheduled for showing at the same times. Particular favorites that she recalls were three- and five-gaited individuals, and a prized Tennessee Walker.

When her father died in 1949, Beattie and Catherine took over operation of the family farm and continued running the dairy herd for the next four years. When Catherine announced her wedding engagement, the sisters began making plans for sale of the herd.

With the sale scheduled for October 1953, the May showstring reached a record number that year at the fair. Singlehandedly, Beattie exhibited 32 head.

Out of the milking business, Beattie purchased a home north of York, and merchandised cattle for a number of years while assisting friends and acquaintenances with farm work. She also handled painting and wallpapering jobs for local homeowners.

Beattie's cattle handling talents were not about to be forgotten, however. The year following the sale of the family herd, Avalong Farms employed her to assist with their fair show string. Similar jobs followed, and she traveled occasionally, exhibiting for a local Brown Swiss herd.

Through her cattle involvement, Beattie met and married Jack Ball, former manager of Blakeford Guernsey Farm on Maryland's Eastern Shore, and a self-employed cattle hoof trimming specialist.

With Jack's expertise on feet and legs, and Beattie's extensive background in fitting and handling show cattle, the couple provided an ideal team for assisting purebred exhibitors on the show circuit. Among the annual shows they have worked on a regular basis are the Pennsylvania Farm Show and the prestigious Harrisburg Eastern National Dairy Show.

Between shows, they were frequently booked to assist with preparing for cattle sales.

"We worked many Holstein sales for Doty Remsburg's company, and with John Merrymen's Guernsey sales," relates Beattie.

Married 17 years, the Balls now enjoy "semi-retirement" on their Bunker Hill Farm. Beattie maintains a large garden, tends their three and one-half acre lawn and enjoys the companionship of the couple's only livestock, two pet dogs.

But, a few times every show season, Beattie packs up clipping and fitting gear, and heads out the road to lend a hand to dairy friends. The "barbering" of show cattle continues to be more of an art than a science, and veteran clippers are hard to find. It's a skill that Beattie, who credits her training to "just watching how others did it," keeps honed by accepting these few jobs each year.

"I'll do it as long as I can," she figures. While an eye problem did curtail her activities earlier this year, that condition has improved, and enabled her to keep her hand in a few of the fall shows

With more than 60 years of showring expertise, Beattie's advice to novice exhibitors is based on sound experience.

Don't give up until you have that ribbon in your hand," she admonishes interested youngsters. She can quickly back up that advice with anecdotes about exhibitors she remembers who let their animals 'fall apart" in a

An accomplished cattle fitter, Beattie Ball remembers clipping with the hand-turned clipper. When the York Fair hooked up to electricity, her family was quick to purchase one of the electrical clippers.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

It is now 15 years since I started writing this column for Lancaster Farming newspaper. That means that I've shared my life with thousands of subscibers in some 780 articles

When I started writing, we had four children at home and two in college. Now these six are scattered from Old Town, ME, to Seattle, WA, and they all have jobs and their own homes. Meanwhile, my husband and I are still plugging away on the dairy farm.

I've decided to compare two issues of Lancaster Farming--one published in October 1970 and another in October 1985. There is a big difference and not only in size The older one had 28 pages compared to today's, which has 184 pages There were two pages devoted to Livestock Market & Auction News in the old issue and seven pages in today's

In 1970 a dairy show was held near Ephrata and the three top cows sold for $1,700, $950 and $785, while the Manheim Fair grand champion hog brought a record $1 42 per pound There were only two public sales in the October 1970 paper but today's October issue has some 60 listed Even then there was a Mailbox Market with 19 entries compared to 264 in 1985

Some things remain the same Doris Thomas had an article entitled, Vegetables Are Vital To Good Nutrition." And, an IFYE Ambassador wrote a report of her experiences in Scotland. Farm Women Societies reported their monthly meetings and an interview with a Farm Market owner produced five recipes.

National FFA president to visit NJ

NEW BRUNSWICK, NJ – Steve Meredith, the 57th national president of the Future Farmers of America will be visiting New Jersey state and chapter officers on Oct. 25 to 27 during the Annual New Jersey Chapter Officer Leadership Training Conference The conference will be held at YMCA Camp Bernie, Port Murray, NJ.

The national FFA president and five other national officers serve nearly one-half million FFA members Steve has had the opportunity to visit much of the United States, Japan, and China to learn how agriculture has been influenced through many changing times.

Lancaster farming newspaper was first published in November 1955 which means that soon it will be 30 years old. Its subscribers have grown to some 42,000 and they are scattered all over the United States No one knows what the next 15 years will bring, but we expect the newspaper will continue to bring up-to-date news to farmers everywhere show lineup and consequently lost a placing or two as a result.

Beattie further recommends "keep one eye on the judge, and one eye on the animal, and keep the animal's head up--even if your arm's breaking."

Most important, though, she stresses the value of "being a good loser," and relates one of her past experiences.

"The last year we showed cattle, we didn't even get a blue ribbon at the Bloomsburg show. My sister still went and congratulated the judge on his good judging."

And one final word from this veteran· "You have to like to work."

Lancaster 4-H'ers win at state horse show

LANCASTER – Four Lancaster County 4-H members received first place awards in the State 4-H Horse Show held Oct. 4 to 6 in Harrisburg's State Farm Show Complex.

More than 500 contestants from most counties vied for awards. Members and their horses, all winners in county and district competition, were entered in 68 production classes and 32 performance classes.

County winners and their placings in performance classes were: Doug Deibler, Lititz, fourth in grooming and showmanship–junior division; Mary Elizabeth Ewing, R2 Columbia, seventh in saddle seat pleasure horses; Alida Farrington, Lititz, first in grooming and showmanship--senior division, second in stock seat equitation–senior division and a fifth in western pleasure horses; Alison Farrington, Lititz, second in stock seat equitation--junior division and sixth in pleasure pairs; Brook Sweigart, Denver, first in saddle seat equitation–senior division and Janet Wheat, Lititz, fourth in grooming and showmanship–senior division.

In 4-H Horse Production classes were: Alison Farrington, Lititz, first in appaloosa yearling gelding; Timothy Kauffman, Pequea, second in Arabian colt of this year; Brook Sweigart, Denver, first in hackney yearling colt; Melissa Harris, Manheim, second in hunter two-year-old filly; and Vickie Creighton, Manheim, first in hunter two-year-old gelding.

Several other horse club members also competed in the state contest and received participation ribbons. They were Whitney Christian, Marietta; Michelle Harris, Manheim; Ken Sherlaw, Lancaster; Chad Stoltzfus, Peach Bottom; and Jason Watts, Denver.

Extension agent Jay Irwin pointed out that contest classes gave members an opportunity to display their skills in horsemanship and properly groom a horse for showing.

Irwin emphasized that the primary purposes of the state 4-H horse program are to develop riding skills, gain self-confidence by competing in shows, receive training in leadership, and learn the meaning of responsibility by caring for an animal. The state show climaxes the year for nearly 8,000 Pennsylvania 4-H members enrolled in horse and pony project work.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board. Since fall is the season when apples are harvested and October is National Apple Month, now is a good time to try the Apple and Almond Cake below.

National Apple Month is an 80-year tradition dating back to 1905 when James Handley, a Mississippi river boat captain hosted the first National Apple Day..

In 1924 the event grew into National Apple week as the result of efforts made by New York fruit producers in honor of their fall crop. Since then the annual affair has grown into a month-long celebration highlighted by apple festivals and promotions throughout 40 of the 50 states which commercially produce apples

Apple and Almond Cake

5 small tart apples
3 tablespoons water
Sugar to taste
2 cups ground almonds (about ½ pound)
2 whole eggs
1 egg white
1 egg yolk
1 stick butter (½ cup)
1¼ cups sugar
1 lemon (grated rind only)
2 cups heavy cream, chilled

In a saucepan combine 5 small tart apples, peeled, cored and chopped, with 3 tablespoons of water. Bring the water to a boil over moderately high heat and cook the apples, covered, until they are very soft. Cook the mixture, uncovered, stirring until it is a thick puree. Cool.

In a bowl, combine 2 cups ground almonds with 2 whole eggs and 1 egg yolk, all lightly beaten. In a saucepan, melt 1 stick of butter (½ cup). Add 1¼ cups sugar and the grated rind of one lemon. Stir the mixture into the almond paste. In a small bowl beat 1 egg white until it holds stiff peaks and fold it into the batter. Transfer the apple puree to a 9-inch round cake tin, 1½ inches deep. Spoon the batter over the puree and bake the cake in a preheated oven at 300°F. for one hour. Turn the cake out on a rack and let it cool. Decorate the cake with whipped cream

Before you buy a new tractor, ask for a part of it.

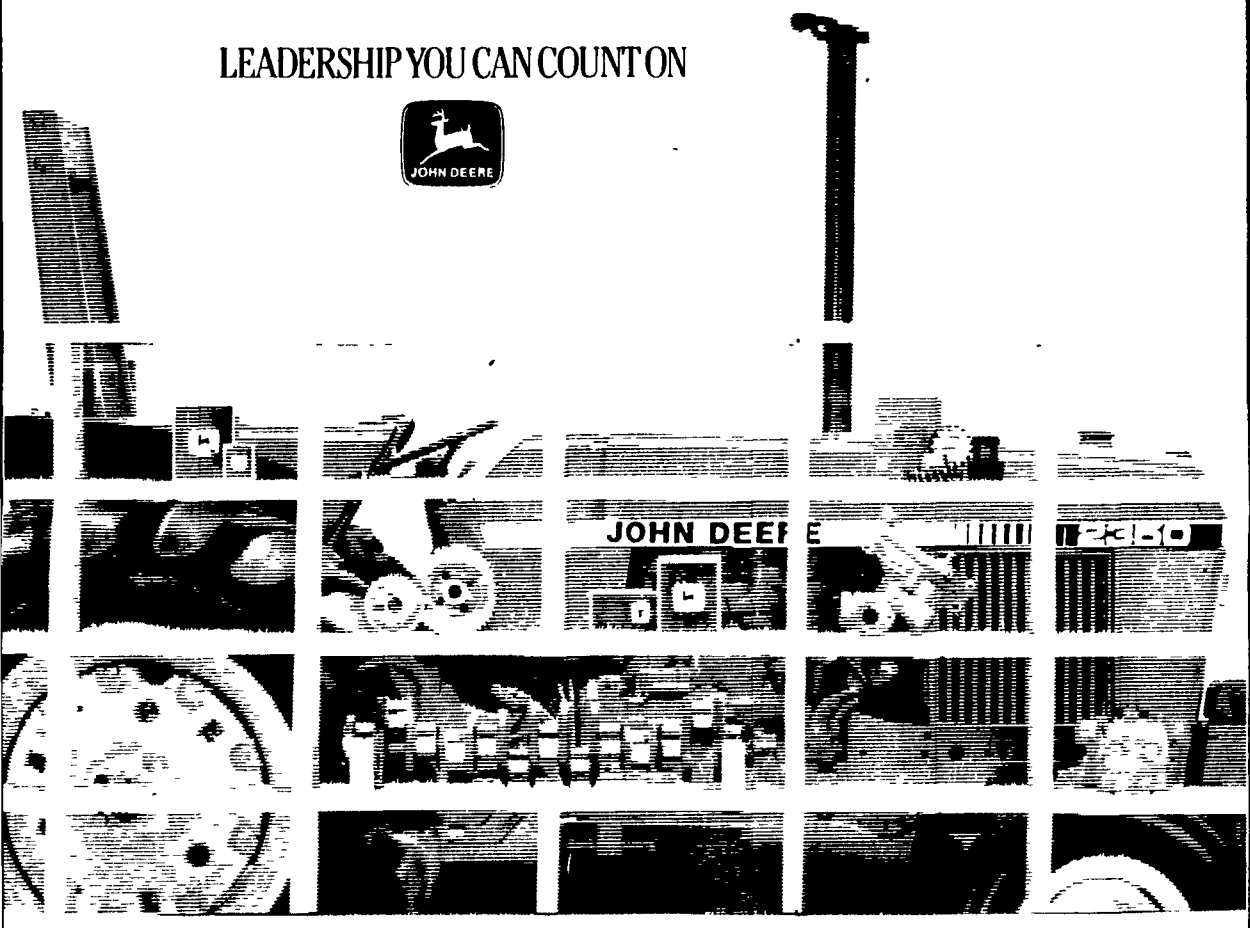
Don't make it an easy part either. Choose one that perhaps only a John Deere dealer might have in stock (or have quick access to)...a 20-year-old tractor part, for example...or a hydrostatic ground drive part.

The point is when you buy a piece of equipment as important as a tractor, combine, baler, or a planter, you simply have to have parts and service backup. And you have to have it now...not two days or maybe one week later. That's why John Deere dealers average a fill rate across the counter of nearly 99 percent...within 24 hours or less.

Simply put, this means that when you walk up to a John Deere parts counter, you're not going to get a bunch of "what if's" or "maybe's." We make sure of it.

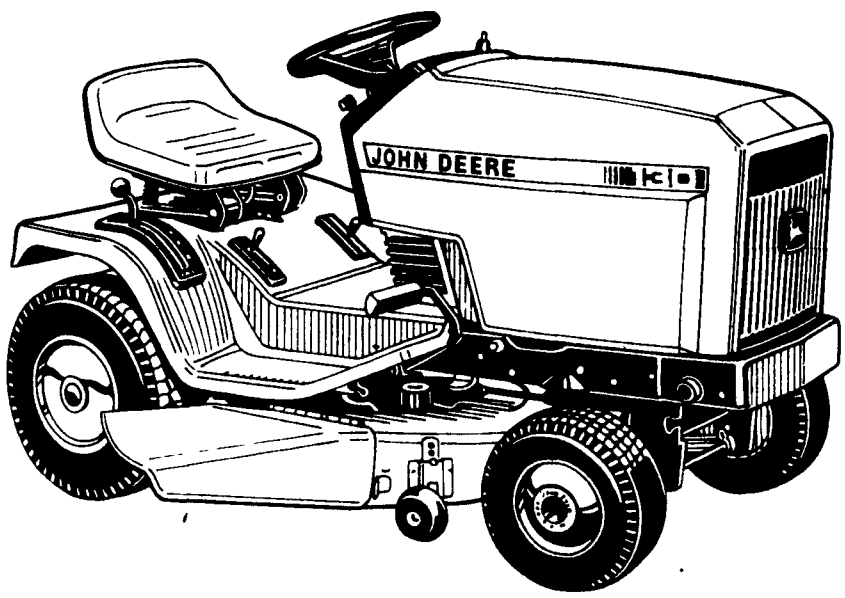
LEADERSHIP YOU CAN COUNT ON

JOHN DEERE



INTRODUCING THE NEW JOHN DEERE 100 SERIES

The $115* you don't spend this year will buy a lot more lawn tractor than last year



New John Deere 100 Series tractors offer you a lot more than last year's 100 Series and in most cases for a lot less

Five models in the brand new line sell for $140 to $170 less and two models sell for the same suggested list prices as their 1985 counterparts

What's new for '86? Virtually everything. Sleek styling with new hoodlines and sporty 2 spoke steering wheel. Fully enclosed 9 to 17 hp engines for quieter, more powerful performance. Full pressure lubrication and overhead valves on most models for better productivity and longer engine life.

Choose 5 speed gear drive. Or no clutch, one lever hydrostatic drive. Either way, the mowing is easy with sector and pinion steering, tight 21 to 23 inch turning radius and 30, 38 or 46 inch mower deck.

See us today. And get a real run for your money with a new John Deere.

*Average reduction in suggested list price of 1986 100 Series tractors compared to 1985 models. Some models have larger individual savings, others are the same price. Actual selling price of each model may vary by dealer.

HEARTY COD AND GRAPEFRUIT SALAD

One pound frozen cod fillets (sole, haddock or flounder may be substituted)
2 grapefruit, peeled and cut in sections
1 avocado, peeled and sliced
1 carrot, grated
Leaf lettuce
Lemon yogurt

Do not thaw frozen fish. Brush fish lightly with margarine or oil; bake in non-stick or lightly greased shallow pan in center of oven for 20 minutes. (For fresh fish, lay fillet flat and measure at thickest part. Bake at 450°F. for 10 minutes per inch of thickness.) Chill fish and break into chunks. Arrange grapefruit, avocado, and carrot on leaf lettuce. Top with fish. Serve with lemon yogurt.

VEGETABLE SALAD

1 medium head cabbage, thinly sliced
3 tablespoons coarse or Kosher salt
½ pound carrots, sliced across to form thin circles
2 green peppers, diced in ¼-inch cubes
1 bunch radishes, thinly sliced
2 cucumbers, thinly sliced
½ cup oil
½ cup vinegar
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon paprika

Slice cabbage, put into a large bowl and sprinkle with coarse salt Add other ingredients and stir. Let stand about 15 minutes. Add oil, vinegar, sugar, pepper, garlic powder and paprika. Cover and refrigerate. This will keep for several weeks in the refrigerator Makes about 15 servings

PANNED BROCCOLI

1 pound fresh broccoli
2 tablespoons oil
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1/8 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Wash broccoli and trim. Peel stems and cut into 2-inch lengths Separate florets by cutting into halves or quarters so they are of uniform size. Blanch (parboil about 10 minutes for stems, less for florets). Plunge into cold water for about 3 minutes to set the color and texture. Saute onion and garlic in oil. Add drained broccoli and cook gently until it is tender-crisp. This will take only a few minutes. Season with salt and pepper and lemon juice. Serve at once.

Watching for fires from towers is a lonely way of life

High above Lick Knob in southern West Virginia, fire lookout Lawrence (Bud) Harris uses a sighting device attached to a stationary circular map in his 50-foot tower to pinpoint the location of a "smoke" on the horizon. Harris, who's been in his solitary part-time occupation for the past 12 years, is one of a declining number of firewatchers nationwide. They're being phased out by airplanes, advances in technology and budget cuts.

BY MERCER CROSS
National Geographic News Service

LICK KNOB, W. Va. – Life in a fire tower isn't recommended for the fainthearted or the sociable.

But it seems to agree with Lawrence (Bud) Harris, who's been manning the 50-foot tower atop this 3,250-foot ridge for the past 12 years. The ridge is in the heart of the coal country of southern West Virginia.

The wind in these Appalachian Mountains is never still. Sometimes it blows 30, 40, or 50 miles an hour. That's when Bud Harris, whose weather-reddened face shows every one of his 63 years, hangs on for dear life as he clambers up the 74 steps to his glassed-in aerie.

"When that wind blows, it'll rattle that tower," he says. "After I get up there, I don't pay any attention to that wind. Sometimes I can't hear my radio. That's about the only time it bothers me."

Snowstorms and Lightning

Weather can be a problem for Harris. He remembers the December storm a few years ago when a bulldozer had to rescue him from waist-deep snow after his food ran low.

Another time, violent lightning drove him out of the seven-foot-square tower into the two-room cinderblock cabin at its base. A lightning bolt knocked out his telephone and radio scanner and flicked a knob off his stove.

Harris' two-way radios and his telephone are his only links to the outside world. When he spots a "smoke," he confers by radio with other towers in the region. Using a sighting device mounted on the circular relief map in the center of their tower shacks, he and the other lookouts get a fix on the fire's exact location. Then they notify state forest rangers, who put it out.

Days go by without any human contact. Harris' only company is a fat ground squirrel that lives in the rocks of the summit. He has occasional nocturnal visits from a black bear seeking food, as evidenced by tracks around the cabin.

Early in the morning and again in the evening, after he's left the tower for the day, Harris sits in the cabin and converses with CB friends he wouldn't know if he met them on the street. They're his surrogate family while he's on the mountain.

The man he sees most often is Bentley Hartley, a forest ranger from nearby Pax, a 34-year veteran whose proudest possession is a national award for his fire-prevention work.

When Harris' food and cigarettes run low, he notifies Hartley, who picks up Harris' order at a store in Oak Hill and delivers it in his four-wheel-drive pickup.

Shorter Stays on Knob

Harris' time on the mountain is shorter than it used to be. While he once ascended the knob for the entire fire season, three months in the spring and three in the fall, budget cuts have reduced the time to the six-week peak of each season.

"When it gets too green to burn in the spring and when it gets too cold in the winter, I'm anxious to get off of here," he says. In the summer, he mows his neighbors' lawns in Oak Hill. "In the winter," he says, "I don't do nothin'."

And in a few years, he may do even less. Bud Harris and his fellow fire lookouts, in West Virginia and around the country, are an endangered species.

The reasons are numerous: aerial surveillance, sometimes utilizing infrared sensors; improved radio communications; better access to wilderness areas, with more reliance on the public for reporting fires; increasing use of unmanned, sophisticated sensing devices on the ground.

And tight budgets. Eight years ago, says Ralph P. Glover Jr., deputy state forester, West Virginia had about 50 operational fire towers. Now it has 23.

In the budget of the Department of Natural Resources, the first item to be trimmed is fire prevention and the second is fire detection, Glover says. "Reducing fire occurence," he says, "is what's suffered a major setback, I think."

Louisiana Has Tallest

Louisiana claims the nation's highest tower, a 175-foot giant near Woodworth. Anyone with the nerve to climb to the top earns a "towernaut" certificate.

The U.S. Forest Service began using lookouts in the early 1900s, and their use peaked in the 1950s, says John W. Chambers, assistant director of aviation and fire management for the Forest Service.

In 1953 the Forest Service had more than 1,800 towers nationwide. That number has declined to 922, of which only 381 are in use.

Although the need for towers has lessened and many old towers require expensive repairs, Chambers says, lookouts provide both 24-hour surveillance and, "very often, a valuable communciation link that you don't have if the lookout isn't there."

Old towers have nostalgia value. Glover says about six West Virginia towers have been sold. In Boise, Idaho, the Forest service plans to use one as a museum at the Interagency Fire Center, says Arnold Hartigan, a center spokesman.

David B. Butts of the National Park Service in Boise wistfully noted the "significant attrition" of towers in the mountains of the West. He laments their loss in part because of their value as contact points for park visitors.

"It's the passing of an era, I guess," he says.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Spots are dancing before our eyes a lot lately.

No, the problem isn't that we've been, shall we say, over-indulging. These spots all dance around on four legs, tails flying behind them.

Since July, cows freshening in the dairy herd have delivered more than forty heifer calves. While the male-female ratio of babies evens out to about fifty-fifty over long periods of time, it isn't uncommon to have runs of either high percentages of bull or heifer calves at a certain time

There was a time when I suspected it had something to do with barometric pressure, or topographical layout, or some strange condition of the water Not so Every dairy farmer we've ever discussed this phenomenon with seems to experience the same lopsided percentages of bulls or heifers at some time

As it turns out, many of the lively young ladies born in this long stretch of female deliveries are the offspring of a young bull that we are helping to "prove." Proving a bull takes many years, because the chances of merchandising him commercially are based on the performance of his grown-up daughters.

They must compare favorably to daughters of other bulls, by being exceptional milkers, while possessing oodles of desirable dairy characteristics

Or, at least the computer printout projections say that they should do that, even though the computer projections may be all wet a couple of years down the line.

Thus far, Lasso--the young bull in question--has a number of pluses going for him his calves show plenty of size and growth, are reasonably endowed with all the right stuff, and seem blessed with extremely pleasing personalities

But, about all those spots

Lasso's ancestry tends toward spotted coats, backgrounds of white with black dottings liberally splashed hither and yon.

All those little baby girl calves must be registered with the Holstein breed association. In order to do so, a sketch of the color patterns on both sides and the head of each calf must be submitted on an official registry application paper.

Show me any calf that will stand still for several minutes while a farm wife or daughter (who usually inherits this job) reproduces her markings and I'll show you a calf that probably needs medical attention. Immediately

Need I say it? Lasso's calves are often spotted. Soon, the oldest ones will have their own first calves (spotted, I'll betcha), and we'll see how all these dancing spots are going to turn out in comparison to their herdmate sisters

I've hinted to the farmer that he might consider an almost-all-black bull to prove in the future Still, I know full well that genetic potential--not simplicity of drawing for sketchers--will continue to determine such future decisions.

Maybe we could make some kind of arrangements to charge for sketching, by the spot?

Delaware 4-H'er wins Bob Evans quarter horse

BY CLAIRE McCABE

NEWARK, Del. – Jean Staats, a 13-year-old from Wyoming, Del., is this year's winner of a Bob Evans quarter horse weanling. Jean is calling her four-month-old colt Bar while waiting to hear from the American Quarter Horse Association on the official acceptance of her first choice name, Bekays Gold Bar.

Each year the famous sausage-maker and restaurateur Bob Evans holds a Western-style roundup, complete with campfires and trail rides, on his 1,100-acre farm in Ohio. He invites to this event one lucky 4-H teenage from each of the 11 states where his products are sold. These teens, chosen on the basis of citizenship and exemplary performance in the 4-H horse project, return with their own quarter horse weanlings.

Delaware 4-H'er Jean Staats recently won a quarter horse colt from Bob Evans Farm.

Bar, a buckskin, was just the horse Jean wanted. "I had picked the number four," she said, "and he was the fourth horse to come down the chute."

Jean is the youngest of Jimmy and Barbara Ann Staats' three children. She is in her fifth year of the 4-H horse project, but has been showing horses since she was five years old. Jean credits the Niblett family of D & B Farms, a quarter horse and boarding stable in Bear, for much of her knowledge of horses.

Dick and Betty Niblett are strong supporters of the 4-H horse project. They first supplied Jean with one of their ponies to use in shows, and later matched her with a pony that needed a good home.

The Niblett's two daughters, Jane and Kay, helped Jean with riding and showmanship. Their son, Richie, drove his truck and trailer to Ohio to carry Bar home to Delaware.

Jean showed her pony, Brownie, in showmanship and walk-trot classes, and later showed its foal, J.B. (born on Jean's birthday) on halter. But she soon needed a larger horse to ride, so her parents bought her an aged gelding, Sandy.

Jean showed Sandy at 4-H shows, the Delaware State Fair and on the Eastern Shore Western Horse Show Association circuit. In 1983 she won first place in showmanship at the state fair, and in 1984 she was honored as the first recipient of ESWHSA's good sportsmanship award

Due to his age, Sandy was sometimes not up to par for show use. "But he's a great horse," says Jean. "I've learned so much from him. He taught me what colic was all about and how heartbreaking it can be for your horse to go lame or become sick on a show day. Now I'm ready to accept the responsibility for a young horse to train, work with and love."

Bar will be trained as a Western horse. Although he can't be ridden until he is two years old, Jean has already begun training him on a halter and plans to show him this spring. She has use of her aunt's horse, Al, until Bar can be ridden. Jean won first place with Al in a showmanship class at this year's state fair.

Besides being her 4-H club secretary. Jean has helped the club with shows and contests. Her winning manner is also evident outside the ring. In keeping with the generosity shown her, Jean has lent her ponies to younger 4-H members. During her free periods at Caesar Rodney Junior High School she helps out in the library of nearby Nellie H. Stokes Elementary School.

Jean likes working with younger children and has considered youth counseling as a possible career. "I've had so many older friends who have helped and advised me. I'd like to do the same for others," she says.

Witches Brew, Monster Stew and Midnight Goo!

Give your kids a Monster Bash this Halloween, as an alternative to trick-or-treating. Invite their friends, plan some games, take out the lightbulbs, light some candles, rig up a few spooky corners, and serve up Witches Brew, Monster Stew and Midnight Goo!

What are these? Easy to make spiced cider, meatball stew, and chocolate fondue. The recipes can be prepared ahead of time, quickly and easily in your microwave.

The food is relatively inexpensive, too, so a party for 10 or 12 children won't wipe out your food budget. Add a few carrot and celery sticks (call them "bones" if you wish), and you have a healthy evening of fun without too many sweets.

The quantities given here in the recipes will serve 10 to 12. The recipes may be cut in half, if desired. Cut cooking times by about half as needed.

Witches Brew
(spiced cider)

1 gallon cider or apple juice
1 2 to 3-ounce container red hot cinnamon candies (about 1/3 cup)

1. Three or more hours before serving, combine 2 cups cider with cinnamon candies in a 4-cup measure. Microwave on high for 6-7 minutes until candy dissolves, stirring once or twice. Strain to remove candy coatings if necessary.

2. Pour hot cider back into remaining gallon, and shake or stir to combine. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Serve warm or chilled.

3. To serve warm: shake or stir cider. Pour 1/2 gallon into a glass or plastic pitcher (or heat in 8-cup measure or casserole dish and pour into serving pitcher when hot). Microwave on high for 8 to 9 minutes until hot. Use a probe, set for about 140°F., if you have one. Makes 16 one cup servings

Monster Stew

6 to 8 medium potatoes, cut in 1-inch cubes
6 carrots, peeled and sliced
2 onions, sliced or chopped
2 cups hot water
3 tablespoons beef bouillon crystals (or 3 cubes)
1 10-ounce package frozen peas
2 pounds fresh ground monster meat (lean beef, if you prefer!)
2 eggs
2/3 cup dry bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce
1 16-ounce can tomatoes
1/3 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon microwave browning agent

1 Combine potatoes, carrots, onions, water and bouillon in a 4 to 5-quart casserole. Cover.

2. Stirring twice, microwave on high for 15-20 minutes, until the vegetables are almost tender. Add frozen peas and set aside

3. While vegetables are cooking, combine ground monster meat, eggs, bread crumbs, salt, pepper and Worchestershire sauce. Shape into 1-inch meatballs (makes about 4 dozen). Arrange half the meatballs in a double ring around the edge of a microsafe pie plate. Cover with waxed paper.

4. Microwave on high for 6 to 7 minutes until the meatballs are cooked. Drain, and set aside on a plate. Repeat with remaining half of meatballs.

5. Drain juice from can of tomatoes into a 2-cup measure or small bowl. Add tomatoes to stew. Stir flour, salt and browning agent into the tomato liquid, stirring until smooth. Add to stew, stirring gently to combine.

6. Add meatballs, cover stew, and microwave on high for 12 to 15 minutes, stirring gently every 5 minutes, until the mixture boils and thickens.

7. Refrigerate until serving time if making ahead. To reheat, microwave on high for about 15 minutes, stirring every 5 minutes, until hot. Use a probe set for 160 degrees if you have one.

Serves 10-12.

TIPS:

If you don't have a 4 to 5-quart microwave casserole, use a 2 to 3-quart casserole through step 5. Then, divide ingredients evenly into two casseroles, and cook both together if they fit, or separately, if necessary.

Two 16-ounce bags stew vegetables may be used instead of the fresh ones, but this will increase the cost. Cook frozen vegetables, according to bag directions, with onions, before adding other ingredients.

Midnight Goo
(Chocolate fondue)

2 12-ounce packages chocolate chips
1 12-ounce can evaporated milk
1/4 to 1/2 cup regular milk, if needed

Dippers: orange sections, apple slices, grapes, strawberries, vanilla wafers, graham cracker sections, pound cake cut in "fingers", etc., and toothpicks to hold dippers.

1. Combine chips and milk in an 8-cup measure or large bowl. Microwave on medium (50,5) for 3 minutes. Stir

2. If the chocolate is not all melted, microwave on medium 1 minute longer. Beat well with wire wisk or beater until smooth. Fondue thickens as it stands, thin with additional milk if desired, stirring well to combine. Serve warm. To reheat fondue, microwave on medium power (50,5), stirring every minute. Makes 4 cups fondue.

Penn State Horticulture Show set for Oct. 26,27

UNIVERSITY PARK – Horticulture, A Deep Rooted Tradition, is the theme for the 72nd annual Penn State Horticulture Show to be held in the Ag Arena on Homecoming weekend, October 26 and 27.

Free and open to the public, this year's show features gardens through the ages–from a formal walled garden and a peasant's plot of medieval times to a space station garden of hydroponics, tissue culture and growth bags.

Also featured will be Grandma's Garden, a turn of the century, small town garden of trees, flowers and vegetables. A wrap-around porch, picket fence and favorite flowers of the times will create a mood of the early 20th century.

A Victory garden with a cold-frame, garden plot, cold cellar, and a kitchen of the 1940's will demonstrate the emphasis on food production and food preservation during World War II

In a more modern setting, two townhouse gardens demonstrate the flexibility of gardening in small spaces. One features a natural setting with native plants and the other caters to a more formal taste with exotic ornamentals, ground covers and annuals.

Pi Alpha Xi, the honorary professional fraternity in floriculture and ornamental horticulture, will display and sell a mix of early and late spring flowering bulbs, suitable for gardens in central Pennsylvania.

In addition to picking up fresh garden ideas, visitors will be able to purchase a variety of garden and house plants and spring flowering bulbs at reasonable prices. Apples, cider, mushrooms, pumpkins, seasonal Indian corn and gourds also will be on sale. In the past, proceeds have gone to the Ag Arena Campaign, student scholarship, club activities, and to finance trips to the Ag Arena Campaign, student scholarship, club activities, and to finance trips to regional gardens.

This year's show is dedicated to Donald Layser, owned by Layser's Flowers in Myerstown. Named Flower Grower of the Year by the Pennsylvania Flower Growers Association in 1978, Layser served as president of that organization in 1983-84. He has been a member of the board of directors of Bedding Plants, Inc. from 1980 to 1985 and is a long time supporter of Penn State's Horticulture Club activities.

Since 1928, the show has been managed, organized and constructed by Penn State students in the Horticulture Club Gordon Eric French, a senior in horticulture from Aliquippa, and Kathy Wychock, a senior in horticulture from Hummelstown, are co-managers of the show Ernest L Bergman, professor of plant nutrition, are faculty advisors to the club. Last year more than 26,000 visitors attended.

The show is open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 26 and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Oct 27 Display plants will go on sale from 5 p.m to 8 p.m. on Sunday There is no admission charge and parking is available at the Ag Arena at the corner of Park Street Extension and Porter Road near Beaver Stadium.

Dian Thomas teaches homemakers how to put sizzle into family time

BY SUZANNE KEENE

HERSHEY — Do you remember the Halloween costumes you used to make with scraps of material, discarded clothing, paper bags, crayons and glue?

Or the special birthday cake your mom decorated just for you? And how could you ever forget the family camping trips and cookouts your family enjoyed together?

When adults look back on their childhoods, it is often the fun, but inexpensive, times shared with family that they remember, television personality Dian Thomas told homemakers attending an Extension-sponsored "Strengthen Your Family" seminar last week in Hershey.

"You can do ordinary things in an unordinary way — and have fun," she explained. And, you don't have to spend a lot of money to do it either.

Dian Thomas has shared her ideas about how to add sizzle to family time as a regular on the "Today Show" and in the four books she has authored. She has also appeared on a number of other television shows, including the "Johnny Carson Show."

Dian remembers making Halloween costumes — and winning some first prizes along the way. "That was a highlight of the year," she recalls.

Now that she is an adult, she has fun sharing costume ideas with others. A favorite idea is to dress a little girl in a leotard and surround her with pink balloons to create a "Bubble Bath" costume.

A little dry ice inside a number 10 tin can adds a spooky touch to Halloween when it's tucked inside a jack-o'-lantern.

For a friendlier pumpkin, paint on a happy face with acrylic paint, she suggested. Oranges take on a Halloween appearance with similar faces.

And a flaming ghost cake will add excitement to any Halloween party — no matter how old the guests. For this special treat, decorate a sheet cake to look like a ghost. Make the ghost's eyes out of the halves of a broken egg shell and place a sugar cube inside each shell. When you're ready to serve the cake, put a drop or two of lemon extract on the sugar cube and ignite for a excitingly different dessert.

For Thanksgiving entertaining, Dian suggests a pineapple turkey. To make this treat, perfect for a luncheon, slice the pineapple in half horizontally. Hollow out the center of the pineapple and fill with turkey salad. Skewer a few grapes together for the neck and top this with a head cut from cheese.

Once Thanksgiving has passed, it's time to look forward to the busiest holiday of all — Christmas. To help everyone in the family keep all those holiday parties and celebrations in order, Dian suggests making a family calendar to hang on the refrigerator. All the important dates can be added as the invitations arrive.

When the Christmas cards start rolling in, don't let them clutter your kitchen counter and certainly don't throw them away. Dian has a clever idea for organzing these as well. To hold them neatly in one place, remove the lids from both ends of a long aluminum can.

Wrap yarn around the can, running the yarn from top to bottom. When you're done, each strand will hold a single Christmas card for a neat display.

If you send gifts in the mail, try this creative idea from Dian Wrap the presents individually in colorful holiday paper, then place them in a larger box for mailing. Decorate the inside of the lid with a Christams tree, so when your friend opens the box, his gift will be under the tree.

Families are an important part of the Christmas celebration, so keep yours in the picture with personal Christmas ornaments, Dian suggests. Each holiday season, snap a family photo. Cover a cardboard circle with colorful fabric, mount the family picture on the cardboard ornament and hang it on the tree.

In the coming years, those photographs will bring back memories of happy holidays spent with family members, Dian said.

During the hectic holiday season, any shortcuts are welcome. Dian's cherry cheesecake makes a perfect dessert/centerpiece combination. For this decorative dessert, bake cheesecake batter in foil cupcake papers. When cool, top with cherry pie filling. Arrange decorated cupcakes in a Christmas tree shape and place in the center of the table until it's time to sample the centerpiece.

To make hot chocolate a festive holiday treat, toothpick two marshmallows together to form a snowman and decorate it with a happy face, Dian recommends.

Dian has suggestions to make every occasion a special time to remember. For a unique, but simple birthday cake, fill a new, clean flower pot with ice cream. Freeze until solid, then top with crushed chocolate cookies. A paper flower printed with Happy Birthday, mounted on a pipe cleaner and stuck in the ice cream "cake" adds the finishing touches.

Dian has found that using household items in unordinary ways allows her to add a little excitement to all her parties. An ironing board covered with a colorful tablecloth makes a perfect snack table. A wheelbarrow filled with ice is a unique way to serve a fruit-filled watermelon and to keep sodas cold.

A wicker basket filled with fresh vegetables becomes a "make-it-yourself" salad bar.

Cooking in the outdoors offers additional opportunities for family fun. No one wants to spend time outdoors doing dishes, so Dian recommends cooking breakfast in a paper bag. Simply lay two strips of bacon in the bottom of the bag, break an egg on top (for scrambled eggs, drop from an arm's length), close the bag and cook for about 10 minutes on top your buddy burner.

If you don't have a buddy burner in your camping supplies, you can easily make one from a number 10 tin can, a tuna can, rolled cardboard and paraffin.

Starting at the lip of the number 10 can, cut a square large enough to fit a tuna can through. Then roll a strip of cardboard up and place in the tuna can. Pour melted paraffin into the tuna can and allow to solidify. When you're ready to use your outdoor stove, ignite the paraffin in the tuna can and place it inside the number 10 can. The lid of the large can provides you with a cooking surface.

Cooking on a buddy burner, or serving food in a wheelbarrow may sound a little foreign to you now, but Dian says with a twinkle of delight in her eye, "These are the kinds of things that can create fun and special memories."

Having fun is a way of life for television personality Dian Thomas. Here, she demonstrates the art of cooking breakfast in a paper bag.

Best Seat in the House

"Blame it on my birth order!" My husband and I have had circular discussions about "the best seat in the house." He argues the point that being the middle child such as he is the worst position. He remembers hand-me-down clothing, more restrictions than his brother, less attention, and fewer pictures in the baby book.

I contend that being the oldest girl in our family was more difficult–I was the one who had to break the ground work, and it seemed my younger sisters got to do things earlier than I did, although I did get the new clothing.

It doesn't matter who you ask, everyone seems to have their spot in the birth order pegged as the most difficult. Without question, it is different in every family, but there are several aspects of the birth-order question that can be generalized.

Whether there are two or six children in a family, each child will carve out his own role. Each child will play a unique part in the total family. Each will influence the others and be influenced by them. The larger the family, the more complex the relationships.

According to Dr. James Van Horn, Extension family living specialist, some generalizations can be made about the birth order. The oldest child usually will continue to demand the center stage he enjoyed before other children arrived and will seek to please his parent. He will feel more powerful and responsible for little things that happen than a later-born child

The second child, because he is a unique individual, will certainly deviate from what the first child did. This frequently causes some concern. The second child is seen at times as a bit of a troublemaker, or a parent will say, "He has a mind of his own." That's because he deviates from the so-called standard.

Parents often worry that the third child will get lost, especially if a fourth comes along. Usually the third is very sensitive and a real doer but the parents are now more relaxed. The runny nose that caused such concern with the first child may even go unnoticed in the third child.

The last child will always be the baby and has the distinct honor of having not one but two sets of parents. Older brothers and sisters will exert their influence in a kind of parental fashion. The last born will probably do many things earlier since he has good teachers.

Regardless of the number of children in the family and the order of birth, it is important that parents remember these tips:

- Spend time with each child.
- Try not to compare one child with another.
- Do not expect the same behavior or performance from each child. Each has his own personality and abilities and each will develop by his own schedule.
- Be fair in dealing with all the children, being careful not to always favor the younger or presume the older one is always blameless.

So, whether you were born first, last or in between, there's advantages and disadvantages to each spot. And even though our families are becoming smaller, I imagine the arguments for who has the 'best seat in the house" will probably continue for years to come.

Have A Safe Halloween

Don't let uncomfortable or un safe costumes take the fun out of your child's Halloween. Here are some specific suggestions for this year's costume planning.

• Select ready-made costumes, masks, wigs and beards that carry a flameproof label.

• Avoid flimsy materials and excessive yardage in costumes. A touch of flame can easily start them burning.

• Flameproof homemade costumes with an easy-to-mix solution. For costumes made of rayon or resin-treated cotton (polished cottons), mix seven ounces of regular laundry borax and three ounces of boric acid with two quarts of water. For all other fabrics, mix 12 ounces of diammonium phosphate with two quarts of water. (These ingredients are available at most drug stores.) Saturate the costume thoroughly and then let it drip dry. This fire-retardant is temporary and won't harm the fabric. It must be renewed after every laundering to be effective.

• Do not allow children to carry a pumpkin lighted by a wax candle and don't set a candle-lighted pumpkin on the doorstep. If a child's costume brushes the pumpkin, a fire could easily start. Also be careful about setting a candle-lighted pumpkin indoors near curtains or table decorations.

• Be sure children understand they must stay away from open fire or flame.

• For traffic safety and general accident prevention, keep costumes short enough so children won't trip, and light enough in color to make them clearly visible to motorists. Reflector tape on the front and back of the costume gives better visibility

• Make sure that masks have eyeholes large enough for children to see through. Better yet, encourage your children to create their own masks right on their faces with paints and makeup

• Small children should be accompanied by an older person at all times as they make their rounds on Halloween night.

Sharpen Your Knife and Cut Food Budget

It's not easy to save money at the supermarket, but since food is not something that can be cut from the budget, it's always worth a try.

One idea is to cut up your own meats. First let's take a look at chicken since that is one of the easiest things to cook, but one of the hardest to figure out the most economical way to buy.

Whole chickens are usually about 10 cents a pound less than cut-up parts. Retailers are constantly finding new ways to sell chicken parts so it is hard to compare values, but generally if you buy a four-pound bird, you will save about 40 cents by cutting it up yourself.

For lunch meats consider buying unsliced bologna or salami. At least the next time it's on sale, compare the price with that of the presliced meats.

A small tavern ham from the meat counter will cost less than the baked ham in the deli department.

There are some very good buys on beef now...and one way to add variety to meals is to buy a larger cut of meat than you usually do and make two or three different meals out of it, rather than one meal with leftovers. Cut a chuck roast, for example, into one roast, several cubes for stewing or into steaks for swissing.

While these ideas will work great for some people, before venturing out...consider how good you are at slicing and whether or not you want to take the time.

Decorative straw wreaths

BY WENDIE R. BLANCHARD
Copley News Service

No, it's not too early to start thinking about Christmas, especially if you plan to make holiday decorations as gifts.

A ruffled ribbon wreath is a festive and attractive decoration suitable for any holiday decor. If you are looking for a quick indoor decoration for your own home or to give to a friend, this cut-and-pin project is just the ticket.

Ribbons with lace trims, metalics, pastels and velour will all make beautiful wreaths. Keep in mind that a wreath is a nice accent for any time of the year and does not have to be saved for the Christmas season alone.

The following directions are very basic and allow for your individual variations. If you would like a more in-depth how-to instruction sheet, write to WFR Ribbon Corp., 115 West 18th St., New York, NY 10011. Be sure to enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The cost is 15 cents.

To begin you will need a pair of scissors, 12-inch plastic foam ring, 275 straight pins, 13½-feet total of three different ribbons (4, 6½, and 3 yards respectively), and 12 chenille stems (6 red, 6 white) for candy canes.

ILLUSTRATION A

ILLUSTRATION C

Twist together one red and one white chennile stem to form a candy cane stripe. Fold the length in half and cut. Shape on end of each half by folding approximately 1 inch into a half circle. This will form your candy cane. Make 12 candy canes. (You may also substitute real candy canes.)

The basic technique for the wreath is pleating. Beginning on the outside of the wreath, pin the widest ribbon (6½-feet long) onto the outside of the wreath about a ½-inch from the edge. Measure a ½-inch piece and fold back a ¼-inch piece. Pin ribbon pleats to the foam wreath. Each pleat is made the same way. Continue making pleats all the way around until the entire ring is covered.

Pleat the inside of the wreath in the same manner, but reverse the direction of the pleats to point inward instead of outward.

The center of the wreath is a "mock" braid made from only two 1½-foot lengths. Take the three-foot piece of ribbon and cut in half. Put the two pieces together, right side up, with one piece on top of the other. Pin the top of the ribbons to an area on the foam ring where white still shows through. Braid by overlapping back and forth at approximately 3-inch intervals. Pin at each point where the ribbon intersects. Continue until the center of the wreath is covered.

Use the candy canes to cover any areas where the pins show. Cut 12 pieces, five inches long from the four-foot piece of ribbon. Make a loop by folding each of the five-inch pieces over itself, right sides showing. Cut the edges of the ribbon at an angle and pin to the middle of each candy cane. Make a bow from the leftover section of ribbon and pin at the base of the wreath.

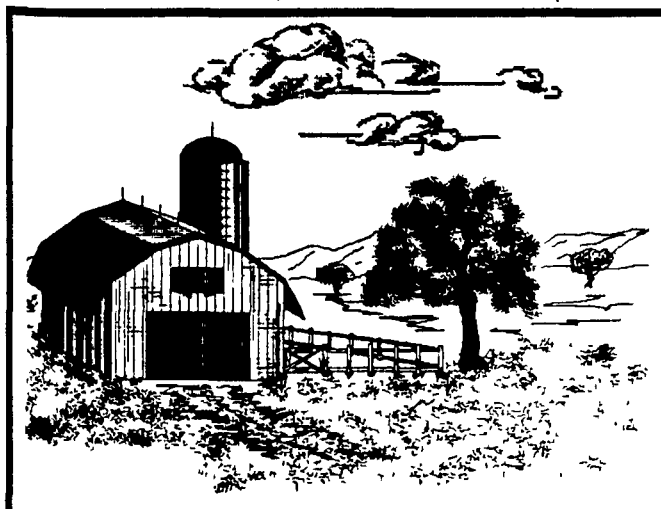
30 COMPUTERS



The Office Works can help you with your agricultural problem solving.

We have been helping farmers for three years now. That's because we know farming. Jim Landis, our agricultural computing specialist grew up on a farm and now he has a 200 acre cash crop farming operation. Our satisfied customers include dairymen, poultrymen, beef and hog farmers, county agents, feed mills, Vo-Ag teachers and other farming specialists.

Let us show you what a computer can do on the farm We offer seminars that provide a hands-on learning experience. We'll teach you how to use a computer and show you what a computer can do for you. You'll see how a computer purchase for the farm would pay for itself! The cost for seminars is modest - $15 per couple which includes all class materials and lunch. Plus, you'll get a coupon for $100 off a computer purchase! The schedule is below. All seminars are Tuesdays from 10am-3 pm.

No-till planting helps save soil, time and fuel

CREAMERY – For Montgomery County residents, fall means back to school, raking leaves and football, but not for Charlie Mentzer and other area farmers. Fall to them means the harvest, and afterward, planting fall crops. While most of us enjoy the Indian summer, the farmer is busy filling the silo, picking his corn, and harvesting soybeans.

It is a busy, important time for farmers. Charlie Mentzer, farm manager at the County Geriatric and Rehabilitation Center in Royersford, will save a little time, a lot of soil and fuel this fall. With help from the Montgomery County Conservation District, Mentzer will plant his wheat using no-till.

Bill Steuteville, district no-till specialist, claims "with no-till, Charlie will plant his wheat in one-third the time. This can mean the difference between a timely planting and a late planting, or no planting at all."

Conventional planting requires expensive time and fuel consuming tillage operations like plowing and disking. No-till requires no such field work, just planting. Steuteville cautions, "a farmer still has to use lime, fertilizer, and herbicides where necessary. He shouldn't cut corners."

Mentzer, who tried no-till corn this spring, and no-till alfalfa this summer, is convinced that it works. "No-till is new to us," says Mentzer, " but I think it is a good program. We have a very good corn crop and our alfalfa looks good. We will start planting wheat soon. There is a lot to learn about no-till, but we are happy with it."

Ed Brzostek district conservationist with the USDA Soil Conservation Service, states "no-till can really reduce erosion. Fall small grain crops and especially fall cover crops for soil protection can be planted quickly and inexpensively, using no-till. No-till requires special planting equipment, but Montgomery County has the equipment available for farmers to rent."

Montgomery County and the U.S. Department of Agriculture are promoting no-till because of its soil saving value. The USDA, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service can provide financial assistance to farmers who perform conservation practices, including no-till and cover crops.

For cost-share information, contact Linda Treese, county director of ASCS for Montgomery County, at 489-4158.

To get no-till help and rent equipment, call Bill Steuteville at the Montgomery County Conservation District at 489-4506.

Jim Glunz, foreground, checks seed depth, while farm manager Charlie Mentzer drives and Doug Mentzer watches seeding rate. These Montgomery County farmers are trying no-till planting.

Delaware Extension offers wheat management tips

NEWARK, Del. — It's wheat planting time again, and University of Delaware extension plant pathologist Bob Mulrooney has some recommendations for area growers, whether they're planting conventionally or intensively. Maximum yields depend on several factors including timing, fertility, varietal selection and seeding rate.

Proper timing

Plant as close as possible to the Hessian fly-free date, which coincides with the average date of the first frost. "Early planting can make wheat lush and susceptible to fall powdery mildew and rust infections," Mulrooney says. "It also allows build-up of aphids which can transmit barley yellow dwarf virus to wheat. Late planting, on the other hand, increases the risk of poor stands."

Good fall fertility

For maximum yields, 20 pounds of nitrogen is recommended, and phosphorus and potassium levels should be in the high range. "Don't consider fall-applied nitrogen in determining spring applications," the specialist says.

Field preparation

Work in Georgia on coastal plain soils has shown that yields increase when the seedbed has been moldboard or chisel plowed and then disked, rather than only disked.

Seeding rate

As with other crops, wheat varieties vary in the number of seeds per pound, ranging from 12,000 to 20,000 for a seeding rate of between 1.5 and 2.5 bushels an acre. Check with a county extension agent for information on calculating seeding rates.

Seed treatment

Be sure to use Vitavax 200 or other seed conditioner to prevent loose smut, the plant pathologist says. Most certified seed comes treated.

Varieties

"For intensive cereal management (ICM), I would recommend planting Saluda, Coker 916 or Pioneer 2550 wheat varieties," Mulrooney says. "Tyler and Massey yield well, but both are susceptible to leaf rust and may require fungicides. Saluda had some powdery mildew this last season in our Delaware variety trials, and, under ICM conditions, should be checked often to determine if a fungicide is needed."

For further information on ICM practices in Delaware, Mulrooney advises growers to contact a county agricultural agent in Newark, Dover or Georgetown. "With low wheat prices," he says, "growers who still want to plant wheat can take advantage of this information to decrease their per-acre costs by trying all or parts of the ICM concept."

Rural employment lagging

NEWARK, DE – After a boom in the 1960s and 1970s, rural employment in the U.S. is lagging behind that of urban areas, and projections for the future do not favor rural economic expansion Any upswing in the economy is likely to benefit urban industries more strongly than rural ones. However, according to University of Delaware extension community resource development specialist Dan Kuennen, America's rural communities are in better position to help themselves than they were the last time they suffered an economic decline.

Economic analysts predict that rural areas will experience slow employment growth through the remainder of the 1980s. One reason is that industries concentrated in rural areas are slowing down. Another is that nearly one-third of all rural jobs are located in the country's depressed north central region.

Based on recent trends, the Economic Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture forecasts rapid growth in the construction and service industries for the rest of the decade. Durable goods manufacturing (such as cars and equipment) and government operations should experience moderate growth, while non-durable goods manufacturing (food processing, lumbering, dairy processing, grain milling and the like) are projected to experience approximately zero growth. Natural resource industries (agriculture, forestry, fishing and mining) can expect to see negative growth.

"Because rural areas depend more on natural resource industries and those that manufacture non-durable goods, their employment growth will probably lag behind growth in urban areas," Kuennen explains. "These are only projections based on past trends," he adds, "and can't account for major shocks to the national economy. But past performance may help us understand the rural employment picture."

Rural employment suffered a serious slowdown in the 1940s and 1950s because technological changes in agriculture and natural resources resulted in job losses that could not be offset by developing markets in manufacturing, construction and government. As a result, the 1950s saw a great rural-to-urban migration that swelled the nation's cities.

By the 1960s, gains in manufacturing employment had balanced out natural resource employment losses, helping to stimulate the well-publicized upsurge in rural population. Between 1969 and 1973 rural areas greatly outspaced urban areas in employment growth.

"Some observers attribute that boom to a plentiful rural labor supply, favorable rural business climate, increased influx of retirees, the effect of government programs, modernization of rural life, and the stabilization of natural resource industries," Kuennen says.

That experience illustrates the way in which industry mix can change to meet the needs of society. And it may hold the key to recovery for hard-pressed rural communities. Today, rural and urban economies are more closely tied, with changes in employment growth more similar than in the past.

"One great benefit of the last rural industry expansion was that rural areas gained a larger stake in federal and state policies," Kuennen says. "As a result, these areas now have a stronger voice regarding federal tax and expenditure levels, monetary policies, industrial revenue bonds, tax incentives for manufacturing and high-tech industries, and incentives for small business."

USDA revises program for guaranteed loans

WASHINGTON Vance L. Clark, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farmers Home Administration, has announced major changes in the agency's guaranteed loan program The changes are designed to help farmers with severe credit problems arrange their financing for the coming year in a timely fashion

We are going to streamline our guaranteed loan procedures," Clark said. We are going to expedite the entire processing operation so farmers will be spared much of the paperwork, delay and frustration they've had to deal with in the past "

The changes in the guaranteed loan procedures will take effect October 7, after publication as an interim rule in the Federal Register the week of September 30. They include:

--Allowing a farmer to establish a line of credit" with a participating lender, so approved funds may be advanced as needed for loan purposes

--Accepting the approved lender's completed forms as much as possible, to avoid duplication of paperwork, and to save time and effort.

--Setting time limits for completing the loan guarantee application process.

--Allowing farmers to use guaranteed loans to refinance direct Farmers Home Administration loans.

--Giving lenders quicker settlement on their loss claims

--Modifying requirements for approved lender status.

'Our first priority is to help our farmers," Clark said. "We can do that by offering them an efficient, workable guaranteed loan program. To do that, we must begin immediately to work with our field staff, and the commercial and cooperative lenders participating in the program We don't have time to wait two years or more, while the usual rule-making process takes its course. So we are publishing these changes as an interim rule, which allows us to move ahead "

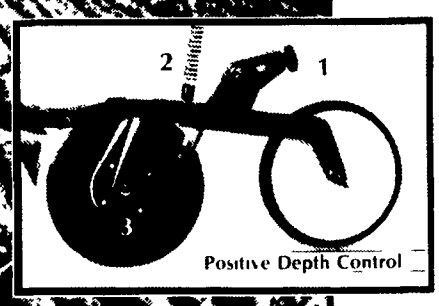
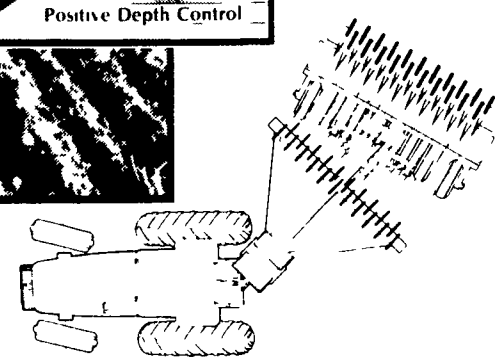
You Won't Find A Better No-Till Drill Than GREAT PLAINS



Great Plains Solid Stand® drills have the planting accuracy drilled soybeans need;
(1) Depth-Gauging Press Wheels keep the opener from penetrating too deep; planting depth can be quickly changed with exclusive dial-a-depth adjustment system. (2) Double Down-Pressure Springs hold opener firmly in the soil — preventing the bouncing action which leaves seed scattered on top of the ground.

(3) Special Seed Chute places seed in the very bottom of the v-slot, rather than allowing slot to partially close prior to seed release.



THE NO-TILL HITCH THAT WORKS

Here's why:
A unique pivot between the coulter unit and the drill allows each disk opener to track exactly in the slot cut by the coulter in front — even while the unit is rounding a curve.

Excellent penetration is also achieved, thanks to a heavy-duty framework, calcium-fillable transport tires, and a special weight transfer design which applies some of the weight of the drill itself to the coulters. Should additional weight be needed, specially designed weight brackets are available which accept most tractor suitcase-style weights. In all, up to 400 lbs. of weight per coulter is possible — ensuring penetration even in the toughest ground.

Finally, all Combination Drill Hitches feature a quick hitch for attaching easily to 3-point drills. So you have the flexibility to no-till some acreage, then switch back to a conventional seeding method as conditions vary.

COMPARE PERFORMANCE! COMPARE PRICE!
YOU'LL BUY A Great Plains NO-TILL DRILL

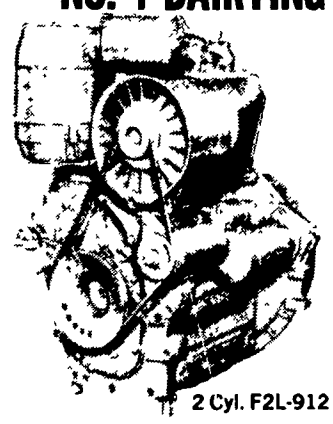
NO. 1 DAIRYING DIESEL



2 Cyl. F2L-912

KHD DEUTZ

Since 1968 F2L-912 diesels have earned the reputation as the most reliable diesel. Don't settle for less.

EASIER STARTING: Heavy flywheel provides easy starting. No electric heater plugs.

QUIETER: Runs quieter than most water cooled diesels. Very quiet exhaust.

New Rating Coming Soon:
29.5 HP @ 2000 RPM
22 HP @ 1500 RPM

Fewer repair parts than comparable three-cylinder diesels - cheaper to overhaul.

It has direct injection, lube oil cooling, and oil cooled pistons. This engine has proven to survive the extreme heat of a heavy load in a small engine house better than any other engine.

PLUS - FAMOUS DEUTZ FUEL ECONOMY

Mr. Cattleman:

We are about 30 days into the growing season for Master Mix Beef Feeds Growing Ton Promotions. If you have not taken advantage of the program look at it again.

GROWING TON PROMOTION

Growing Season: September 1, 1985 - December 31, 1985

Yield Information:
Purchased at one time of qualifying feeds.
1.) 1.0 - 2.99 tons 50 lbs./ton free
2.) 3.0 - 17.99 tons 100 lbs./ton free
} Can combine all qualifying feeds to meet tonnage requirements.
3.) 18 tons and above (one feed - one form) = 150 lbs./ton free

Harvesting Information:
1.) Free feed will be given at the time order is delivered.
2.) Free feed must contain the same medication as qualifying feed.
3.) The cost of medication in the free feed will be paid by the customer.

Manheim caps Farm Show week with livestock sale

MANHEIM — The Manheim Farm Show capped a week of livestock competition with the sale of 77 head of beef, swine and sheep on Friday, Oct. 11.

It was standing-room-only, as buyers and spectators packed the showring bleachers for the Fair's first sale to be held in the recently completed hog and sheep barn.

Heading the list of show champions to hit the auction block was Karen Becker's grand champion market hog, a 230-pound Duroc-Spot cross that brought the hog sale's top bid of $3 a pound from Hatfield Packing.

Overall, the sale's 47 hogs brought $7,882, for a sale average of 74 cents, counting champions. Top buyers included Hatfield Packing with 15 hogs, Willie the Butcher with nine head, White Oak Mills, McCracken's Feed Mill and Penway Construction

The highest average price was recorded in the lamb sale, with the sale's 20 head averaging $1.59 a pound. The high selling lamb was Manheim's grand champion exhibited by Ellen Lewis. At $3 a pound, Willie the Butcher was the top bidder. Mark Tracy's reserve champion went to White Oak Mills for $1.80 a pound.

The sale's most active lamb buyers included Willie the Butcher, White Oak Mills, Engle Business Equipment and Kreider's Dairy Farm and Restaurant.

The evening came to a climax with the baby beef sale. Chad Rohrer sold his 1,090-pound champion FFA steer to Harold Musser of Country Table Restaurant, Mount Joy, who offered the top bid of $2.50 a pound The steer sale's second highest bid of $1.15 was offered by J.H. Brubaker of Manheim for Alida Farrington's 1,030-pound reserve champion

The sale's 10 steers averaged 97 cents a pound, counting champions.

The most active beef buyer was Willie the Butcher, with three head. Other steer buyers included Penway Construction, Moyer Packing Co., Bomberger s Store and Barry Hershey, Manheim

Most sheep exhibitors pride themselves in being able to control their show animals without a halter. Some, like Carey Donches pictured watching Manheim Farm Show sale action from the sidelines, don't even need their hands. Livestock exhibitors are cautioned not to try this with their steers.

Jerry Clemens of Hatfield went home with Karen Becker's grand champion market hog.

Farm Show to include Limousin cattle show

CARLISLE — An open Limousin show, including seven classes of heifers and seven classes of bulls, will become part of the Pennsylvania Farm Show for the first time in January, according to the state's Limousin Association.

Closing date for entries is Nov. 5. Premium lists are currently available from Pa. Farm Show, 2301 N. Cameron St., Harrisburg, 17110. Phone: 717-787-5373.

For additional information concerning the Limousin show, contact Pa. Limousin Association, 2070 Ritner Highway, Carlisle, 17013. Phone: 717-243-1281.

Planning your breeding program

Early or late spring lambing program

Early lambs, those ready to sell by May or early June, are easier to raise than later lambs. Hot summer weather brings parasites, mature and less nutritious grass, and milk production drops, all factors which bring lamb gains to a stand-still.

Grazing trials show lambs gain 0.55 to 1 pound per day in May. In June, however, daily gains slow to 0.50 pound, and July gains may stop completely. This means lambs should be born in time to go to market in May and June or in late August and September. Producers wanting heavier lamb weights during late summer months need to consider confinement feeding.

Early lambing requires more feed for the mothers as well as creep feeding for the lambs. Late lambs can be raised with less labor and concentrate feeds because both ewes and lambs are dependent on pasture.

Fall lambing program

Generally, fall or early winter lambing will be the most suitable in areas with good winter feed, limited pasture, suitable barns, and high summer temperatures. Ewes should be bred between May 20 and August 5 for mid-October to late December lambing. Rams should be turned back with ewes during the month of September to catch the ewes that were missed during the earlier breeding season. Lambs may be born on pasture or in shelters, depending upon the weather. Ewes and lambs may graze aftermath permanent pasture, crop residue, or winter pastures, e.g. winter rye, brassicas, or small grains.

During late gestation (45 days pre-lambing) ewes should be fed grain and offered hay, depending of course upon the pasture quality. Lambs should be creep fed and weaned at 70 to 90 days of age. Lambs not reaching the desired market weights on pasture should be confined and finished on grain and hay. Ewes not nursing lambs can be maintained on crop residues, stock-piled pasture. hay or a limited silage ration.

The breeding season

Early lambs to be kept for flock replacements may be bred if they weigh 90 to 100 pounds by July 1. Shear them when they are first weaned. Breed these ewe lambs during October or November. As a general rule, ewe lambs born at other periods reach these same desired breeding weights at 6 months of age.

Ewes will lamb 144 to 152 days (five months) after they are bred. They settle easier when they are in good health and are making moderate gains. Extremely rapid gains may delay settling.

Body condition scoring has become a useful management tool for keeping high producing ewes in production. More information on the condition scoring and its use in ewe management is discussed in an Extension Fact sheet No. DAS-SH-83-4. "When too fat, ewes should be reduced in flesh beginning 40 days prior to breeding. They must be brought back into moderate rate of gain by the time the ram is turned in. In many instances the excessively fat ewes are not the money-makers.

Remember, 150-pound open ewes should gain approximately 30 pounds from the time they are bred until they lamb. The amount of flesh they carry at the start of the breeding season can make the job easy or difficult. Do not start them too fat!

"Flushing" is a word used to describe bringing about this weight-gaining condition. Heavy sheep that are free from parasites and are on green, growing pasture will be sufficiently flushed. Some grain or brassica pasture 14 days pre-breeding should produce a flushing effect on the thin ewes. The results are a shorter and earlier lambing season with a minor positive influence on increased multiple births.

Exposing ewes to a "teaser ram" 17 to 19 days before the scheduled breeding period will also produce results similar to flushing.

Make sure ewes are parasite-free. Use a larvacide type wormer (Tramisol) before the breeding season.

Ram management

Your ram should be a performance tested purebred. Do not get caught using a scrub ram after spending years developing a sound breeding program.

Do not breed a ram lamb to more than 20 ewes. A well-grown mature ram, 18 months old, may be exposed to 40 ewes.

Before breeding time, treat your ram for internal parasites, and feed and exercise him so he carries a moderate amount of flesh Grain feed him if he is too thin Exercise him if he is too fat If he needs feed, give him a mixture of three parts corn, three parts oats, and one part wheat bran, by weight, and free-choice a quality grass-legume hay.

To help prevent hot-weather sterility, shear the ram. Clip wool from the ram's testicles and belly Also trim his feet, and get him ready for a lot of walking. Keep the ram out of hot weather by keeping him up during the day and letting him run with the ewes at night.

Avoid losing a lamb crop by checking often to see if the ewes are setting. A good way is to paint the ram's brisket with colored material so that he marks the ewes showing estrus. Make your paint by mixing mineral or corn oil with such powder as yellow ochre, Venetian red, carpenter's chaulk, or lamp black. Change color every two weeks. Apply to the ram's brisket every four or five days.

If you do not care to check all ewes during the breeding season, use this compromise plan. Three weeks before you plan to take the ram away, paint him. He will mark the late lambers so you can pick them out. If they should all get marked, you will know a new ram is certainly needed.

Fall management for the cow/calf producer

For our local part-time beef cow/calf operators I offer several suggestions as part of your fall management program. First of all, pregnancy check your cows and bred heifers. You cannot afford to winter open cows or cows with bad udders, teeth, or lameness. These cows will cost you money and should be culled from the herd.

Next, utilize crop residues. You can usually get up to 60 days of feed from cornstalk fields by grazing. Cows will need 3-5 lbs. of legume hay per day if they are on cornstalk fields longer than 40 days. Be sure your mineral mix contains adequate levels of calcium and phosphorus. Remember to worm cattle managed under intensively managed conditions including cows wintered in daylots.

It is a good practice to separate yearling and two-year-old heifers from mature cows, because they need more and better feed during the winter. Feed replacement heifer calves so they will gain 1.2 to 1.5 pounds per day. They really need adequate growth to be bred as yearlings to calve as two-year-olds! Positively save your best hay to feed after calving. Cows two to four months prior to calving can utilize lower quality hay effectively.

Finally, evaluate your 1985 calf crop and answer these questions: Were calves born in 90 days or less? Did you wean a 95 percent calf crop per cow wintered? Did your calves average 450 to 550 pounds or better at weaning? If you answer no to any of these questions, you need to make some definite changes in your program to positively affect the economics of your beef enterprise.

Just consider this formula for beef herd profits...weaning weight x percent calf crop x price/lb. x number of head sold, minus the cost of production = beef herd profit.

Maximum performance does not always mean maximum profits, because the price/lb. and weight sold does not always offset added costs associated with more intensive management. However, since many costs are usually fixed regardless of the weight sold (many of machinery and equipment costs, land, labor, etc.) production/unit has to be high to be profitable.

Give some serious thought and make positive steps for improvement in the years to come.

AAA reports record Certified Angus Beef sales

ST. JOSEPH, MO. – Sales of Certified Angus Beef hit an all-time record of 15.9 million pounds during the American Angus Association's fiscal year ended September 30.

The 1985 sales volume was up 96 percent over last year's 7.6 million pounds, and up nearly 1,000 percent over the 1.6 million pounds of Certified Angus Beef (CAB) marketed in 1983, reports Richard Spader, executive vice president of the American Angus Association.

Registrations of purebred Angus cattle during the fiscal year totaled 156,150 head, more than enough to maintain the Angus Association's position as the world's largest beef cattle registry association in terms of annual registrations. Transfers of Angus to new owners totaled 102,503 head. The Association also added 1,955 new members to its rolls during the year plus 824 new junior members.

Delaware offers small flock guide

NEWARK, Del. – The Delaware Cooperative Extension Service has published a management guide to help owners of small flocks grow the best poultry possible. Written by University of Delaware extension poultry specialist Daniel H. Palmer and poultry pathologist Edwin M. Odor, the guide discusses such basic considerations as local zoning and environmental restrictions, housing, and flock selection.

At the back of the publication are charts outlining estimated start-up and monthly operating costs to raise a 25-bird flock of layers or meat-type chickens.

Those interested in obtaining a copy of "Delaware Management Guide for Owners of Small Chicken Flocks" should contact the county extension office in Newark (451-2506), Dover (736-1448) or Georgetown (856-7303), or write Extension Poultry Specialist Dan Palmer, R.D. 2, Box 48, Georgetown, DE 19947.

NJ meat packer agrees to $2,500 civil penalty

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Marx Bros. Meats Inc., a meat packer at Shrewsbury, N.J., and its owner, Frank M. Marx, have agreed to a $2,500 civil penalty and a cease and desist order from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

A USDA official said Marx agreed to the penalties to settle federal administrative charges of slow payment and failing to pay for lambs purchased from a supplier at Lebanon, Va.

B.H. "Bill" Jones, head of USDA's Packers and Stockyards Administration, said Marx purchases lambs in central and southwest Virginia, eastern Ohio, and eastern Pennsylvania.

Jones said Marx has since made payment for the $28,500 worth of lambs involved in the complaint.

In agreeing to the penalties, Marx neither admitted nor denied the charges filed by USDA in May under authority of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

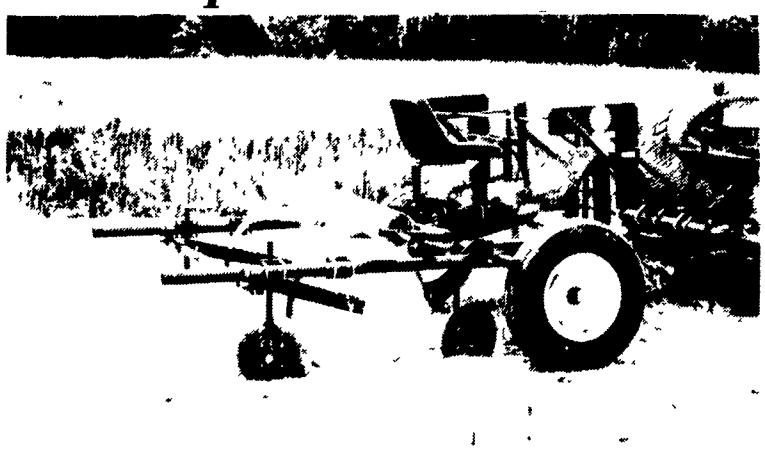
'Hoop setter' unveiled



A new Model 95 Wire Hoop Setter combined with the new Model 96 Plastic Tunnel Layer by Mechanical Transplanter turns a back breaking job into an easily once over the field operation. Only one person is needed to feed the wires into a holding station. The unit then sets the wires uniformly and the layer stretches the six inch tunnel plastic over the hoops.

Sperry skid steer owner keeps busy picking rocks

BLAISDE, ND – Bernie Wirtz lives on his skid-steer loader eight to ten hours a day. He's a custom operator providing specialized loader service about 50 miles in every direction except straight up and down from his operations base here.

Actually, he provides the service in the up and down direction. In the spring it's rock clearing. Later in the summer it's cleaning cattle yards and barns. In between times he moves dirt and does landscape work. Usually, he's booked weeks in advance.

"On summer fallow land a commercial rock picker can compete with me," observes Wirtz. "But on clearing land being broken for the first time, I have the advantage. I can start on one side and clear the area where the rock picker has to circle around the field. I can kill the picker in competition.

"There is still some virgin land in this part of North Dakota," says Wirtz. "And breaking the land really boils out the rocks."

"We had our bucket built for the job," Wirtz explains. "We used 1-inch oil-field sucker rod. It's high-tensile steel and smooth. We shaped the rod in the profile of the bucket and placed the bars 3½ inches apart with a cutting edge at the front and a regular Sperry New Holland loader backing plate at the back to mount on the loader boom. This gives us an open basket design we can just shake to separate the dirt from the rocks. We even use this bucket for handling manure.

"We stockpile the rocks or load them into trucks or rock picker dumps to haul them to larger piles. The good visibility of the skid loader helps us keep from running over rocks and punching them into the soft ground like a conventional rock picker. The end result is a cleaner field.

"I tackled the first rock clearing job just a year ago," says Wirtz. This year I've already cleared 550 acres. And a couple of jobs are on hold until I get caught up with the manure handling. I use a large truck-mounted spreader with the loader for contract cleaning. Right now I'm booked 17 jobs ahead. I'm not sure when I can get to those rocks. Excuse me, but I've got to get going."

A skid-steer loader is ideal for rock clearance if you fit it with an open-grid "basket" bucket. The custom made bucket is shaped from 1-inch oil-field sucker rod The rods are spaced 3½ inches apart to let dirt sift out when rocks are picked up for removal. This custom operator's machine also cleans barns and feed yards on contract using the sucker-rod bucket.

Deutz develops tough 'diesels

MILWAUKEE - Deutz-Allis has introduced a "tough" new line of compact diesel tractors with more performance features and greater versatility while maintaining extremely competitive prices.

The new 5220 and 5230 tractors come in two-wheel drive and four-wheel drive models with choice of ag or turf tires.

Both models feature powerful, three-cylinder water-cooled Toyosha diesel engines. In the 5220, this durable, hard-working engine has 26 engine hp* and 21 PTO hp. The 5230 delivers 31 engine hp* and 26 PTO hp.

The fully synchronized transmission has 12 forward and three reverse speeds to handle a wide range of jobs Speeds range from 0.4 to 10.7 mph on ag tires; 0.3 to 9.5 mph on turf tires.

The live 540 PTO is standard on all 5220 and 5230 models, allowing the operator to engage implements at full engine-driven PTO power--even while the tractor transmission is disengaged.

A variety of implements can be attached to both models with the Category I three-point hitch. Where tillage work is required, the draft control that comes standard with the Category I three-point hitch on the 5230 is ideal.

Every model comes with multiple wet disc brakes and differential lock was standard equipment.

Along with the superior performance built into the 5220 and 5230 compact diesels, Deutz-Allis offers a wide array of implement attachments.

A 60-inch, deep deck mid-mount mower with anti-scalp design is available for all models. Or, choose 60-inch and 72-inch rear-mounted mowers for 5220 and 5230.

All mowers are compatible with the Deutz-Allis 435 front-end loader. This model features quick cycling and can lift either 60-inch or 48-inch buckets filled to capacity to a 96-inch lift height at hinge pin. Besides the 60-inch and 48-inch buckets, there are a variety of other attachments, including manure fork buckets, pallet forks and an optional grill guard.

For tilling large areas or preparing seedbeds, the durable 48-inch rotary tiller comes with hydraulically controlled lift, heavy seven-gauge steel housing, endless roller chain drive, and hardened steel replaceable tines.

The 62-inch snow thrower, with front or rear mounting, fits all 5220 and 5230 models. High-speed impeller and large-diameter auger remove even heavy, wet snow with ease. Adjustable skid shoes skim over gravel, and the discharge chute is easy to adjust.

Similarly, the 60 or 72-inch dozer blades are easy to attach and remove, and fit both the 5220 and 5230 models. And they are available with hydrostatic or manual angle adjust.

A new single-lever hydraulic control permits use of two hydraulic functions, like load lift and dump, for faster cycle time and reduced effort This, too, is available on all models.

They're backed with a 2-year/1,500 hour engine and power train warranty.

AMCO markets new tools for seed bed conditioning

JACKSON, MS – AMCO Products, Portable Elevator Division, has introduced three new series of do-alls and seedbed conditioners for one-pass reduced tillage operations in preparing fields for planting. In sizes from 13 feet to 26 feet, these "SUPER-TILL" models are designed to save time, fuel, and labor by performing several tillage operations at the same time.

Farmers wishing to economize their operations will have a choice of three basic series and twelve models from which to choose. The STO series is designed to work on bedded or ridged fields. This pull-type do-all features a five-bladed spiral reel for chopping residue, pulverizing clods and incorporating chemicals in the bed. The reel is followed by five independent rows of heavy spike tooth harrows for additional incorporation and pulverizing action.

Two series are available with either "Live Leaf" heavy duty field cultivator shanks with five-year warranty or S-Tine Danish shanks with three-year warranty. The ST2 series offers a choice of either shank on two rows mounted forward of the spiral reel. The ST3 offers the shank choice on three rows mounted forward of the reel. Both shank models offer the greatest trash flow clearance available on the market. All shanks are mounted on 3" frame members.

All models feature "UNI-RAIL" tubular main frames with integral construction for frame strength with up to 60 times greater torsion resistance than some competitive models. SUPER-TILL main frames are fully adjustable for fine tuning performance to achieve desired field results.

The new SUPER-TILLS offer the greatest advancement in seedbed conditioner designs in many years.

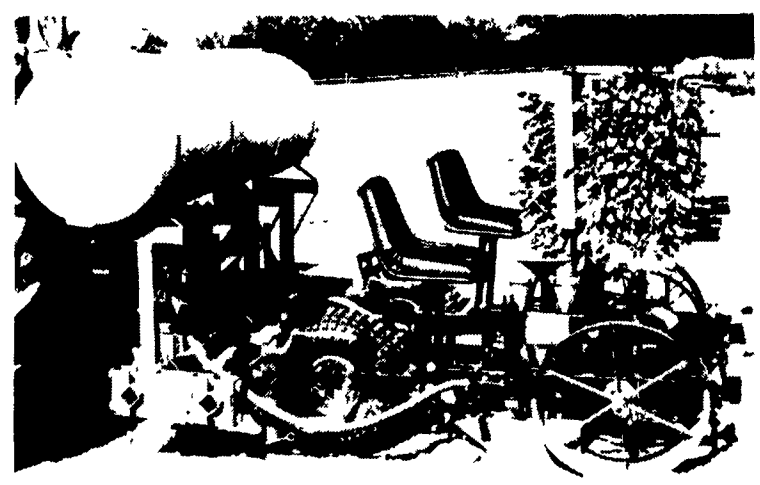
New hitch introduced



Mechanical Transplanter of Holland, MI has introduced a new Float Wheel Hitch Assembly for its Model 4000 and 6000 Metering transplanters. This floating wheel firms the soil directly ahead of each unit, thus allowing the unit to plant at a uniform depth in all types of field conditions. The hitch also allows each unit to float independently to give the optimum performance and spacings.

Exhibitors gearing up for NE Egg Trade Show

RHEEMS – Pre-registration of poultry producers and industry people planning to attend the Northeast Trade Show is getting top priority during the next six weeks.

So reports Al Wenger, chairman of the Nov. 17-18 event to be held at Resorts International, Atlantic City, N J.

Three organizations–the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, N.Y Spice and the N.J State Poultry Association–are leading the way in urging their members to sign up and take advantage of a 30 per cent discount on registrations being offered to members of state groups by Northeast-UEP, show sponsor

Wenger says: "Exhibitor response to the trade show has been tops." He reports booth space is at a sell-out level.

"Producers have asked for a regional trade show that can be reached at a reasonable driving distance Allied industry has responded in first rate fashion. It's the producer's turn now. Our first step to guarantee good attendance is early registration. It will put us on the road to making this show an annual event," he added.

The show is divided into two four-hour periods on Sunday and Monday Only one business meeting is scheduled–that will be an early Eggpac breakfast on Monday when visitors will hear reports of ongoing efforts by United Egg Producers to make producer needs known to Washington legislators

Dr David Kritchevsky of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine will speak at the breakfast and tell producers how they can best address the cholesterol issue and have consumers fully recognize the positive nutritional values of eggs.

Advance tickets are available for the breakfast at a donation of $25 per person. Requests for tickets should be sent to Northeast United Egg Producers, P.O. Box MM, Durham, N.H. 03824. Only personal checks, not company checks, can be accepted for the breakfast

Morocco chosen as trade target

WASHINGTON – Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced that a U.S. wheat offer to Morocco will be the sixth initiative under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's $2-billion export enhancement program.

Block said this initiative will give U.S. exporters the opportunity to sell up to 1.5 million tons of wheat, including a Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) bonus of wheat from CCC stocks. This bonus will enable exporters to respond to future wheat tenders at commercial prices in the Moroccan market.

In addition, a credit guarantee line has been authorized to Morocco under the Export Credit Guarantee Program (GSM-102) to help finance up to $150 million in wheat exports. Additional operational details for this credit line will be released by USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Look at taxes now

For the past few years, the IRS has been making it expensive for the person who fails to file a 1099 for anyone that person pays $600 or more to for rent, interest, and services. This is a warning for those of you who pay a veterinarian, a contractor, or any other self-employed business person who provides you with over $600 of services in a year.

You will need that person's Social Security number or employer's identification number and address. Suggestion: get it now while you have time. It also would not hurt to get the number from anyone who does service work for you, unless that person is working for or owns the corporation doing the job. Then you have the necessary information if you needed it later. Tax filing time may find that person on vacation and unavailable. By the way, this warning is just as true for those of you who pay rent or interest to some other person.

The deadline for filing the 1099s is the end of February. For most of us that time is closer than we think. The IRS could charge a penalty for filing the return late if that deadline is missed.

One question that comes up at tax meetings is "how should I mail returns to the IRS?". The person asking the question usually means can a return be sent by regular mail or should it be sent by some other means. The answer is far from easy. There may be no real safe way to send your return and be guaranteed that it will either reach the destination or be properly processed once it does reach the destination.

Some sort of certifying or requiring a return upon receipt will assure you that someone will send back a signed card if it is received or acknowledged to have been received. However that card does not guarantee you that the IRS will agree they received your return, just that they received an envelope from you.

Also what happens when you never get the card back? On the other hand, that date mail receipt certainly gives you something to use if and when you need it. As some of my old friends in Potter County used to say "it's better than snowballs."

Suggestion: send all mail containing payments, whether tax estimates or final payments or other payments, via some type of mail whereby you do have a dated receipt of mailing.

If the payment is large enough or crucial enough to cause you serious problems if it is lost, perhaps insured mail would be the proper method. Yes this all gets expensive, but you then have a fragile hold on both the mail system and the acknowledgement system at IRS. Keep a record of the cost because it is a tax deductible cost of doing business.

Refunds

If you were entitled to a refund from 1984 taxes and have not yet received it, you will have to take some sort of action because you will probably not receive it unless you do. The IRS claims that they have you return "someplace" in their system. If this is true it is lost and may not be found until long after the statute of limitations is expired.

Here is the procedure to follow if you have not yet received your refund: (1) make a duplicate of all 1984 tax forms; (2) sign the 1040 the same way you did for the original return; (3) write Duplicate on the top of the copy of the 1040; (4) attach a note to the return saying this is a duplicate return because you have not yet received a refund from 1984 tax return; (5) be sure to put your name and identifying number on the top of the note; (6) attach a copy of W-2s to the return as you did the first time; and send to the Internal Revenue Service Center, Philadelphia, PA 19255 (write on the envelope Attn:DRP). If you do not hear from them after that, try again in 12 weeks or so. Always keep this in mind, the rumors that your return got flushed down the commode is probably not so, it is just in the pipeline somewhere.

One bright note: if and when you finally do get your refund, the IRS will pay you interest from April 15 at July 1 at the annual rate of 13% and from July 1 to the time they send you the refund at the annual rate of 11%. One kicker they add is "if correct returns were filed timely."

21st Century Genetics is the continuation of Midwest Breeders Cooperative, Shawano and Minnesota - Valley Breeders Association, New Prague, Mn. The first sire summary following the consolidation showed a Holstein lineup that averaged +91 Predicted Difference Dollars (PD$).

The newest offering from the full-service cattle breeding cooperative is 21H1003 Plushanski Jetson Hondo-ET.

Combined with his maternal grandsire, Cedar-Grove Golden Nugget, Hondo's Pedigree Index is +1216M, +34F, +$136 and he has a Genetic Index of +1767M, +79F and +$245.

Hondo's dam is Plushanski Nugget Fobes-ET, VG-86, with a top record of 24,420 pounds of milk, 1,118 pounds of butterfat at a 4.6 percent test in 305 days. Her current Cox Index is +1583M, +113F, +$293.

Hondo is now housed at the 21st Century Genetics' junior sire facility in Stewartville, Mn. He is one of about 120 high genetic potential young sires enrolled each year in the cooperative's sampling program.

The 21st Century Genetics' sampling program has been recently revised and retains incentives to qualified users of sampling sire semen. The revised program will help to increase accuracy and allow 21st Century Genetics to efficiently sample large numbers.

Hondo and the other young sires will have to wait over four years from sampling before their first Predicted Differences (PD's) are calculated. Only about one of six bulls sampled has credentials high enough to meet 21st Century Genetics standards for its active dairy lineup housed in Shawano and New Prague

HOWARD®

PARAPLOW® Model 1810

Loosens Soil Without Surface Disturbance

Impossible? It's true. The new Howard PARAPLOW loosens soil to 14 inches deep without disturbing surface residues. It breaks compaction while leaving trash on top to save topsoil from wind and water erosion. The secret is the PARAPLOW's unique "legs." The Model 1810 has 5 or 6 of them which slice into the ground at a 45° angle to gently lift, fracture and loosen. No other tillage tool works the same way. See your nearby Howard dealer.

PARAPLOW Model 1810 semi-mounted 5 or 6 legs 100 and 120 tillage widths

WATER THAT WON'T QUIT

Ritchie Fountains deliver. Even in the dead of winter they are out there working. You're not.

Weatherproof. You bet they are. Heating systems and efficient insulation keep water ice-free...just set the Watt Watcher™ thermostat for minimal energy use. Big-throated, non-stick plastic valves keep water gushing in. Each of your cows get all the water they need to promote peak production.

Ritchie Fountains are tough, too. Quality-built with rugged heavy galvanized steel and CD-50 expoxy finish to stand up to weather and barnlot abuse.

Why take chances on anything less than a red and yellow Ritchie Fountain? Call your Ritchie dealer for water that won't quit.

-the one that keeps rolling when others quit!

Automatic EARCORN BLOWER MILL

Automatic pioneered the development of the unique crusher unit which shells corn and shreds the cob ahead of the rollers which crack the kernels and reduce the cob further. No troublesome screens to change or slow down the capacity. It comes with 8-foot hydraulic intake auger and 54-inch blower. Also available with an 11-inch tilting discharge auger with 10-foot reach in place of the blower.

- UNIQUE CRUSHER ROLLS shell the corn, crush the cob ahead of the rolls, no screens to plug.
- FATIGUE-PROOF DRIVE SHAFTS, ground and polished.
- CARBON STEEL ROLLS, hardened to a 56 Rockwell "C", outperform other rolls in capacity and durability.
- 20-SPLINE, 1¾-inch PTO shaft with shear pin protection.

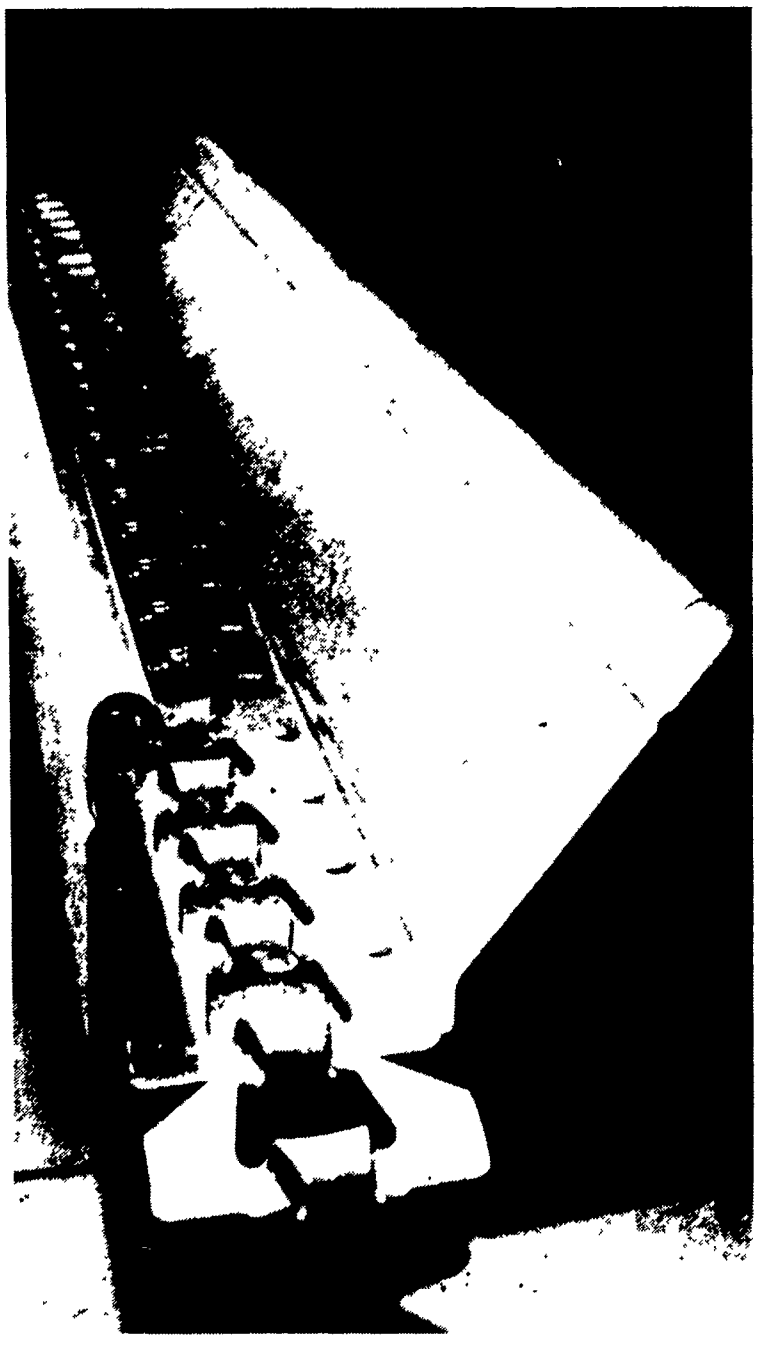
A Cage isn't enough



It takes more than wire to make a cage system. More than anything else it takes a feeder.
Sure, other components are important, but mainly it's the feeder that makes the system. That's why Big Dutchman's Systems are equipped with a SPEED FEED chain feeder that feeds every bird the right amount at the right time, without waste.
When you compare poultry equipment remember that the real test of a cage system is its feeder. Big Dutchman is ready for the test.
Big Dutchman, where proven ideas are put into action.

Kentucky honors no-till innovators

NO-TILLAGE FARMING
First practice of no-tillage crop production in Ky occurred on this farm in 1962. Harry and Laurence Young, of Christian Co. were among first in nation to experiment with no-tillage techniques which use herbicides in providing seed bed in residue stubble. Conserves soil and water; saves time. Often produces higher

No-till pioneer Harry Young stands by the historic marker erected on his Kentucky farm.

WILMINGTON, Del. – No-till farming has achieved historical status with the placement of an official marker on the Harry Young Farm, Christian County, Kentucky. Young is famous for pioneering the concept of no-till farming.

The historical marker, sponsored by Du Pont Agricultural Chemicals Department, cites Harry and Laurence Young as being among the first in the nation to experiment with no-till techniques. No-till is credited with conserving soil, water, labor and fuel. Harry Young was one of the first to prove those attributes, and that crop yields under no-till methods could equal and even exceed traditional cultural methods.

Young and co-author Shirley Phillips, professor of soil science, University of Kentucky, wrote what is still considered by many to be the bible of no-till farming. No-Tillage Farming outlined their failures and successes in developing and practicing these innovative cultural methods.

The historical marker was installed by the Kentucky Historical Society and the Kentucky Department of Transportation.

Hess named PACDD Conservation Farmer

LANCASTER — John Hess, a Director of the Adams County Conservation District since 1977, has been named Conservation Farmer of the Year by the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors.

Hess took a poorly drained, heavily eroded farm and turned it into an extremely productive one, using a variety of conservation practices.

His conservation measures include 348 acres of conservation cropping, 102 acres of contour strips, five acres of waterways, 11,800 feet of terraces, 880 feet of diversions and six water control structures.

An active promoter of conservation, John has hosted meetings and tours at his farm to explain his various conservation measures.

Franklin Countian M. Dice Statler was chosen the organization's Conservationist of the Year. A founding member of the county's Conservation District, Statler was one of the first farmers in his county to install a diversion and to try a zero-grazing program in his dairy operation.

In the 1970s, Statler did not plant "fencerow to fencerow," but instead established field borders around his crops. His farm also has been the site of many tours by those eager to learn about his operation.

Listed below are the other awards conferred by the organization at its banquet Tuesday night. Following the award and the name of the winner is a brief description of the winner's accomplishments, provided by the PACDD.

The newly named Conservation Farmer of the Year, John Hess, with his wife Bonnie after receiving his award from the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors.

CONSERVATION ORGANIZATION OF THE YEAR-- CONSERVATION EXPLORER POST 100, (Butler County). The Conservation Explorer Post 100 of East Butler, PA, provides an opportunity for youth to explore all aspects of the conservation professions and disciplines. In cooperation with conservation professionals and organizations, the Explorer Post offers hands-on experience for its members. Activities include fish habitat improvements, an annual browse cutting program for deer, nesting box construction for wood ducks, clearing of hiking trails, and an annual litter clean-up project. The Post promotes conservation education with mall displays, assistance in the Butler Company Junior Conservation School, tours covering soil and water conservation, forestry management, water safety, deer herd management, and state fish hatchery facilities.

CONSERVATIONIST OF THE YEAR--M. DICE STATLER (Franklin County). Dice Statler of Chambersburg, PA, has been carrying out innovative conservation techniques for the past 40 years and has been sharing these ideas effectively with other farmers. A founding member of the Franklin Co. Conservation District, Mr. Statler was one of the first farmers in his area to install a diversion and to go to zero grazing program for his dairy operation. In the 1970's, he did not plant "fencerow to fencerow" but instead established field borders around his crops. Through his associations with local farm businesses, the bank, farm cooperatives, and other organizations, Mr Statler sees how businesses and farming can better work together. Many people from these groups have been on tours at his farm to see the Statler's operation and conservation practices.

M. Dice Statler and his wife Roberta hold the plaque recognizing the Franklin County farmer as Conservationist of the Year. The award was presented to Statler by the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors, Inc. at a banquet Tuesday in Lancaster.

CONSERVATION EDUCATOR– GLENN H. LUCKENBILL (Schuylkill County). Mr. Luckenbill is involved in many aspects of Schuylkill County's conservation education programs. First, he developed and implemented an environmental ed course into the life sciences of the Blue Mountain Middle School. Second, he provides services to many community and governmental conservation agencies as an IU workshop coordinator, Project Wild Workshop coordinator, wildlife survey conductor, and member of the NE RC&D Env. Educ. committee. Third, Mr. Luckenbill helped develop the Schuylkill County Conservation District's education and youth program while he served as an Associate Director. He participates in workshops on forestry, acid rain, aquatic biology, winter activities, and urban environmental education, and he frequently attends conferences of the PACDD, PA Science Teachers Assoc., Pa. Alliance for Env. Education, and the PA YCC.

Our new "300" timber column!

.6 pound of penta

Morton Buildings' new laminated column is treated to a .6 pound per cubic foot retention of pentachlorophenol preservative. This new treatment meets the federal government specification (USDA Form W 00571J) for the proper treatment of timber columns buried below ground.

100% sapwood penetration

The No. 1 Southern Yellow Pine components of the laminated column are kiln dried before treating to remove much of the water content, assuring 100% penetration of the sapwood.

To guarantee the new requirements are met, an independent inspection service regularly visits the treatment plants. All lumber not conforming to our specification is rejected or re-treated.

Morton Buildings demonstrates its confidence in these improvements by now offering a 50-year warranty on the timber column. Our warranty also includes 5 years against paint checking or peeling; 5 years against paint fade and chalk; 5 years against red rust caused by acid rain; 5 years against roof leaks; and 5 years against damage due to snow and wind loads. That's confidence!!

appreciation of the natural resources in northern Dauphin and western Schuylkill counties. Perhaps WCWA's most significant achievement is that of changing an apathetic attitude that prevailed regarding the many problems throughout the watershed. Tours, press conferences, letter writing, speaking at legislative hearings, contact with legislators, and grass roots support have been used in dealing with soil erosion, acid mine drainage, abandoned mines, raw sewage, and loss of wildlife habitat. Notable achievements include the initiation of the Sheridan Banks erosion control project by DER, encouragement to OSM to investigate an illegal acid mine drainage discharge, and a VIP tour of the watershed in April, 1983. Through its unyielding pressure, the WCWA has forced action where others have tried and failed.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER/DISTRICT DIRECTOR OF THE YEAR--CATHERINE WEAVER COWAN (Adams County). Catherine Cowan promotes the conservation of soil and water and advocates sound environmental management. She helped Adams County Conservation District obtain funding for its new technician position. She pushed for the revision of the County's Solid Waste Management Plan to include alternatives to landfills; lobbied for the Bottle Bill, reauthorization of Superfund, and continued funding for the Soil Conservation Service. Ms. Cowan speaks out, writes letters, and makes her concerns heard. Presently, she serves as second vice-president of the PA State Association of County Commissioners.

MAURICE K. GODDARD FORESTRY AWARD--ROBERT C. LOTT (Adams County). Mr. Robert Lott was a good friend to forestry efforts in the northeastern U.S. His property is an excellent example of a well managed forest in an agricultural area and a demonstration of what can be done with the forest resource when one person "cares to do it better." Mr. Lott became a National Tree farmer in 1978. He became a member of the Glatfelter Tree Farm Family in 1975 and thereby placed his forest land under management by professional foresters. His 181 acres of forest land are under an active management plan, which considers wildlife enhancement and a future timber crop. Roads and skidways have been retired adequately, leaving little or no soil movement. Over the past eight years, Mr. Lott represented Pennsylvania on the NACD Forestry Committee.

Massey-Ferguson expands service plan

DES MOINES, IA – A new extended coverage program for Massey-Ferguson tractors now offers farmers protection from large, unexpected repair expenses.

The MF Service Shield Tractor Protection Plan provides extended service and parts coverage for an additional two years, or 1,500 hours, whichever comes first, following expiration of the standard warranty.

All new 16 h.p. to 125 h.p. Massey-Ferguson agricultural tractors in current production are eligible for MF Service Shield Protection.

Tractor owners may register their MF tractor in the MF Service Shield Plan within 90 days of the date of original purchase. MF will finance the minimal cost if it is included in the tractor sale price at the time of purchase.

Tractors registered in the MF Service Shield Plan receive free annual inspections by trained MF service technicians at the participating Massey-Ferguson dealership.

The MF Service Shield Protection Plan can be transferred to a new owner if the tractor is sold before the extended coverage has expired.

An MF Service Shield Plan booklet explaining the details of the plan is available at Massey-Ferguson dealerships throughout North America.

It won't last forever, but you can probably pass it on to your son.

A lot of folks learned farming behind the wheel of their Dad's Ford. More than a few still fire up that same tractor for some serious work now and then.

Today's Ford tractors use technology that Dad never dreamed of. But take a good look at one of the ten mid-sized Series 10 tractors. You'll see the lasting strength of massive castings, sturdy axles and plenty of iron everywhere it's needed.

Inside, the story is even stronger. In engines with big strong working parts and wide bearing surfaces. In husky transmissions, double-reduction final drives and sealed wet disc brakes on all models of 36 or more PTO horsepower.

That kind of design integrity has earned Ford tractors the respect of the farmers who use them. No one outranks Ford in owner satisfaction with tractors in these power sizes. That's not Ford talking - it's what farmers said in a 1983 survey measuring the quality, reliability, durability, serviceability and maintenance of their 30-90 horsepower tractors.

What's more, every Ford tractor comes with the support of a dealer with the facilities, know-how and parts availability to see that it serves you long and well.

Some things are too good not to share. Pass it on.

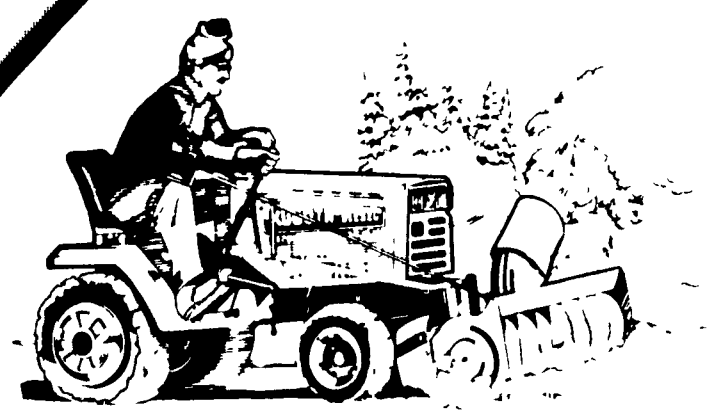
MORE THAN A MOWER



Of course, a Kubota G-Series lawn and garden tractor is a great way to cut the grass. And with a liquid-cooled 2- or 3-cylinder engine, a Kubota is designed to outlast ordinary gas mowers by several seasons. But that's not all. A Kubota G has a live front PTO shaft drive and a variety of hard-working implements. For example, you can choose a snowblower, tiller or front blade. There are four Kubota G models, from 10 to 14 horsepower. Some come with hydrostatic transmission as standard equipment. A Kubota G-Series diesel lawn and garden tractor. There's more to it than you think.

The satisfaction that comes from doing a good job of farming

Liming is one of the most important factors in keeping your soil in the highest productive range A good pasture with a pH of 6 5 or higher for example will make 300 to 400 lbs of beef per acre and produce up to $100 gross income per acre This means with the help of lime profits from pastures can compare favorably with feed or grain crops

More from your pasture

At Southwestern Research Lab Field Day, farmers learn how to extend the grazing season.

BY BETH NESBIT
Staff Correspondent

RECTOR — Livestock producers traveling to Penn State's Southwestern Field Research Laboratory in Westmoreland County today are learning practical methods of extending the grazing season.

Careful management of pasture and forage allows this lab to keep its beef cattle grazing from April through November, according to lab superintendent, Bill Downs. "We keep 30 head of brood cows on pasture," says Downs. "Visitors can see some of the techniques we use to keep cattle on more forage and less hay. And many of the techniques will also work for sheep."

Over the past five years, Downs has maintained a system of leaving cattle on a pasture for a period of time, then moving them to a new section of pasture.

One technique, outlined by Penn State Extension agronomist Sid Bosworth, involves stockpiling fescue and orchardgrass for grazing in October and November. In this case, the term "stockpiling" refers to taking cattle out of a pasture in August, then fertilizing it and allowing it to grow until mid-fall. At this time of year, fescue and orchardgrass produce large quantities of high quality feed and do not go to head. Fields selected for stockpiling receive from 50 to 75 pounds of nitrogen per acre.

The cattle are kept on orchardgrass and clover until late October, when they're moved to the fescue pasture. Provided with supplemental baled hay, they can be kept on fescue pasture even after the ground is snow covered.

Two other crops being showcased at the field day are birdsfoot trefoil and brassicas. A legume, birdsfoot trefoil provides good pasture during mid-summer. Brassicas, a family of crops that includes turnips and rape, provide pasture from August through October.

Used in the Mideast for years, rape has only recently been introduced in Western agriculture. Rape can be used as a pasture carry-over in place of other seedings. These brassicas are particularly good for preparing ewes for lambing.

Round bales in the Southwestern Field Research Laboratory's calving pasture help to protect young calves from harsh winds in the spring, says lab superintendent Bill Downs.

To keep beef outdoors all winter, even through calving, Downs places round bales in the pasture, then moves the cattle from one set of bales to another by means of portable electric fences. Cows are moved into a freshening pasture in late February and remain there until early May.

Three bales at a time are fed to the cattle, and a total of about 60 bales are fed during this period. These bales are organized so that cows receive higher quality hay closer to their freshening dates.

To effectively manage cattle on small pastures, the laboratory utilizes a six-volt poly wire solar fence developed in New Zealand. The fencing, "allows for less labor and more flexibility when the cattle are in small pastures," explains Downs.

Soil Conservation personnel were also on hand at the field day to explain the lab's SCS-designed water system. The system drains several wet pastures and stores the water in 500-gallon tanks.

For more information on extending the grazing season, or for a booklet summarizing the day's presentations, contact your local Penn State Extension office.

Bill Downs tests the New Zealand-style poly rope fence surrounding a pasture of rape.

These cows, whose calves have just been taken from them, will be moved to adjoining fescue pastures for the winter.

Downs checks a fescue pasture. About one-fourth of the farm's acreage is planted in fescue.

Cropland terraces combat soil erosion

LEESPORT — "For centuries farmers have effectively used terraces to combat soil erosion and improve tillage practices on sloping around," says John Fior of the USDA Soil Conservation Service in Berks County.

More than 4,000 years ago the Incas terraced their steep hillsides, and over 2,000 years ago rice fields were terraced in the Phillipine Islands.

The earliest types of terraces used in the United States were little more than hillside ditches with narrow ridges and deep channels which could not be farmed and eventually became weed and briar patches. These structures were often unsatisfactory as conservation measures because of poor engineering, poor construction, and maintenance problems. They were used mostly in the southern states where farmers followed continuous rotations of corn, cotton, or tobacco.

"Terraces are widely used today in many parts of the world", says Fior. The vineyards of Europe, the rice paddies of South East Asia, and the wheat fields of Australia are just a few examples. These terraces are raised level benches supported on one or more sides by masonary walls or sloping banks of turf.

"In the United States the term terrace has become identified with a hillside channel constructed for the purpose of diverting surface water runoff," says Fior. Surface water is intercepted by the terrace and diverted to a safe outlet. The slope length over which surface water travels is shortened and soil washing is minimized.

Surface water may also be stored in the terrace where it soaks into the ground and is available for crop use during drought periods. Terraces are recommended in high rainfall areas on sloping, highly erodable, intensively farmed cropland where basic conservation practices such as contouring and stripcropping are not sufficient protection against surface water runoff and soil erosion.

"In Pennsylvania diversion terraces and cropland terraces are the basic types used," says Fior. Diversion terraces are designed to carry water and are seeded with a permanent sod cover after construction. They should be maintained by mowing periodically and may be cropped for hay. These terraces are spaced 300 to 400 feet apart and may have deep wide channels depending on the size of the watershed draining into them, the steepness of the surrounding topography, and the nature of the existing plant cover.

Cropland terraces are designed to be farmed in addition to diverting water and saving soil. They are useful on moderately sloping farmland where intensive rotations of row crops and small grains with little or no hay crops are necessary to make a profitable income.

Cropland terraces have wide shallow channels with low grades and gentle slopes that are easily farmed. They are generally more shallow than diversion terraces and spaced more closely together so that intensive cropping can be maintained without excessive surface water runoff and soil erosion.

"Cropland terraces should always be supplemented with the best possible conservation practices to maintain soil fertility and productivity," says Fior. Conservation tillage, crop residue use, cover crops, liming and manuring, fertilization, and other practices are important for good soil management.

Flood projects stop damages

LANCASTER — Over one million dollars in damages from Hurricane Gloria were prevented by flood prevention projects in five small watersheds in Pennsylvania, reports a USDA economist.

The heavy rains from Gloria caused some smaller streams in eastern Pennsylvania to exceed flood levels. However, streams protected with USDA Soil Conservation Service flood prevention dams held back runoff and reduced or eliminated flooding.

SCS Economist Stephen Kemmerle noted a total damage reduction of $1,122,000 on five watersheds–the Greene-Dreher in Wayne, Pike, and Monroe Counties; Martins Creek, Susquehanna County; Brdohead Creek, Monroe County; tributaries of the Lackawaxen River, Wayne County; and the Neshaminy Creek, Bucks and Montgomery Counties.

Greatest damage reduction was on the Brodhead Creek and Neshaminy Creek drainage areas at $570,000 and $350,000 respectively, added Kemmerle.

Four other small watershed flood prevention projects in eastern Pennsylvania showed no significant runoff or flooding. They were the Kaercher Creek watershed, Berks County; Mauch Chunk watershed, Carbon County; east branch of the Brandywine Creek, Chester County; and the Little Schuylkill River, Schuylkill County.

Flood prevention projects on small watersheds are operated under Public Law 566, the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act and administered by the USDA Soil Conservation Service.

Research provides guidelines for Delmarva soybean irrigation

NEWARK, Del. – Many Delmarva soils are sandy with very low moisture-holding capacity, so successful crop production depends on frequent rainfall or irrigation. For area farmers, irrigation is often a form of yield insurance.

Delaware irrigated crop acreage has more than doubled since 1974, will most new sprinkler systems being installed for field corn. Since many farmers use a corn/soybean rotation, some with center pivot systems or traveling guns have begun irrigating their soybeans as well. Until recently producers lacked information on how much water to apply, and when, what soybean varieties respond best to irrigation, and what yields to expect.

Research has shown that water is often the primary factor limiting soybean yield and that plants are most sensitive to drought during reproductive development–particularly pod fill. It is also known that irrigating soybeans too soon in their development can reduce rather than increase yields by promoting early vegetative growth which induces lodging.

To determine the effects of irrigation on soybeans produced on Delmarva, Dr. William F. Ritter, an engineer specializing in soil and water interactions at the University of Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station, conducted a long-term study of yields and evapotranspiration rates (total moisture loss from soil by evaporation and plant transpiration) for both irrigated and nonirrigated full-season soybeans.

Plants were grown for four years on a sandy loam soil at the university's Georgetown substation, and for one year on a silt loam at the Newark research farm. Ritter measured rainfall and irrigation water application rates at both sites at regular intervals from planting to maturity. Some plots were irrigated over the entire growing season; others received water only from flowering to maturity. Some received no irrigation water at all.

Ritter found a significant difference in yield between irrigated and nonirrigated treatments all four years at Georgetown and for the one year at Newark. In only

SCS repairs flood-damaged streams

LANCASTER – One-half million dollars has been approved by the USDA Soil Conservation Service (SCS) to restore streams damaged by Hurricane Gloria in Luzerne, Lackawanna, and Wayne Counties.

According to John Mank, assistant state conservationist, SCS will be clearing debris and other blockages in stream channels and stabilizing eroded streambanks as authorized under section 216 of the 1950 Flood Control Act. The law permits the restoration of the stream to a stable pre-flood condition.

SCS emergency teams are looking at damaged sites in the three counties. "We've looked at over 100 sites in Lackawanna County alone," declared Mank. "However, we are beginning to award contracts for the restoration work."

Emergency headquarters for SCS has been established at the SCS office in Clarks Summit, Lackawanna County. Damage evaluation teams, engineers, and contracting specialists will work out of the Clarks Summit office until the cleanup and stabilization is completed.

Mank noted that the damage to streams occurred on the smaller tributaries. He added that the work would be on streams such as Roaring Brook and Wildcat Creek, Lackawanna County, and Mill Creek, Luzerne County. "It is streams of this size and smaller where the damage occurred and where we will be working," said Mank.

Under the rules of Section 216 Stream Restoration Work, SCS assesses damage, plans the restoration work, awards contracts, and pays and supervises the fieldwork. Landowners must agree to have the work done on their property. Local government is responsible for contacting landowners and obtaining permission for the work. All of the work will be completed within two months of the storm.

"Every effort will be made to protect the environment during the construction period," said Mank. "Work will be conducted from the streambank wherever possible; however, it is necessary to work in the channel to remove debris and blockages. The contractors will be working under rigid guidelines to minimize pollution and sedimentation, and SCS will see that they are followed," promised Mank.

Good news for dairymen!
Cows fed Eastman® IsoPlus™ nutritional supplement as directed produce an average of five pounds more milk per cow per day! More milk to sell means more money for you!

More good news!

Feeding IsoPlus adds more to your milk check than it does to your feed bill!

IsoPlus helps cows produce more milk because IsoPlus improves feed utilization. When you feed IsoPlus to your cows, more nutrients and energy are made available to produce milk. Feeding IsoPlus gets results without an increase in feed intake.

IsoPlus is not a drug: it's a nutritional supplement. Feeding IsoPlus causes no adverse effect on milk composition, no loss of cow body weight, no adverse effect on reproduction . . . or health. IsoPlus does not collect in milk or meat tissues. Dairy cattle have been fed IsoPlus at levels ten times the recommended amount with no adverse health effects.

It's easy to feed IsoPlus. It can be mixed with grains, concentrates, premixes or total mixed rations.

And IsoPlus really works! University tests and commercial dairy farm trials confirm Eastman's own extensive laboratory findings: feeding IsoPlus as recommended increases milk production 4 to 6 pounds per cow per day.

Ask your feed supplier about IsoPlus. Or, for additional information, write to Animal Nutrition Supplements, Eastman Chemicals Division, Eastman Kodak Company, P.O. Box 1955, Kingsport, Tennessee 37662. Dial toll free 800-EASTMAN (800/327-8626).

Drought prevented floods in Southeastern Pennsylvania

LANCASTER – The drought which has gripped eastern Pennsylvania for the past year, was a blessing as far as preventing flooding from the rains of Hurricane Gloria, according to USDA Soil Conservation Service officials.

Tim Murphy, SCS hydraulic engineer, reports that the extremely dry soil conditions permitted the soil to absorb much of the rainfall in the southeastern part of the state. According to Murphy, rainfall was as heavy as a once-in-a-100-year storm, but rainfall runoff was once-in-10-years or lower in monitored watersheds.

The east branch of the Brandywine Creek watershed had a total of 6.2 inches of rain from Gloria, 3.7 inches of which fell in 12 hours. The rainfall is a once-in-a-70-year storm, but the runoff was only a once-in-two-years amount.

Other southeastern watersheds in the report were the Neshaminy Creek, with total rainfall of 6.5 inches, a once-in-60-years event with a five-year runoff; the Little Schuylkill River with 5.0 inches, a once-in-20-years downpour with a one-year runoff; and Kaercher Creek (Berks County) with 5.0 inches of rainfall, or a once-in-20-year event with a one-year runoff rate.

Northeastern Pennsylvania was a different story, noted Murphy. The soil was not as dry and runoff rates were higher. The result was that numerous smaller streams flooded, causing millions of dollars in damages.

Five watersheds in the path of Gloria's heavy rains were protected by USDA Soil Conservation Service dams. Dams on the Brodhead Creek, Martins Creek, Greene-Dreher, tributaries of the Lackawaxen River, and Neshaminy Creek prevented over one million dollars in flood damages, added Stephen Kemmerle, SCS economist.

Of the nine monitored watersheds in eastern Pennsylvania, the most intensive rainfall was in the Greene-Dreher drainage area in Wayne, Pike, and Monroe Counties. Murphy stated that a total of 7.5 inches of rain fell from Gloria and 6.3 inches came in 12 hours. In spite of the heavy rains, runoff only reached the amount expected once every eight years.

Murphy compared this to the June 1972 Hurricane Agnes, which resulted in record flooding over much of the state. "In the case of Agnes, the storm was preceded by six weeks of above normal rainfall and the ground was saturated. Nearly all the rain that fell in Flood Agnes became runoff," Murphy said.

Murphy added that another favorable factor in the recent storm was that rain fell at a uniform rate throughout the storm. "It was lacking the heavy downpours that make small streams rise rapidly. The evenness of the rain permitted the maximum amount to soak into the ground," said Murphy. "For some areas, Gloria was a good storm."

Soybean irrigation

one year was there a marked difference in yield between the partial and full irrigation treatments.

Using the data collected, he developed a water use curve for full season soybeans and average planting dates in southern Delaware. Farmers are now advised to use this curve as a guide to soybean irrigation scheduling in the state.

While it is not profitable to invest in an irrigation system for soybeans alone on Delmarva, the engineer found that producers can profit by irrigating soybeans in a corn/soybean rotation on sandy loam or loamy sand soils if a system is bought for irrigating corn.

Based on his findings, Ritter concludes:

- For most years, full season irrigation of soybeans will not increase yields significantly over irrigation from flowering to maturity.
- Irrigating some soybean varieties too much during early vegetative growth stages may cause excessive lodging.
- The peak water use rate for soybeans on the Delmarva peninsula is approximately 0.3 inch per day.
- A well used to irrigate soybeans on Delmarva must deliver seven to eight gallons of water per minute per acre.

Drought conditions may extend to 1987

ITHACA, NY – Drought conditions that are draining municipal reservoirs and parching the agricultural land in the Northeast may persist into 1986, and possibly into 1987, a Cornell University meteorologist predicts.

"We could very well have another full year or two before we get normal precipitation in the Northeast," says Douglas A. Paine, an associate professor of agronomy in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell.

Paine bases that prediction on his "sunspot theory," which links weather patterns on Earth to sunspot activity. Based on that theory, Paine predicted as early as 1981 that the Northeast would experience periods of severe drought through 1985.

Since that original prediction, sections of the Northeast have gone through three drought periods: a dry spell from June 1980 through early 1981, followed by another one from the spring of 1983 through the fall of that year, and, most recently, from August of 1984 through the present.

During the current drought period, rainfall in sections of New York State and New England has ranged from 20 to 40 percent below normal, leaving some reservoirs at dangerously low levels.

The accumulated water deficit resulting from the drought is extensive enough that it would take several large storm systems to bring rivers, reservoirs, and groundwater back to normal levels, Paine says.

Overall precipitation this year for many areas of the Northeast has been at one of the lowest levels on record, Paine notes. Sections of Maine, for example, have received about half the average rainfall this year, according to records compiled at the Northeast Regional Climate Center at Cornell.

Other parts of the Northeast also are running into water shortages. In June, New York City, for example, declared a drought emergency. Right now, that city's reservoirs in the Catskill Mountains are at 45 percent of their capacity when they should be 77 percent full, Paine says.

Governors of eight states in the Northeast, including New York, recently met at a New Hampshire camp to discuss mutual problems. Much of that meeting was dominated by talk of the regional drought.

"Unfortunately, there is a good chance that the drought will continue through the upcoming winter of 1985-1986 and possibly beyond, [illegible]"

The Cornell meteorologist suspects that the drought is likely to continue because he sees little change in the conditions that caused it.

According to Paine's theory, the current drought coincides with a high level of sunspot activity that began in the late 1970s. That sunspot activity level is similar to the one that occurred before the severe drought from 1962 to 1966 in the Northeast.

In 1958, scientists recorded sunspot activity that was 100 percent above normal. Four years later, the drought of 1962-66 occurred. A correspondingly high level of sunspot activity in the late 1970s led Paine to believe that the period covering the early to mid-1980s also would be prone to drought conditions.

How do sunspots affect Earth's weather? According to Paine's theory, increased levels of ultraviolet radiation emissions from the sun accompany increased sunspot activity. That additional ultraviolet radiation tends to warm the Earth's middle atmosphere.

Paine is convinced that the atmospheric warming effect puts a "lid" on the lower atmosphere, suppressing the amount and intensity of storm systems that much of the Northeast region depends on for its precipitation.

Sunspot activity levels have already started to drop, but the drought will not end until after sunspot activity hits its minimum point.

"Once we get a year or two beyond the minimum of sunspot activity, normal precipitation will return to the Northeast," Paine predicts. A similar sequence of events occurred during the drought of the 1960's, which ended in the fall of 1966, two years after a sunspot minimum.

Paine notes that the middle atmosphere has already begun to cool. However, he suggests that it might take until 1986 or 1987 to fully dissipate the excess warmth in the atmosphere that was caused by the sunspot activity.

A leading proponent of the sunspot theory, which is considered controversial in the field of meteorology, Paine says he hopes to develop his sunspot theory into a reliable meteorological tool that can be used to predict long-range weather trends.

"Worldwide, we are reaching a point where we are treading a finer line on food dependency," he points out. "We need to come up with reliable tools to predict when we will have drought episodes. I think my hypothesis can give advance warning of a period of years where we will be more prone to drought."
